Lancaster County Poultry Association President Don Brubaker Offers Producer's Perspective To Industry

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

STRASBURG (Lancaster Co.) — As president of the Lancaster County Poultry Association, Don Brubaker offers a producer's perspective to the poultry industry.

While most past presidents of the association have been affiliated with the industry end, Brubaker does the hands-on work. His Beaver Creek Farm houses 90,000 chicks that he raises for the broiler industry.

He knows the daily grind required for feeding chickens, monitoring flock health, cleaning out manure, coping with the non-farming community's aversion to chicken odors and abnormal fears of contacting Salmonella enteridis, and a paycheck that never seems to grow enough to meet cost of living expenses.

"Being a producer I can't help but look at things differently than industry people," he said.

But that producer perspective has also gained Brubaker's respect for the industry viewpoint.

"We can't live without each other. The poultry industry has been on its toes since the beginning in developing a better chicken and they've done a good job in marketing our product," Brubaker said. "I have a lot of respect for them."

Brubaker grew up on his parents' Strasburg poultry farm, the same one that he now owns.

"My parents started raising layers in 1952," he said. "Housing 6,000 birds back then was considered amazing, and the chicken house was called an ultra modern operation."

Poultry production has changed a lot in the intervening years. Several additional houses were erected and the switch was made from layers to pullets in 1959 and to broilers in 1968. When Brubaker took charge of the operation in 1991, he erected the fourth chicken house to bring the space to its present 90,000 bird capacity.

Editor's Note: The Northeast Poultry Show is scheduled September 18-19 at the Lancaster Holiday Inn Host Resort. Our "Poultry Notes" section in this issue features this show along with other poultry features, management reports, a poultry meeting calendar, and advertising messages.

Don Brubaker, president of the Lancaster County Poultry Association, is shown with his wife Luann and sons Lamar, 20 months, and Quentin, 4 weeks. Two other sons, Devon, 11, and Halden, 8, were not available for pictures.

Penn State Interim Dean Alter Sees Bright Future For State Agriculture

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — "Agriculture is a critical sector of the economy and society in our state," said Theodore (Ted) Alter, Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences interim dean. "We have challenges in the college as well as in the agricultural community. But my view is that this is a time of great excitement and opportunity for us, and we have great promise for the future."

Alter was the guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Pennsylvania State Council of Farm Organizations at the Doubletree Hotel Monday. The new interim dean used the opportunity to introduce himself to the agricultural community and to outline his agenda for moving the programs of the college forward.

"I believe in agriculture in our state, and I believe in our College of Agricultural Sciences," Alter said. "I don't know a time that I have been at Penn State that I have seen quite such strong, visible, vigorous support as I have seen from President Spanier. Both President Spanier and Provost (John A.) Brighton are very strong advocates for Pennsylvania agriculture and of our College of Agricultural Sciences. This was quite evident on the state budget issue, and the College of Agricultural Sciences received an increase of 11.4 percent and was the only unit in the university to receive an increase.

"My position is interim dean until a permanent dean is named," Alter said. "But I'm not just a caretaker. I can tell you unequivocally that my charge from the president and provost is to act like a permanent dean. That's what I'm com-

FAWN GROVE (York Co.) — With the smell of smoke still lingering over piles of bent and twisted roofing metal, three barns were rebuilt recently in the wake of a devastating fire on a Fawn Grove-area Amish dairy farm.

The trio of barns on the John Lapp family dairy operation were discovered ablaze about 2 a.m. on August 21. Firefighters from several surrounding rural communities reportedly fought the blaze for

USDA Economist: Corn Won't Run Out Despite Rumors

ANDY ANDREWS

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Contrary to widespread rumors that U.S. corn stocks could run out early next week, on Monday an USDA economist said we won't run out of corn — actually, some is already available from harvests well under way in the Southeast.

including corn, will continue to remain tight in 1997, through feed prices should rebound for most producers, providing minimal increases in across-the-board poultry production.

Dr. Milt Madison, ag economist and poultry team leader for the USDA Economic Research Service, spoke to 25 producers an agri-industry representatives on

NY Phil Frozen Eggs

SEPTEMBER 6, 1996

Prices were unchanged to higher for yolks, and unchanged for the balance. The market tone was fully steady to firm for yolks, and steady for whole egg and whites. Demand was fair to good, and remained centered on immediate needs only. Floor stocks were no more than adequate. Breaking stock supplies were adequate under a steady trade sentiment. Edible liquid and frozen eggs (ingredients included) processed in the Eastern region under federal inspection for the week ending August 31, 1996 were 9% more than last week, and unchanged from the same week a year ago.

SEPTEMBER 11, 1996

Trucklot buying activity was irregular with several traders adopting a wait and see position. Offerings were ample and difficult to move on boneless-skinless breasts, adequate on bone in breast, mixed on wings, and in close balance to short on dark meat items. Retail and distributive movement was generally of a light and spotty nature. The market tone was unsettled with dark meat usually in the firmest position.

PRICES PAID PER POUND, ICE PACKED AND CO2 PACKED BROILER/FRYER PARTS, DELIVERED TO FIRST RECEIVERS IN POOL TRUCKLOT AND TRUCKLOT QUANTITIES. National Egg Market

SEPTEMBER 11, 1996

Prices were unchanged. The market tone was steady to instances fully steady. Demand covered the full range, and was mostly moderate. Retail specials provided the best movement for cartoned eggs while food service enhanced loose egg sales. Supplies were adequate for the large sizes, and adequate to fully adequate for light eggs. Breaking stock supplies were generally adequate, and the trade sentiment was steady to instances fully steady. Light type hen offerings were sufficient for the fair demand.

Delmarva Broiler

SEPTEMBER 11, 1996

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds slowed, but was sufficient to clear the bulk of offerings satisfactorily. Live supplies were moderate to heavy; weights varied, but were mostly desirable to heavy. Processing schedules were moderate to heavy. Less than truckiot asking prices were unchanged at 60 to 74 cents. Trade sentiment was fully steady. In the parts complex, legs, drums and thighs were closely cleared to short. Leg quarters were well balanced. Wings cleared easily at most plants, but were slow in instances. Breast items were fully adequate to ample and boneless skinless were in the longer position at most plants.

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
SEPTEMBER 11, 1996

Wheat and bean bids declined in reaction to USDA's production report this morning; corn bids finished mixed. Wheat 13 to 16 cents lower. Corn mixed, mostly 7 to 20 lower. Sorghum 13 to 17 cents lower. Soybeans 2 cents lower. All wheat for 1996 production was forecast at 2.30 billion bushels, up 2 percent from last month and 5 percent above the 1995 crop. Spring wheat was at 687 million bushels, up 8 percent from last month and 28 percent from 1995. The increase in the US crop and ending stocks also pressured wheat bids. Corn production was forecast at 8.80 billion bushels, up 19 percent from 1995 production. Yields are expected to average 120.2 bushels per acre, up 1.5 bushels from last month and 6.7 bushels from 1995. Corn ending stocks were also increased. Overnight export sales offered some support to bids. Soybean production was estimated at 2.27 billion bushels, down 1 percent from August 1, but up 5 percent from 1995. OK City Feeder Cattle

OKLAHOMA CITY, OK
SEPTEMBER 11, 1996

Compared to two week's ago: Feeder cattle and calves steady to 1.00 lower. Demand moderate. Quality of supply plain to average. However, flesh conditions excellent for buyers on both feeders and calves and this much improved from the last test of the market. Cattle in medium to mostly thin condition. Weigh-ups average to very full. Slaughter cows steady to 1.00 higher. Slaughter bulls steady to 1.00 lower. Demand moderate as fall cow runs in the north have begun thus narrowing outlets. Total of 465 cows and bulls sold with 85 percent going to packers. Receipts this week 13,150; last week 2,363; last year 12,405. Supply consisted of 78 percent yearlings and calves over 600 lbs; 18 percent calves under 600 lbs; 4 percent cows and bulls. Prices follow with weighted average weight and price in parenthesis.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC
THIS WEEK WITH

SEPTEMBER 16-22, 1996

EMBER DAYS, SEPT. 18, 20, 21.

A-NUTTING, GO

With the Autumnal Equinox arriving on September 22, at 1:00 P.M., EST, it's time to consider the falling of the nuts. If you don't have a black walnut tree in your yard, search out a supply of these fine nuts and make a start for next year's Arbor Day. Take two or three good-looking specimens and place one each in a pot of good soil. Cover with squirrel-proof wire mesh and plant the whole thing in the ground. In the spring, transplant the seedlings to a desired outdoor location and begin your own black walnut grove. Be sure to mark in the family almanac the details of your planting.

Already the dandelions are changed into vanishing ghosts. – Celia Thaxter

TIP OF THE WEEK

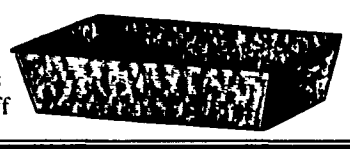
ZUCCHINI SAUSAGE SQUARES

12 ounces bulk pork sausage
3/4 cup finely chopped onion
2 cloves garlic, minced
4 large eggs
2 large zucchini
1/2 cup grated Parmesan
1/2 cup bread crumbs
1 teaspoon dried basil
1/2 teaspoon dried oregano
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon black pepper
1 cup grated sharp Cheddar

Sauté the sausage, onion, and garlic until sausage is well cooked. Drain off fat. In a large bowl, beat eggs until frothy, then add zucchini, Parmesan, bread crumbs, seasonings, and sausage mixture. Pour into a greased 7x11-inch baking dish and smooth the top. Bake at 375° F for 25 minutes. Sprinkle Cheddar on top and bake for another 15 minutes. Cool slightly and cut into squares.

Makes 35 1-1/2 inch squares.



The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Autumn days come quickly like the running of a hound on the moor. – Ireland

A grassy autumn presages a spring of many deaths.

When the Sun sets bright and clear, an easterly wind you need not fear.

When the wind is in the south, it's in the rain's mouth.

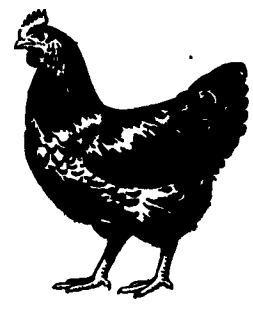
Wenger Feeds. Preserving a Tradition of Value with the Best Technology Available.



We at Wenger Feeds believe that good stewardship is the heart of agribusiness.

That's why we take great pride in offering an improvement in nutrition—and protection for the environment: Wenger's MW Feeding Program with Natuphos™ from BASF.

Quality feed is a precise formulation and a key ingredient to your business success. Our commitment to your success is another reason that we now include the important new ingredient Natuphos™ in our feed formulations for layers. And we're the first Mid-Atlantic feed manufacturer to offer this improvement.

Our tests have shown that Natuphos™ can:

- Enhance the nutritional value of feed by improving digestibility of phytate-bound phosphorus in grain.
- Protect the environment by decreasing phosphorus in manure and its entry into surface water.

Two important feed benefits from two names you can trust . . . Wenger Feeds and BASF.

OPINION

A Life Saved

Each year thousands of collisions between automobiles and farm vehicles on U.S. highways result in serious injuries or death. Off-highway accidents, including tractor rollovers, add to the tragic toll. An analysis of data from the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health indicates that between one-third to one-half of fatal farm injuries involve tractors.

A major time for farm accidents is when farm equipment is moved on public highways. As more and more acres are added to individual operations, the need to move equipment from field to field on public highways increases. You can reduce the risk of accident by planning to move equipment when on-farm traffic is low. If you avoid making left hand turns, you can also reduce your risk, even if it means going an extra mile or two out of the way.

You may also want to consider using someone to drive a car or pickup truck in front or back of the slow-moving vehicle. A majority of roadway accidents involving farm machinery are rear-end collisions. Therefore, the extra vehicle's driver should turn on the hazard signals and follow the slow moving farm equipment.

The National Safety Council has designated next week, September 15 to 21 as Farm Safety and Health Week. Throughout the 52 years of this observance, progress has been made in some areas, still other areas are a growing concern to the oldest industry in the U.S. For example, the average age of the American farmer is approaching 55 years. Also, in 1995, data shows the number one killer of farmers 65 years of age and over is tractor overturns.

In the rush to get the fall harvest in the barns, cribs and silos, it is a good time to again remember that taking a little more time to do what is necessary to be safe will go a long way toward eliminating costly accidents. The life you save may be someone's family member.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Observe Farm Safety

This year is the 53rd anniversary of National Farm Safety and Health Week.

During the week of Sept. 15-21, the National Safety Council encourages all Americans to put special emphasis on farm safety.

Agriculture still remains on of the most dangerous industries in America. U.S. data shows the number one killer of farmers 65 years of age and over is tractor overturns.

In addition, thousands of children are injured on farms each year. Many farm tasks are being performed by young children living on farms.

Appropriate protective measures should be taken when a farm task involves children. As business owners, you are responsible for the health and safety of your employees and family members.

Make safety a high priority and insure you have a safe and healthy work environment.

To Vote In Sheep Referendum

The United States Department of Agriculture will conduct a second sheep referendum on sheep and wool promotion, research, education, and information on Oct. 1.

The order will go into effect if it is approved in this referendum by sheep producers and feeders and importers of sheep and sheep products.

If approved, the order will become final and a nationwide program will go into effect to collect assessments from the sheep and wool industry to carry out research and promotion activities.

In-person voting will take place in the county extension offices on Oct. 1. Voters who wish to vote absentee may request an absentee ballot from the extension office that serves the voter's residence or place of business.

Requests for absentee ballots must be made by Sept. 17 and completed and returned to the extension office by Sept. 27.

To be eligible to vote you must have been a person engaged in the production, feeding, or importation of sheep or sheep products during calendar year 1994.

To Manage Feed Inventories

Feed prices are high and they are expected to remain high for several years.

Purchased feed costs is the major expense of producing meat, milk, and eggs.

The price of feeds is generally lowest at harvest time, according to Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent. Thus, sharp farm mangers will be making an effort to lock in feed supplies and feed prices by contracting, hedging, and purchasing feeds at harvest time and storing them until needed.

These may be profitable moves, even if you have to borrow money for a few months to do it. If interest rates are 9 percent, it will cost you 9 cents to borrow one dollar for one year or 4.5 cents to borrow it for 6 months. If corn is one dollar less a bushel at harvest time, it would be beneficial to spend 4.5 to 9 cents in interest to save one dollar in purchased feed cost (minus storage costs). Plus you have the satisfaction of having an adequate supply of feed at a known price and quality.

The important thing is to look ahead and determine future feed needs and push the pencil and talk with your loan officer to discuss financing and its application to your farm.

Farm Forum

Editor,

While milk prices paid to area dairy farmers are escalating to higher levels than what most people anticipated, our predictions that blend prices may go over $16.00 per cwt may come true on October's produced milk.

However, many dairy farmers are very apprehensive regarding the possibility of maintaining current prices. One of the most realistic ways will be if dairy farmers don't allow their production of milk to exceed the current strong ducts. A 3 percent increase in milk production nationally could send milk prices crashing.

The August blend price paid to Order #2 producers could approach December 1989 price of $15.47. (the highest blend price paid to order 2 producers)

Because of the continued escalation of the major class prices, dairy farmers are reasonably sure of seeing the blend price going over $16.00 cwt for October's and November's milk.

DID YOU SAY SOMETHING?
September 15, 1996

DID YOU SAY SOMETHING?
September 15, 1996

Background Scripture:
Jeremiah 1
Devotional Reading:
Galatians 1:11-17

Recently, I raised my voice to ask my wife in the next room, "Did you say something?" "No," came her reply, "I just sneezed!"

At times it is difficult to know exactly what you are hearing. This is true also in communicating with God, at least from our standpoint. I'm sure God always knows when we are speaking to him, but there are many times when we aren't sure whether what we've heard is the voice of God or a noise from some less divine source. In John 12:29 God speaks to Jesus in the presence of some of his followers. But, "The crowd standing by heard it and said that it had thundered. Others said, 'An angel has spoken to him'."

In Jeremiah 1:4 we find that the prophet is convinced that God has spoken to him in very precise terms: "Now the word of the Lord came to me saying . . ." We may regard Jeremiah's experience as something quite extraordinary. Yet, what made it extraordinary was not Jeremiah himself, but the power with which God endowed him. I am convinced that it is not extraordinary for God to speak to us. Maybe the only extraordinary thing is for us to recognize and respond to that voice.

NOT EXTRAORDINARY

What Jeremiah heard God saying is something that all of us can hear. "Before I formed you in the womb, I knew you" (1:5a). All of us know — whether through heavenly voices or as the conclusion of serious thinking — that it was God who gave us life and that he alone knows who we really are. Jeremiah also heard God say, ". . . and before you were born I consecrated you . . ." (1:5b). Most of us probably acknowledge that in many different ways God has told us that he created us for some purpose.

But Jeremiah also heard something quite specific about God's purpose: "I appointed you a prophet to the nations" (1:5c). Are you really quite certain God has not been that specific with you? He may not have told you that he appointed you as a prophet to the nations, but I'm certain he has specifically appointed you to something and you have not even asked, "Did you say something, Lord?"

If appears that Jeremiah thought God had dialed a wrong number. He can't be a prophet because "I do not know how to speak, for I am only a youth" . . . (1:6a). He could also have said that he didn't have the education for it and that he was too frail for a prophet's hard life.

WRONG NUMBERS?

His response is not all that unusual, for, when Moses was called by God while tending his father-in-law's flocks, he responded: "Who am I that I should go to Pharoah, and bring the sons of Israel out of Egypt?" (Exodus 3:11). When God called Saul to be Israel's king, he hid among the baggage. And when God spoke to Isaiah in the temple, he replied, "Woe is me! For I am lost; for I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips" (Isaiah 6:5).

But, no matter what we may think or say when we hear God's voice, he never dials a wrong number! True, we are not up to the tasks to which he calls us — none of us, including Moses, Isaiah and Jeremiah. But the power comes from him: "Behold, I have put my words in your mouth" (1:9b) and ". . .they shall not prevail against you, for I am with you, says the Lord, to deliver you" (1:19).

God does speak to you — make no mistake about that. When you're unsure, ask him: "Did you say something, Lord?"

And when he answers, what will you say? I'm only one man! That's no job for a woman! I don't have the ability. I'm only a _____(you fill in the blank).

But don't believe it. He doesn't.

Today you've decided to Buy.

But do you know about agribusiness leasing?

- Can you lease?
- Why you should lease equipment, vehicles or buildings instead of owning them?
- Are there tax advantages for you?
- What payment schedule does your business need?
- Is leasing more expensive than owning?
- Will leasing complement your estate planning?
- What happens at the end of the lease?

Call your local Telmark representative or the Telmark Customer Service Center to find out about lease financing for equipment, buildings and vehicles.

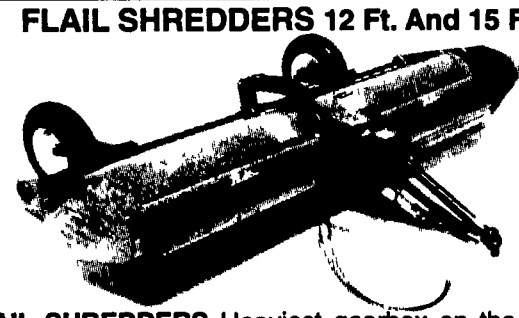
FLAIL SHREDDERS 12 Ft. And 15 Ft.

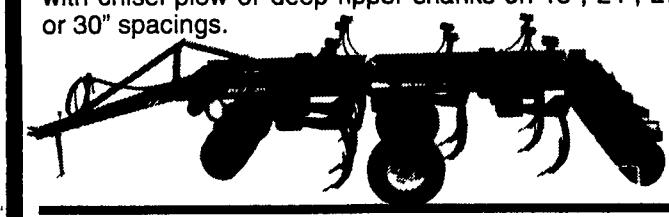


FLAIL SHREDDERS Heaviest gearbox on the market eliminates the number one cause of downtime. Available in 12' and 15'. Either cup or side slicer knives. 540 or 1000 RPM.

SOIL COMMANDERS

The Brillion Soil Commanders take Residue Management to the next generation of soil conservation efficiency.

The Soil Commanders are versatile tillage tools designed to meet the needs of the mid-size farmer who uses a 150-200 H.P. tractor. One of the keys to the machine's versatility is that it uses interchangeable shank legs and individually mounted disk assemblies instead of a disk gang. This makes possible a machine with disk assemblies on the front and rear of the frame with chisel plow or deep-ripper shanks on 15", 24", 27" or 30" spacings.



SOIL BUILDERS

SOIL BUILDERS. Optional Coulter gang can be hydraulically controlled to save maintenance dollars. 5, 7, 9, 11 & 13 shanks. Available in 2 & 3 bar.

SRBC Changes Meeting Date

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Susquehanna River Basin Commission has rescheduled its next meeting from Sept. 19 to Oct. 1.

The 8:30 a.m. meeting is to occur at the Day Inn in Clearfield, located along Rt. 879, near Exit 19 of I80.

On the agenda is a consideration by the commission of a policy/staff guidance document that pertains to settling civil penalty actions.

The commission is also being asked to affirm a new formula for dividing up the commission's spendable budget among the member states and federal government (signatory parties).

Commissioners are to also be asked for ratification of four contracts dealing with nutrient reduction, data base development, restoration of Wiconisco Creek, and acid mine drainage in the Nescopeck Creek Watershed.

In other expected actions, the commission is to review accomplishment of the SRBC during the past six months and to set goals for the next six; and to make a decision on the purchasing of voice mail telephone equipment or services.

The commission is also to be asked to decide on approval of four water-withdrawal project applications.

In Lawrence Township in Tioga County, Ward Manufacturing, ACP Division, is seeking to get approval for the withdrawal of up to 780,000 gallons of groundwater per day from its Wells No.1, 2, and 3; and for the consumptive use of up to 500,000 gallons per day for industrial purposes. In its proposal, Ward has opted to pay the SRBC to provide compensatory water as make-up for the consumptive use.

The Mifflin Township Water Authority in Columbia County is seeking approval for the withdrawal of 432,000 gallons of groundwater per day from Well No. PW-3, for a total system withdrawal limit of 432,000 gallons per day. The water is to be used for the public water supply in Mifflin Township.

Glen Rock Water Company is seeking approval to purchase 500,000 gallons per day (based on a 30-day average) from the York Water Company in York County. A maximum of 15 million gallons per month is proposed in the application.

Milton Hershey School, in Dauphin County, is seeking approval for the withdrawal of up to 609,000 gallons per day from its Wells No. 1, 4, 5, 6, and 7, and for the consumptive use of up to 79,000 gallons per day for irrigation, with the proposal to pay the SRBC as make-up for the consumptive water use.

In other areas, the SRBC is also to hear a report on the results of a Susquehanna River Reconnaissance Study done in cooperation with the U.S. Amry Corps of Engineers, a report on hydrologic conditions in the basin, and staff reports.

Sellers, Trostle Duel For York Fair Junior Sheep Honors

Finishing in the Reserve Champion spot was 17-year-old 4-H veteran Matt Trostle, Red Lion, winner of the heavyweight division with his 130-pound homebred Hampshire and Black Sheep crossbred lamb.

Pairs honors in the junior division went to Adam Sellers, Thomasville, with his winning heavyweight Suffolk crossbreds. Reserve champion in the pairs runoff were the light heavyweights exhibited by Jennifer Flinchbaugh, York.

BREEDING SHEEP

Matt Trostle snagged two-of-three of the Supreme honors in the York Fair's junior sheep breeding show.

The York 4-H shepherd claimed the Supreme Champion Ram with his Southdown spring ram entry. In the Supreme Ewe showdown, it was Trostle's winning homebred Hampshire which bested the other contenders.

Paul Kitzmiller, Wellsville, took all the purple champion ribbons in the Dorset breed classes. Reserve champion ewe was exhibited by Mark Brown, Spring Grove. Kitzmiller also claimed all spots, unopposed, in the Montadale classes.

Hampshire competition was primarily a battle between Matt Trostle, Red Lion, and Jay Rishel, Seven Valleys. Trostle claimed the champion ram, ewe and pairs spots, while Rishedl finished in the reserve placings.

In the Southdown show, Trostle dueled with York junior Jennifer Flinchbaugh for the finishing placings. Trostle took champion and reserve ram, while Flinchbaugh claimed the champion and reserve ewe and champion pair honors.

Travis Flory, Red Lion, wrapped up the ram champion title in the Suffolk breed show, over reserve ram exhibitor Christina Cypriotis. In the champion ewe spot was Michael Burrell, Dover, over reserve winner Flory. Pairs championship went to Travis Flory. Flory also exhibited champion ewe in the Other Breeds category.

Exhibitor classes finished with a variety of top-placing winners Fitting champion was Tabitha Ebersole, York, over the reserve champion winner Michael Burrell.

In showmanship competition, Matt Trostle bested Jennifer Flinchbaugh in the final champion and reserve runoff. Mike Burrell earned champion title in the blocking and grooming judging, while Rebecca Emmett, Wellsville, was selected for the reserve spot.

Shepherd's class wrapped up with veterans Matt Trostle and Adam Sellers, Thomasville, sharing the champion and reserve honors respectively. Toni Kibler. Hanover, got the judges' nods for champion title in the lead line finals, over Nico'e Eisenhart, Glenville.

While the crowd of spectators enjoyed all the entries in the decorator classes, three juniors were selected to the top spots. Winner of the Funniest category in decorating a lamb was Paul Kitzmiller, Wellsville. Joseph Emenheiser, Felton, had his entry named the Best Promotional one, while Michelle Miller, York, was chosen to top the Most Attractive class of entries.

Highland Farms Will Host Belted Galloway Society

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — Highland Farms, owned by the Marlin Sherbine family, on September 20 and 21, will host the annual general meeting of the Belted Galloway Society.

The location is off Route 601 just north of here.

Business will be hammered out in meetings held at the Somerset Ramada Inn, Exit 10 off the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

Events at the farm itself on Saturday will include a presentation about embryo transfers, a chuck wagon lunch and farm tours for the registrants.

Any number of adjectives could describe the scenic vistas at Highland Farm. It certainly is panoramic. It is immaculately kept with an eye-pleasing landscape developed and planted by Sherbine's wife, Janet.

Highland Farms' personality, however, is truly enhanced by its unusual occupants seen grazing in the lush pastures.

They are Belted Galloway cattle, or more fondly . . . the Belties. Sherbine has them registered.

As you turn on the Highland Farms Road from the busy Route 601 thoroughfare, you will probably espy some of these small beef cattle that are colored black or dun with a mid-section wrapped in white, grazing in a paddock.

You might also see Paul Landis, the farm manager.

Sherbine and Janet, in November of 1989, purchased four Belted Galloways from a grower in West Virginia.

It was she, however, who was paging through a popular magazine some 12 months earlier when a picture of the unique breed caught her attention. Showing it to her husband, she remarked that trying to raise them might be a fun and interesting experience. The progressive Sherbine was hooked.

Still, almost a year elapsed before his research led to grower who was willing to part with a few of the thickly thickly-coated Galloways.

Named for the region they came from in southwestern Scotland the Beltie herds in the United States, recently, have been on the upswing. The first recorded importation of them is said to have been by a woman in New York in 1939.

In Scotland, the Belties, apparently were left to their own resources after the Vikings who named the area Gaul (later, Galloway), after their king left them there while they went off to their military conquests.

Thus exposed to the forbidding terrain, harsh natural elements and the vicious winds rolling off the sea, the poor Belties grew a double layer of hair for protection.

Marlin and Janet Sherbine are backdropped by one of the barns at Highland Farms. They will host the Belted Galloway Society's annual general meeting, Sept. 20, 21.

The undercoat, carried year around on the polled animal, is short, soft and dense. As winter approaches, a layer of long, shaggy hair grows over it for additional insulation.

The layer of fat, usually found just beneath the hide of other breeds of beef, isn't found on Belted Galloway cattle.

Characteristics such as these are reason for interested consumers in search of a leaner beef product, to take a closer gander at the naturally leaner Beltie, Sherbine, an organic farmer, says.

Having begun, the man threw himself into increasing the herd of his rarer specimens to its size today of 120 head.

"We have the base herd we want now," he says. "The 120 includes this year's steers and last year's steers, which we fatten up."

"The last couple of years we had an overwhelming percent of bulls instead of heifers," he noted, ruefully. "The females bring premium prices," he said.

His crop operation and his animals are organic, he says. Herbicides or pesticides are rejected as the means of controlling pests and disease. He sticks to natural meth-

Nearly 100 Animals At West Central District Dairy Show

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Tioga Co. Correspondent

HUGHESVILE (Lycoming Co.) — Steady rain and gusting winds of a threatening hurricane couldn't dampen the spirits of 4-H and FFA youth who had traveled to the Lycoming County Fairgrounds Saturday, Sept. 7 to participate in the West Central District 4-H/FFA Dairy Show.

Showers subsided as judge Steve Shaw of Blair County began his evaluation of the nearly 100 entries. Donald Harwood of Franklin County judged fitting and showmanship.

The Brown Swiss breed was the first to enter the ring. Earning junior champion honors was spring yearling Rockyslope RL Aytola Cori, owned by Lindsay Porter. In the reserve junior champion spot was Jason Butler's Bo Ka Dotson Myrah, a summer yearling.

Mark Norman's 4-year-old, Normandell Skyline Wanda, was named grand champion of the Jersey show. Following him in the reserve grand champion position was Paul Blackwell's Windy View Duncan Cassie.

In the Ayrshire show, Mun-Ayr Exacto Tuesday, a spring yearling owned by Roberta Fogleman, was named the junior champion. Following her was Mun-Ayr Trident Andie, a fall calf also owned by Roberta Fogleman.

Selected as grand champion Ayrshire was an aged cow, HK Farms M.B. Tina, owned by Roberta Fogleman. In the reserve grand champion spot was the second place aged cow, Androssan Rebel Rose Lot, owned by Randi Fogleman.

In a show of three Milking Shorthorn, all owned by Melissa Wolfe, the junior champion and also the reserve grand champion was Bar D Maple, a spring calf. The reserve junior champion was spring yearling Bar-D Marilee. The grand champion of the day was junior 2-year-old Quinns S-B Rachel.

A spring yearling was selected to be the junior champion in the Holstein show. The animal, Fairbrook Farms Char Sassy, was owned by Keri Connelly. The reserve junior champion was Stephanie Ulmer's winter yearling, Bransdale Counselor Jewel.

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Dramatic changes continue to take place in the dairy industry.

The old order has changed and new needs and demands have been placed upon dairy herd improvement associations.

Pa.DHIA recognizes this trend and realizes that membership seeks more and better data service more quickly.

It's a whole new world, since the advent of competition in DHIA circles.

We realize members must derive a benefit from our services, and above all, included in this realm of cost-value benefits are the options made available.

Profitable dairy farming in today's world includes both high yield and high quality of product. Feed costs are the largest expenditure on most dairy farms. Optimizing feeding to optimize profitability are sure to be at the top of most every dairy producer's list of goals.

This big question is, how do we accomplish this task?

The clear-cut answer should be to participate in the Pa.DHIA milk urea analysis program. This program is cost-efficient at 15 cents per cow for Pa.DHIA members.

Smaple collection is easy as well as routine with the use of only one sample per cow to analyze fat, protein, solid not fat, somatic cell count and milk urea nitrogen results.

Benefits resulting from using the test results include reducing problems with fertility/ reproduction, avoiding loss in milk yield, reducing excessive nitrogen discharges and ensuring energy/ protein balance.

The influence of excessive MUN could result in disease or injury to the liver.

Included in the reproductive performance of the cow is the conception rate percentage which could be a direct link to the MUN results.

Nutritionists, veterinarians, consultants and extension agents are very instrumental in providing interpretation of MUN test results to the dairy producer. At any rate, factors influencing MUN results can be pinpointed with the help of these professionals.

One can easily summarize that MUN testing provides useful management information which has an economic value, can easily be measured and comes with an user-friendly analysis report.

Why wait? Invest in yourself and ask your Pa.DHIA technician to include you on the MUN option on your next test day.

Please feel free to contact Pa.DHIA at 1 (800) 344-8378, if we can assist with your dairy management decisions.

Flexibility is the key to staying productive. And that's exactly what you'll get with the AGCO® Allis 5650 utility tractor.

The Key To Effective Middle Management.

In fact, this mid-range tractor has a 45 PTO hp engine that offers you the ultimate in maneuverability. Its low height and low center of gravity make this the ideal tractor for working inside buildings and other confined work areas. And because the platform is low to the ground, it's easy to get on and off the tractor.

- The synchromesh transmission has 12 forward and 12 reverse speed choices, with synchronized shifting in four gears and a synchronized forward/reverse shuttle.
- These directional changes help to reduce loader and rear blade cycle times.
- The AWD models feature a true centerline drive shaft for more efficient power transfer and less maintenance.
- As always, behind every AGCO Allis tractor lies a 4-year/ 4,000-hour warranty that's backed by your dealer.

York Fair Junior Beef Show Winners Named

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — "Tuff," a 1163-pound Angus and Maine-Anjou crossbred, outlasted heated competition to win the York Fair's junior market steer show Grand Champion title.

In his first-ever show ring experience, champion exhibitor 18-year-old Duane Rebert of Hanover ably handled the well-muscled steer through a line-up of heavy competition. Earlier in the runoffs, Tuff claimed top spot in his light heavyweight division.

"We need to be thinking about the cooler," observed judge Dr. Mark Wahlberg, extension animal scientist at Virginia Tech, in commenting on the market readiness of the steers shown to him. "These are darn good market steers."

Taking the reserve champion honors was veteran 4-H exhibitor Suzanne Bishard, York. Bishard's 1216-pound "Indy" also stood just behind the champion in the weight division placings.

In the runoffs for the Supreme title were the Angus champion, a late junior yearling exhibited by Suzanne Bishard, York, the junior yearling champion Charolais, exhibited by Philip Baer, Glenville, and Yorker Jennifer Flinchbaugh's Other Breed heifer champion.

Reserve champions in the junior beef breeding show included the late junior yearling Angus heifer of Tammi Grubb, Hanover, Raymond Stough's junior yearling Simmental and the Other Breed heifer exhibited by Shawn Waltimyer, Airville.

In the junior exhibitor competition, Suzanne Bishard was named champion showman and Tammi Grubb the reserve. Fitting champion was also Bishard, while Kelly Hain, New Freedom, was selected reserve champion.

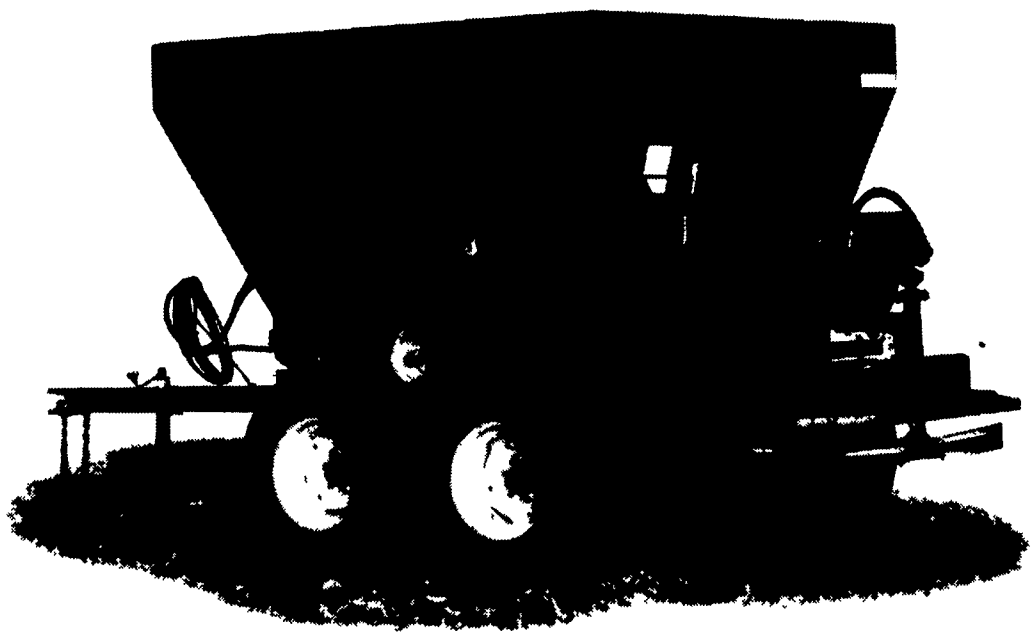
Rugged Enough For Lime,
Precise Enough For Fertilizer.



You know how tough it is to spread wet lime. And fertilizer is too expensive to waste. Our new 56i spreader does both jobs with ease. Plus, it has no equal when it comes to spreading "sloppy" material.
Stoltzfus Spreaders have been known as unique, "top-of-the-line" ag spreaders since 1947.

Farmers are still using Stoltzfus Spreaders they've had 20 years or more. That means your investment in a versatile Stoltzfus Spreader will add up to a very smart buy indeed.

State-sponsored Poultry Health and Management Seminar at Kreider's Restaurant.

The USDA projects this year's U.S. corn crop at 8.7 billion bushels and soybeans at 2.3 billion bushels. There will be an 18 percent increase in the amount of corn over 1995 and a 7 percent increase in soybeans.

Madison indicated that most crops have been 1-2 weeks behind schedule. The concern, he said, is for early frost in the Corn Belt — which usually happens about mid-October. If it comes earlier, "we could see some big swings in corn prices," Madison said.

USDA corn prices for 1996 have averaged about $3.75 a bushel. The Central Illinois peak price occurred early in July this year at $3.80 a bushel. Next year's corn prices could range from $3.25-$3.30 a bushel, providing some relief for producers compared to the 50 percent jump from this year compared to last.

Madison reviewed some of the history of corn prices, dating back to the early 1970s to the 1990s. This year, stock levels have been "extremely tight worldwide," and demand is driving the corn price. The rest of the world still wants corn, even if it is expensive, and exports remained high, according to the economist.

However, because of the tight domestic U.S. corn stocks, the market situation remains tight for the rest of export industry.

The U.S. stocks, nearly depleted, must be rebuilt. This will affect corn prices based on how the weather remains the next several weeks.

For soybean meal, prices have remained strong, from $180 per ton in 1990 up to $240 a ton this year. From 1995 to 1996, prices have increased 40 percent, and "next year's prices will be slightly higher than this year," said Madison.

Feed makes up 60-70 percent of the production costs at the farm level for broilers. For egg producers, feed makes up about 50 percent of production costs. Feed prices continue to drive down any type of profit levels by egg producers.

Broiler production continues to expand, despite the high price of corn. During a question and answer session, Madison asked the producers and representatives if there was a price that corn would have to attain before production would be cut back — to no response. Companies have been passing on the costs of higher corn prices successfully to consumers.

"The broiler industry is writing some new economics for us," Madison said, indicating the price of chicken is up and production has not cut back, as expected. Broilers are selling for a wholesale price of 60 cents a pound, a record 12-city price, going back from when records started being kept in 1978. Two percent more birds were put through this year than last, with a weight gain 2-3 percent higher. The birds are growing substantially faster than in years past. "The yield on new genetic lines is greater than in previous years," he said.

Net returns remain 3-4 cents per pound, and even with reduced corn prices, lower net returns are indicated for the industry next year. Madison said wholesale prices can't continue as strong next year as this year.

Egg prices were strong in 1996 (based on New York Grade A large). July production reports indicated that close to five percent more eggs were produced this year than last. This fall could mean a potential flat price pattern, not holding much above 80 cents a dozen. Because of this year's better weather, the flocks are 3 percent larger and producing better.

Net returns for the egg industry should be 7 cents per dozen because of strong prices in 1996. Predicted are lower prices next year because of lower feed costs. Net returns are projected by USDA at 2 cents per dozen in 1997.

Madison indicated that net return prices are before interest and overhead. Those costs will offset most profits next year.

Turkey producers saw substantial growth this year. Turkey consumption per person is 18.5 pounds per year, and the industry saw a small increase in exports. Now, exports have been increasing to Russia. However, the industry is facing losses of 6 cents per pound in 1996. The holiday market, normally strong, will be flat, and retailers are in "no hurry to buy birds," he said. There is no strength in the market at all, but with some recovery in price. There will be 'slightly stronger but negative returns for the industry in 1997," based on USDA current projections, according to Madison.

Southern Cove Power Reunion Set

NEW ENTERPRISE (Bedford Co.) — Watch history come to life on Saturday and Sunday Sept. 21 and 22 when the sixth annual Southern Cove Power Reunion is held on the grounds of the former Replogle School.

The reunion was started in 1991 by a group of Central Pennsylvania machinery collectors to preserve agriculture's past for the enjoyment of adults and the education of our youth.

The two-day event will offer a unique opportunity for young and old to witness firsthand the operation of numerous pieces of farm equipment. For the first time spectators will be able to see an 1870s Birdsell seed cleaner along with many other pieces operating daily.

Highlights of the reunion will be parades at 3 p.m. on both days, a variety of games including cross cut sawing competition, tractor games, and a kiddie tractor pull will round out Saturday night's fun and a church service will be held at 8:30 a.m. Sunday. Food will be available both days by the Southern Cove Lions Club.

Nearly 100 antique tractors will be on display along with several steam traction engines dating from the early 1900s and a 1929 Rumly Oil Pull. Also included will be a complete line of hit and miss engines. Both days will be filled with live demonstrations beginning at 10 a.m. daily. Planned for the grounds surrounding the old school house will be demonstrations of a rock crusher, shingle mill, ensilage cutters, a corn husker, threshing machines, a steam-powered well driller, and a saw mill. With plenty of power provided by the tractors, steamers and engines.

The former Repogle school is located in New Enterprise, Bedford County along Route 869, watch for signs.

Admission to the show will be $1 with no charge for children under 12. There is plenty of free parking. The Southern Cove Power Reunion Association is a non-profit organization.

Field Trials Present Comparisons

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Chemgro Seeds, located in East Petersburg, held two corn field days this week for area farmers — one Thursday at the Paul B. Zimmerman farm near Ephrata, and the other was to be held Friday, after newspaper deadline, at the Clarence Keener Jr. farm in Manheim.

At least 60 people attended the Zimmerman farm-location field day which featured 18 different Chemgro varieties, some experimental. Representatives from Agr Evo (producers of the Liberty Link variety, a Liberty herbicide-resistant corn), Ciba, Zeneca, Dow, Monsanto, Cynamid, Bayer and Sandoz were on hand to discuss seed, fertilizer and pesticide needs and uses.

James Bowersox, a certified crop adivsor, and Chemgro sales manager, said that staff and representatives received guests and took them on a brief guided tour of the test plots. After the initial tour and reception, interested guests could not only look over the varieties, but were asked to participate in a contest.

In the contest, guests were to compare the different varieties visually and then predict the highest yielding stand. The actual yield results are to be gained later after harvest and the winner notified by the company.

In addition to a picnic-style lunch at tables beneath a blue-and-white striped tent canopy, several displays were also setup inside the large tent roof.

The Liberty Link corn generated interest because of the ability to spray down post-emergent weeds and not damage corn.

According to Bowersox, the plot was treated late this spring because of the weather and wet field conditions. He said the corn was about 26-inches high and the weeds were from 12-inches to 18-inches high at the time of treatment, just before the corn was shading out the ground.

In addition to the new and regular varieties offered by Chemgro, Bowersox said that there were 20 varieties of the Bt-gene corn that the company was evaluating.

Guests were presented with 1997 seed catalogs, and also were able to tour a nearby high-oil variety corn plot.

On the left, holding an ear of corn, Chemgro sales representative Rick Hess talks to a group of field day guests about the differences and merits of corn varieties on test at this local plot.

All American Dairy Show Judges Announced

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Six judges have been named for the 33rd Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show being held at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg from September 23-26. Six national breed shows and two national sales will headline this year's activities.

Judges are:

• Doug Fenton, Winchester, Ohio, will officiate at the Eastern National Ayrshire Show on Tuesday, September 24.

Fenton and his wife, Jenny, along with his two brothers and one sister, own and operate Emerald Farms, a registered Ayrshire farm well known on the show circuit. In 1996, they garnered six All-American nominations in the open division and had six nominations for Junior All-Americans as well.

In addition to raising feed for the milking herd and replacements, they also raise 18 acres of tobacco.

Fenton is a former national director of the Ayrshire Association. He has judged extensively in the mid-west at state fairs, district shows and regional contests.

• Wayne Sliker, St. Paris, Ohio, will judge the Eastern Regional Brown Swiss Show on Wednesday, September 25. Sliker, a long-time Brown Swiss breeder and champion showman is well known on the show circuit.

He is owner of Top Acres Brown Swiss and Modern Associates Cattle Sales. Top Acres is the home of approximately 250 registered Swiss and a small select group of Holsteins. The herd has been successful and has exhibited over 70 All-Americans.

An active judge for all breeds, Sliker has placed cattle at several national shows and state shows. He received the prestigious Klussendorf Award at the 1995 World Dairy Expo.

• Dr. Douglas Evans, Sunny Acres Farm, Georgetown, New York, will judge the National Guernsey show on Wednesday, September 25. Dr. Evans is a practicing veterinarian with a prominent herd of registered Ayrshires. His herd consists of 60 milking animals and an equal number of replacement heifers.

Previously he has judged at the Cardion Winter Royal, the Maryland State Fair, and the Ohio State Fair as well as others.

Dr. Evans maintains a large veterinarian practice, operates Sunny Acres Farm and attends numerous fairs and shows exhibiting his own Ayrshires.

• James Curtis, Cazenovia, New York, will officiate at the 1996 Eastern National Milking Shorthorn Show Tuesday, September 24.

Curtis is a Professor in the Animal Science Department Dairy specialty at the SUNY Morrisville College of Agriculture and Technologies, a school that focuses on practical dairy education for students. Currently, Curtis is on a one year assignment working as the Educational Coordinator at River Valley, including liaison between Agway and the Universities of the Northeast.

While at Morrisville, he accumulated an impressive record as coach of the dairy cattle judging team which has won three contests in the last five years at the Collegiate Contest at the World Dairy Expo. Additionally, they won five of seven times at the Louisville, KY contest. Curtis also serves as the supervisor of the dairy herd at Morrisville, which has a herd average exceeding 24,000 milk and a BAA of 104.5, with 65 milk cows.

Curtis is actively involved in his family's farm, Cedar Cut Farms, a registered Holstein and Ayrshire herd.

Curtis has officiated at numerous state and district shows in the northeast. This will be his first trip to judge at the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show.

• Brian Garrison, Tiffin, Ohio, will place the entries at the Mid Atlantic Regional Jersey Show on Thursday, September 26. Garrison is Director of Sire Programs at Noba, Inc. An avid dairy cattle judge, he has judged shows all over the U.S. In 1994, he served as Associate judge for the Holstein Show at the World Dairy Exposition.

Garrison and his brother own Garbo Swiss, a herd of registered Brown Swiss, housed at a farm in West Salem, Ohio. The herd consists of 70 head, with approximately 50 milking animals.

• James Burdette, Mercersburg, PA, will judge the Eastern National Holstein show, also on Thursday. A long-time resident of Pennsylvania, Burdette operates Windy Knoll View Farm with his wife, Nina, and sons, Justin and Kyle.

This family Holstein operation has a tradition of excellence in the show ring. Their cattle have received 25 Junior or All-American nominations. Eighteen of those nominations were for animals from their great Pala cow family. Burdette has traveled extensively, judging shows in 11 different states.

Entries will be accepted until September 4. Premium lists and entries may be obtained by contacting Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show, Farm Show Complex, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania 17110-9408. Phone (717) 787-2905.

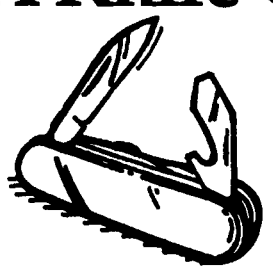
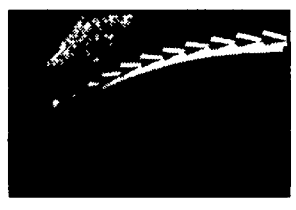
A Knife Cuts Twine... An Oswalt® Hay Saw Cuts Hay!



(NEW HAY SAW PROCESSOR MAKES QUICK WORK OF LONG STEMMED HAY)



Some mixer companies will tell you they have "knives" installed on the augers of their mixers that will cut through long stemmed hay. But that's like comparing a pocket knife to a chain saw. Oswalt's newest feed mixer cuts through long stemmed hay, turning it into a blended, uniform and highly digestible ration and it does it in record time!

Hay Saw sections are installed in a continuous ribbon on the leading edge flighting of the bottom augers. As hay is pulled into the lower augers, an even sawing action cuts effortlessly through the long stemmed hay And because it saws as the auger turns, it actually processes hay with a lot less torque, saving time and fuel

Denver Hog Champion Has German Genetics

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

DENVER (Lancaster Co.) — German boar genetics came home to the second annual Denver Fair Swine Show when the heavyweight champion, a Duroc-Pietrain crossbred gilt, was named grand champion of the fair.

The 266-pound gilt was shown by Andy Weaver, 13, son of Jay and Shirley Weaver, Lititz. "That hog easily wins the show," said Kurt Good, Denver, judge for the show.

Andy, in the 8th grade at Warwick, showed the hog to his first Denver championship. This is his fourth year for showing hogs.

According to his father Jay, the hog exhibits some of the Pietrain boar qualities for a meatier hog. "There's more meat on it," said Jay.

Andy has shown at the county 4-H roundup and at Elizabethtown. Jay said that his son received a lot of training through 4-H about what to look for in a hog and helped to select the pig for the contest.

Good awarded reserve champion to a 243-pound Hampshire cross, the medium weight champion shown by Kyle Fleener, 12, son of Tim and Sarah Fleener, Newmanstown. Kyle, 12, is in the 7th grade at Elco Middle School. This is his first championship at Denver.

Showmanship champion at Denver was Mark Gelsinger, Womelsdorf. Reserve went to Sarah Boyd, Ephrata.

There were a total of 18 hogs and 13 exhibitors at the show. Following is a list of show placings.

price (fluid) has been announced at $17.36 per cwt. This price is still 12 cents below the all-time high Class I price in February 1990 of $17.48.

The reason 1996 blend prices will exceed the all-time high prices of late 1989 and early 1990 is because all all major class prices are climbing.

The opposite was true of manufactured prices in the early 1990s. December's 1989 manufactured price was $14.99, but January 1990s price dipped to $13.97, February's $12.24 and March $11.97.

The manufactured price in the spring and summer of 1990 recovered temporarily, but the price took a real nose dive in the fall of 1990 which ultimately reduced the blend price to dairy farmers by $4.24 per cwt. in one year's time.

Dairy farmers and farm organizations cannot allow this to happen again.

There are a few people that are saying that milk prices are going too high. Evidently, these people don't milk cows.

The escalating feed prices to dairy farmers are consuming much of the increased milk prices. With most mixed rations commanding a price of between $245-$290 per ton, with soybean meal approaching $400 per ton, and with the high price for corn, then I believe most farmers will need the potential $16.00 milk and even higher.

The U.S.D.A. publishes a milk-feed ratio. Over the years if 100 pounds of milk would purchase 150 pounds of feed,then this was considered a good ratio.However, as that 150 pounds comes closer to the 100 pounds of milk then problems clearly erupt for the dairy farmer and the feed dealers.

There is very little indication that feed prices will drop very much for at least one year. With real estate taxes, and other cost still escalating to dairy farmers, it is certainly more than enough reasons for us to maintain current milk prices. We must not allow a repeat of the fiasco of 1990. To do so would be a travesty to the American dairy farmer.

Arden Tewksbury
Meshoppen

Hi!

Well I can hardly believe that this wonderful year is almost over. I am grateful for each and every opportunity I had to be able to promote the dairy industry on behalf of Pennsylvania's dairy farmers.

This year has seen some pretty exciting developments for Pennsylvania's farmers, most importantly a strong market for our product. Who would have guessed when this adventure started a year ago that supply and demand would give dairy farmers the first cautious optimism they have had in years? Milk is at least $3.00 a hundred higher than it was last year at this time (source: Market Administrator) and the strong demand from schools this fall isn't even a factor yet.

It's great to end my reign on such a positive note. I want to thank all of you who made my year so special; everyone, young and old, who I met through my year as Pennsylvania Dairy Princess.

Every one of you has touched my life and I will cherish the memories I have of you.

God bless all the hard working dairy farmers and all the related industries that are part of PA's #1 industry — dairy.

Getting rid of those annoying hang-ups in your operation is easier than ever.

The new SURGE® One Touch™ makes stanchion milking as easy as this. A lightweight, gun-grip design integrates the milk line and pulsation connections into one simple process. Yet it's built incredibly tough to handle the real world demands of the dairy barn.

Most importantly, One Touch brings high-tech automation to stanchion operators with two optional management modules.

The TIMEKEEPER™ II module signals you when the cow finishes milking and displays how long she took to milk...promoting fast, consistent milking that leads to better udder health.

The Milk Yield Module measures individual cow production and milking time, allowing instant analysis of each cow's performance.

By putting today's production information at your fingertips, the SURGE One Touch lets you capture your cow's performance in the palm of your hand.

Smoker Wins 1996 S.E. Pa. 4-H Market Hog Derby

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Conrad Smoker, of Lancaster, won the 1996 Southeast Pennsylvania 4-H Market Hog Derby recently showing a 279-pound liveweight crossbred hog in the on-foot and on-rail educational competition.

The annual southeast 4-H market hog derby was started several years ago by livestock extension agents, parents and youth with the support of commercial business to create a different type of 4-H competition; one that teaches existing industry standards and expectations and research-based information.

In early summer, youth from participating counties bring their feeder pigs to a central location for weigh-in.

Then, they take their feeders home where they must keep track of the amount and types of feed, and medical needs.

Brandon Winebark shows his reserve champion on-foot plaque and ribbon for his entry in the 1996 Southeast Pennsylvania 4-H Market Hog Derby.

The goal is to teach youth about the real-life concerns of those who raise hogs for market — cost-efficiencies, marketability, lean-meat yield, body structure, and health.

After about three months, the feeders are again brought to a central place for weigh-in, and then the youth hold an on-foot competition.

Most of the traditional 4-H market hog competitions begin and end with show ring exhibitions.

In this one, after the show ring competitions are decided, the hogs are sent to slaughter. The carcasses are judged and measured. Penn State meat specialist Ed Mills oversees the slaughter and carcass evaluations and presents an educational program.

Also, the records and weight data are also examined and rate-of-gains compared and a winner decided.

The final overall winner is decided based on a final index score which is based on the formula developed nationally by commercial producers of market hogs.

While Smoker's hog was the reserve champion heavyweight, it was not the top show ring animal, not the top carcass animal and not the champion rate-of-gain animal.

It did have the highest final index of .947, had a loin-eye-area (LEA) of 7 inches, .8-inch of backfat, a carcass weight of 213 pounds, and was 52.795 percent lean.

On a calculated pounds of lean-gain-per day, it was the best gainer, however, with an average of .8596 pounds per day.

It gained 2.068 pounds per day and had a 34-inch carcass lenth. It weighed in at 68 pounds. It also had a conformation score of 4, on a scale of 1 to 5.

Further considered by those in the competition is that their entry can be disqualified from final competition for such things as being too fat (in terms of both weight and in inches of backfat), too long, or if the meat is of poor quality.

There is a one-year revolving trophy that accompanies the overall champion, in addition to an individual plaque and ribbon.

Also, a scholarship competition is also held in conjunction with the event. This year's recipient was Corey Pfautz. The judge was Nelson Beam.

Wendy Jo Atkins, of Lebanon, showed the reserve overall champion, which was the champion on-foot.

Atkins' entry weighed in at 68 pounds and finished at 252, gaining .1769-pounds per day, .7694 pounds of that as lean gain. The overall length of the carcass was 31.5 inches and it measured a .6-inch backfat and had a .6.65-inch loin eye. It's carcass percent-lean was 55.155 percent.

Wendy Jo Atkins kneels and shows the plaque and ribbon for her champion on-foot entry in the 1996 Southeast Pennsylvania 4-H Market Hog Derby.

Standing next to the carcass of his entry, Conrad Smoker holds a revolving plaque for his grand champion overall of the 1996 Southeast Pennsylvania 4-H Market Hog Derby, while Penn State meat specialist Ed Mills holds Smoker's individual award.

The reserve champion on foot was exhibited by Brandon Winebark, of Myerstown. His 257-pound entry ranked 14th overall out of 36 entries. It had a 32.5-inch carcass length, a 6.55 loin eye, .95-inch backfat, and was 51.298 percent lean.

The champion carcass was exhibited by Danielle Grosser of Lancaster. The 225-pound entry originally weighed in at 59 pounds and had 1.551-pounds daily gain with .7132 pounds lean gain, a 32.6-inch carcass length, and a loin eye area of 5.9 inches. It finished at 21st place overall.

The reserve champion carcass animal was shown by Adam Seitz. His 221-pound liveweight animal finished fourth overall and had a carcass length of 31.6 inches, a carcass weight of 160 pounds, a loin eye of 5.75 inches, .45-inch backfat, was 56.88 percent lean (the highest percent lean), and made .7183 pounds lean gain per day.

Auction To Benefit Chester 4-H Center

HONEY BROOK (Chester Co.) — A fun benefit auction, great food, and a dedication ceremony will fill your calendar on Saturday, Sept. 28 when the new exhibition building at the Romano 4-H Center will be dedicated.

The festivities begin at 4 p.m. on Sept. 28 at the center, located on Rt. 322 just west of Rt. 82 in West Brandywine Township.

An auction for the 4-H center is scheduled on Sept. 28 to benefit the 4-H Center Building Fund.

The Romano 4-H Center of Chester County will serve as a centralized facility where Chester County 4-H members can gather to learn, interact, and grow. The facility will expose the benefits of the 4-H program to more young people, allowing them to participate in both agricultural and nonagricultural community programs.

As of this date, 20 acres of land along Rt. 322 west of Downingtown have been obtained. The center raised more than $350,000 to date in financial support from 4-H families, the community, foundations, and local businesses.

Construction of a 16,000 square foot exhibition building is under way.

For more information about the auction, contact Don Cairns, president of the Chester County 4-H Center, Inc., (215) 567-6300 or (610) 892-9633.

Animal Housing Expo Slated

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Northeast farmers can learn more about how to remodel and expand their livestock, dairy and poultry facilities at the fifth annual Animal Housing Expo. The Expo will be held October 29-30 at the Lebanon Fairgrounds, Lebanon. It is sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension and various agribusinesses. Hours are 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Admission is free.

Designing and constructing animal housing facilities is a major financial commitment. It is something that many farmers will do only once or twice in their farming career. Thus, it should be done right the first time. The building and remodeling decisions farmers make today will have a significant impact on how competitive their business will be in the years to come. It will affect the health and productivity of their herd or flock, worker output, public relations, cash flow and farm profits.

Farmers should take time to look at a lot of different facilities and talk to a lot of people before they make major remodeling and expansion decisions. The Animal Housing Expo helps farmers in the Northeast accomplish this by providing them an opportunity to:

— Visit with approximately 40 different commercial exhibitors who can supply the products and services they might need,

— Hear presentations by nationally-known and local experts,

— Observe a variety of educational demonstrations and exhibits, and

mitted to doing."

Alter listed the following points on his current agenda. They are:

- Improving the morale of faculty and staff in the College.
- Working to improve external relations of the College within the University and with industry and government and constituent groups across the state.
- Work with the president, provost, and senior officials of the University to help frame and implement the president's plan for outreach and cooperative extension.
- Examine the current effectiveness of the dean's office.
- Assess the budget management strategies of the College to insure we are making the most effective use of all resources, both financial and personnel resources.
- Work to see what can be done to strengthen and enhance our research activity and funding in the College of Agricultural Sciences.

"I think it is exciting that President Spanier has elevated outreach and cooperative extension to the University level in the sense that there is vice president responsibility, Alter said. "This means the whole outreach program including Cooperative Extension is to have visibility and be at the table with a full portfolio. In addition, the president has made clear the core commitment to Cooperative Extension and that it will be located in the College of Agricultural Sciences."

At Ag Progress Days President Spanier announced his plan to make research information from all the Colleges in the University that would benefit agriculture available through the Cooperative Extension system across the state.

Each College will have a person designated at the dean's level responsible for outreach and extension. This provides a clearly defined linkage in each of those Colleges and an entry point to allow agriculture's Cooperative Extension to draw on the expertise of other Colleges to support Ag Extension's mission. Alter said this plan is moving forward at the present time.

The Council of Farm Organizations is a group of members with interest in agriculture. The regular meetings are scheduled to hear reports on pending legislation in Harrisburg and other topics of importance to agriculture and to adopt resolutions in support of agriculture.

FEEDING HOLSTEINS ON PASTURE

A couple of Penn State feeding trials in the past few years have investigated the use of forages in diets for Holstein steers.

The "prevailing wisdom" is that Holsteins must be fed high corn diets for an extended period of time in order to compete with conventional feedlot cattle in feed efficiency, carcass value, and weight gain.

This concept is intrinsically correct: the higher maintenance requirement for the Holstein steer renders it very inefficient on medium- to high-forage finishing diets. However, market conditions for cattle and corn (such as the ones we are now experiencing) play an important role in profitability for Holstein steer feeding.

The use of forages to cheapen the feed cost for these cattle would help, but what can be used, and when can it be fed?

An earlier study conducted by Brian House at Penn State showed acceptable results could be attained when using corn silage at about 50 percent of the diet dry matter and fishmeal as the protein source in Holsteins weighing up to about 800 pounds, and then completing the feeding on high-grain diets. Feed efficiencies were still lower than those from conventional crossbred cattle.

A recent trial investigated the use of pasture as part of the growing program for the Holstein steer over two years. One-third of the calves (starting at about 350 pounds) had pasture only for about four months, one-third had pasture plus access to a "lick tank" with a protein supplement of blood and feather meal in a molasses base, and one-third went straight to the feedlot and high grain diets.

All of the calves were fed similar diets after the grazing phase. They were slaughtered in three groups after 112, 154, or 195 days on feed after the grazing phase.

The results indicated these lightweight Holstein calves will have limited gains on good legume-grass pasture. Calves on pasture only gained 1.1 pounds per day, supplemented calves on pasture gained 1.5 pounds per day, and the feedlot calves were gaining more than 3 pounds per day during the same period. The cost of the liquid supplements and the variability of intake probably does not make it an economical delivery system for these calves.

However, when the pastured calves started on feed, they continued to outperform the feedlot steers through 196 days on feed. This extended compensatory effect on gain was due to greater feed intake, but there was little difference in the efficiency of weight gain. Further, the weight "loss" during grazing was not made up during the feeding phase compared to those steers continuously on feed. The grazed steers averaged about 100 pounds lighter at slaughter.

The expectation would be the feedlot steers would have a significantly greater percentage of choice carcasses. This was true, but was restricted to the shorter feeding periods. Once the pastured steers had been on feed for 150-160 days, a reasonable percentage (70 percent or more) of them graded choice and had more desirable yield grades and less rib fat.

As with most cattle feeding enterprises, the use of pasture in a Holstein feeding program is a "give and take" of prices versus performance. With corn at a relatively high price, some reduction in performance might be acceptable if pasture can be provided cheaply enough. This, too, must be balanced with lighter finished weights and some reduction in choice carcasses.

Given these results, a price structure of high grain price, low cattle price, low ownership costs, and narrow choice/select carcass price spreads would certainly favor the use of pasture in this feeding system.

Pennsylvania Feeder Calf Roundup

The second edition of the Pennsylvania Feeder Calf Roundup is under way.

This program allows small cow-calf operators to take advantage of cooperative marketing of feeder cattle. All of the calves involved are prevaccinated and weaned in one of several weaning centers in Pennsylvania.

The calves are graded and sorted by weight, grade, and color in uniform lots by representatives of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, and the calves will be offered for sale on a teleauction on Oct. 16 at 9 a.m. The agent for the sale this year will be the Pennsylvania Livestock Auction at Waynesburg. Pickup at the weaning center can be up to 10 days after the sale.

If you would like to have information about the program or would like to be included to receive the sales list prior to the sale, please contact me at (814) 863-3661.

Halbert Named To National Grange

CORTLAND, N.Y. — Gilbertsville resident Roger Halbert has been named membership director of the National Grange, a rural/fraternal organization headquartered in Washington, D.C.

Halbert, a longtime member of Butternut Grange in Otsego County, replaces North Carolina's Walter Johnson, who recently resigned from the national post due to work commitments.

Halbert, the administrator and chief executive officer of Chase Memorial Nursing Home in New Berlin, will not be required to relocate.

A Grange member since 1967 and now a member of the State Grange's executive committee, Halbert said he was "surprised and certainly honored" at National Master (president) Kermit Richardson's request that he take the post. "This is a real challenge," said Halbert, "but I definitely have some ideas."

Halbert, who was the New York State Grange's membership director from 1985-1989, brings to the position a wealth of experience. He spoke of taking "new directions" in efforts to attract new members, and discussed his faith in the former State Grange Visioning Program and how its principles may be adapted on a national level.

"I believe we need to take a new approach," said Halbert. "I believe Granges should look at their communities and adapt themselves to the needs of those communities. It's a bold direction, and one that will require some flexibility on the part of state and national Granges in terms of programming, but I think it can work."

Halbert and his wife, Helen, have long been active in Grange, as is their son, Jeffrey.

Barn Raising Restores Burned York Dairy Farm

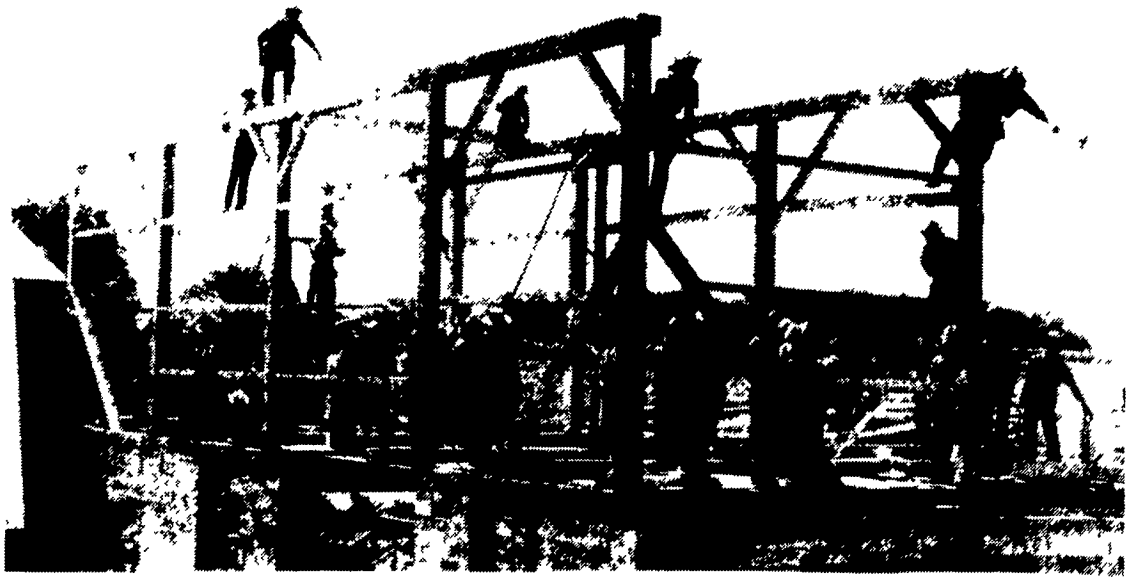
hours before the smouldering mounds of timber and hay were brought under control.

Destroyed in the fire were a dairy barn, a post-and-beam barn for horses and tobacco and a corn storage barn. No dairy cattle were lost to the inferno and the herd was moved to temporary housing among four other dairy operations around the Fawn Grove neighborhood. A driving horse was reportedly killed in the fire.

The fire is being investigated as an expected arson. Sergeant Mitchell, supervisor of crimes investigation in the York County headquarters of the state police told Lancaster Farming that the "investigation is continuing."

Lancaster County barn builder John Ebersole was on the scene just hours after the blaze was discovered. By the end of August, the three buildings were nearly rebuilt. Sawmills and contractors who had been asked to assist with the effort were credited by those supervising the building effort for setting aside their other work to prepare lumber and lend a hand with the rebuilding.

As is customary among the region's Amish communities, volunteers turned out en masse, with as many as 150 for one day of the intensive effort. Some traveled from Sugar Valley in the central part of the state, more than one hundred miles from the fire site.



Workmen pin the crosspiece to hold the frames in place.

"It's like putting a jigsaw puzzle together," noted Joe King, Cochranville, a carpenter and driver for Amish crews helping with the cleanup and rebuilding. "I don't know anyone else who can put a barn together like this from information stored in their head, and without any blueprints."

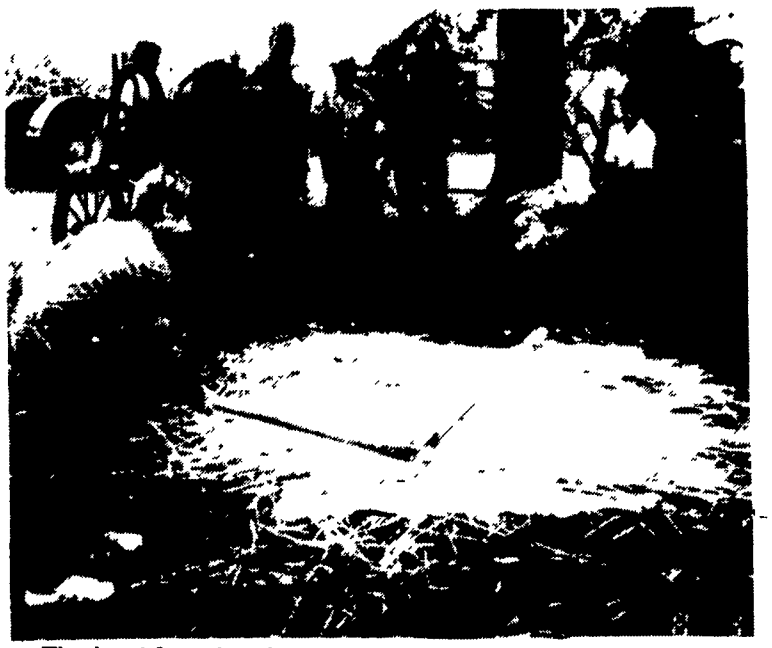
More Than 500 Attend Conservation Event

CHURCHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — On August 3, the Shirktown Threshers joined with the Lancaster Conservation District to host the annual Conservation Expo.

More than 500 people attended the event, which combined antique threshing demonstrations of the past and speakers, exhibits, and demonstrations on modern conservation practices.

The goal of the Conservation Exposition is to travel to different parts of the county to encourage conservation and to highlight the various efforts going on in the county.

The Shirktown Threshers Festival hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shirk of Churchtown had a perfect combination of local charm and initiatives in the wise stewardship of local natural resources. The event was successful and was filled with activities for participants of every age.



The host farm has been in the Shirk family for more than 200 years and the Robert Shirk Family maintains the heritage of how their forefathers farmed by demonstrating how farming has progressed through the years. Here is a future farmer threshing the wheat with a flayer which has now been replaced with modern day harvesters.

ods instead. The Belties are fed with organic diets.

Some 253 of the farm's 300 acres are pasture and cropland. Paddocks this yard account for some 50 acres alloted to the intensive, rotational grazing program. Their size varies from two to nine acres, Sherbine said.

"We keep expanding every year," he says. "Next year we will add 20 (acres) more (to the grazing system).

Among the barley and buckwheat, wheat and bearded rye, Sherbine raises an old grain called spelt. It's put through a roller mill and used as a maintenance feed in wintertime.

He will sell buckwheat on the organic market from 40 acres of his cropland.

Soybeans made their debut this year. Despite a problem with weeds Sherbine said that a rotation of soybeans and alfalfa is what he plans for the future.

"I have an 80-hour-a-week deal," he says, adding "but some of that, I'm loafing." He jokes that Janet does all the other work, so that he can feed the cows.

"I feed the farmers and do the landscaping," she explains.

Sherbine says his Galloways will reach 1,200 pounds in 18 to 20 months.

"The problem I've had is I'm not into line breeding and inbreeding yet. I'm breeding to try to come into a bigger size . . . to hit 1,500 pounds at four years. I'm into making a heavier animal more beautiful," he stated.

Showing the Belties is of growing importance. He's already shown them and is aiming for the big show held at Madison, Wisconsin.

He is vice chairman of the Somerset County Conservation District; vice president of the Somerset County Beef Producers Assoc. and a director in the state beef association. He is also a committeeman in the society.

The Sherbines have three adult children.

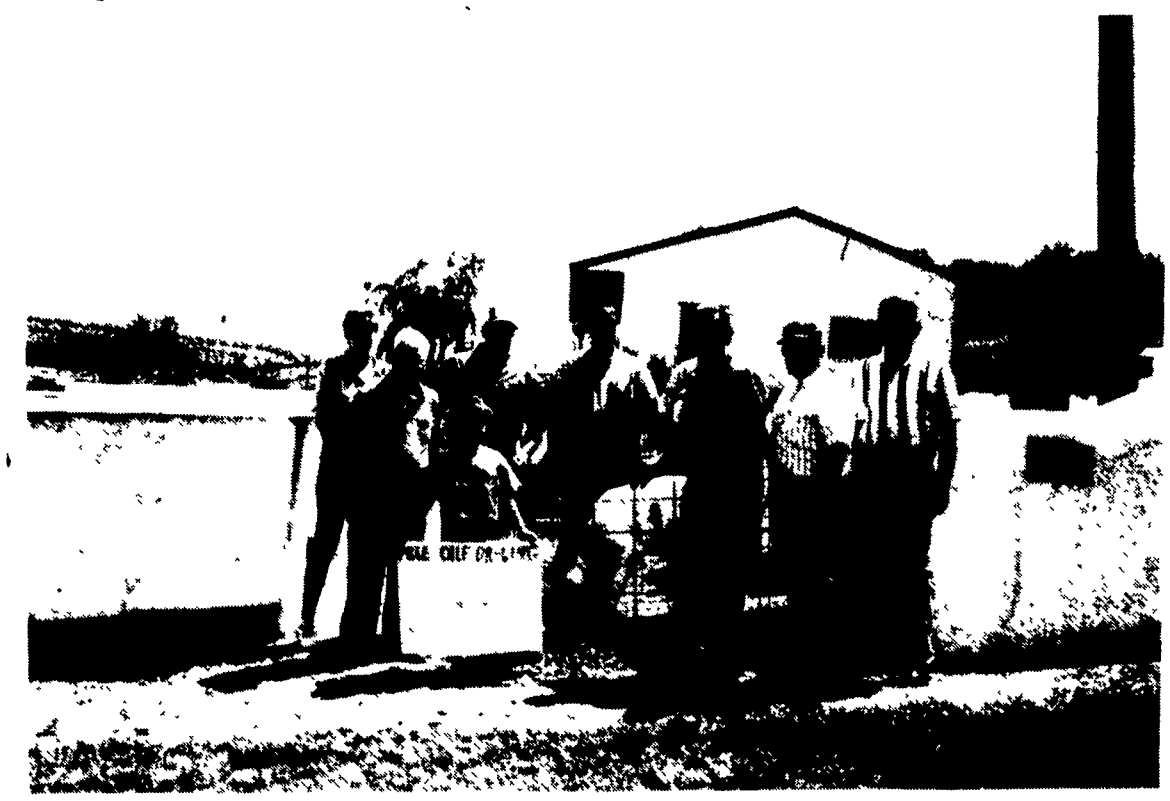
Maryland Holstein Association Holds Picnic



Sponsors of the Md. Holstein Calf Raffle and Picnic Hosts were on hand as the winning ticket was drawn by John Morris. The "Integrity" calf, out of a "Broker" from Windsor Manor Farm, was won by Lindsey Murphy of Frederick, Md.

JUDY IAGER
Maryland Holstein Assn.

FULTON, Md. — The Maryland Holstein Association's 3rd Annual Picnic was attended by about 225. It was held on a beautiful, breezy Saturday last month at Windsor Manor Farm — home of state president Jason Myers, his wife Donna and their daughters Kelly and Kristin.

Something of interest on display was some antique DeLaval milking equipment and memorabilia. Thanks to the following families who put together the display of some of their unusual items; Jason Myers, Joe Schwartzbeck, Gary Derr and Charles Iager. For example, there was an authentic, gold-framed 1907 tin DeLaval sign, tin cut-out cows, match holder, DeLaval butter churn, oil can and various advertising signs, etc.

Consultants Clarence Stauffer and Tom Dum were on hand representing the National Holstein Association. Dr. Kevin McNew of the U. of Md. was available to discuss dairy futures on the Coffee, Sugar and Cocoa Exchange and the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

A delicious catered meal, free of charge and complete with ice cream, was enjoyed by all. A number of donated door prizes were given throughout the day. Everyone relaxed and enjoyed themselves.

There was a meeting of the Junior Holstein Club, conducted by president Mark Iager, with over 65 in attendance. The Calf Raffle for all juniors up to age 21, sponsored by Select Sires and H.B. Duvall, Inc., was a popular item. The happy winner was 7-year-old Lindsey Murphy of Frederick. She plans to show the calf in the future.

The juniors had some fun and games, which included the bale toss, milk chugging, "udder" balloon toss and milk pint toss. The winning team — the Milk Studs — consisted of Tom Muller, Josh Sanders, Brett Haines and Paul Albaugh. The current and past two groups of D.J.M.'s were introduced and received model Holsti cows. Kelly Myers was proud to represent Maryland as a 1996 Finalist in the National Distinguished Junior Member Contest in Fort Worth, Texas.

Sale Is A Record Breaker

LAURELTON (Union Co.) — The 18th Annual Union County 4-H and FFA Junior Livestock Sale was held at the West End Fairgrounds recently.

This year's sale grossed $40,325, which easily broke the record that was set in 1994.

Forty-four Union County youth participated in this year's sale. A total of 11 rabbit meat pens, 15 steers, 28 hogs, and 41 market lambs were sold by auctioneers Bryan D. Imes, Barry Sands, and William Wolfe.

This year's grand champion market steer was purchased by Robert Hamm of the Country Cupboard Restaurant and Shops in Lewisburg for $3.75 a pound. The 1,270-pound Angus steer was owned by 4-H member Traci Gessner. Traci is the daughter of Ray and Linda Gessner of Mifflinburg.

The reserve champion market steer was purchased by Jerry Rhoads for Wayne Feeds — Rhoads Mills of Selinsgrove and Milton for $2.60 a pound. The 1,185-pound Angus crossbred mal was shown by Nathaniel Artz, with 2.346 pounds per day and it ended with a 7.96-inch loin eye and a 1.4-inch backfat layer which disqualified it from final competition.

Kirk Artz showed the reserve champion for rate of gain, and it too was disqualified from final competition because of too much back fat.

Overall, there were 16 disqualifications attributed to poor meat quality, too much back fat, or being too heavy or too long.

In the on-foot competition, Winebark's entry was champion heavyweight. The champion middleweight was Atkins' entry, while Janine Winebark showed the reserve champion middleweight (disqualified from final because of meat condition).

The champion lightweight animal was shown by Jermiah. Arnold, while the reserve lightweight was shown by Lonny Lenker.

Disqualification from final competition is not considered to be a reflection on the participant's abilities, but it does reinforce the fact that each aspect of producing market hogs for the industry has to be considered, and that relying only on show ring competitions does not provide that type of understanding.

The 115-pound lamb was purchased by the Mifflinburg Bank and Trust Co. at $4.25 per pound. Doug is the son of William and Jean Wolfe of Mifflinburg.

Manure Expert To Speak In Lancaster

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — An expert on manure policy in The Netherlands is to speak at 7:30 p.m., Sept. 18, at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

The meeting is open to the public at no charge.

According to a news release from the PennAg Industries Association, a co-sponsor of the event, John Doornbos, director for Information on Organic Minerals for the Dutch Ministry of Agriculture, Nature Management and Fisheries, is to discuss his country's policies on manure handling.

The speaker is one of the world's leading experts on turning manure into a marketable product, as well as the technology of manure management, according to the release.

Farmers and conservationists should find the speaker informative, and time is to be set aside for questioning the expert.

Doornbos, a graduate of Wageningen Agricultural University in The Netherlands, has wide-ranging international experience in manure management, including work in Saudi Arabia and Kenya.

Other sponsors of the meeting are Penn State Cooperative Extension, and the Lancaster County Conservation District.

For more information, call PennAg at (717) 733-2238.

Investing in Yourself

John C. Simms, VMD, MS

"Offering Milk Urea Nitrogen Testing (MUN) to Pennsylvania producers gives them a valuable tool to monitor two of the most important aspects of their dairy operation-nutrition balance and reproduction. Using an inexpensive technology like this can save dairymen thousands of dollars in feed costs and help reduce days open. This is as good a return on investment as SCC -- Probably better!"

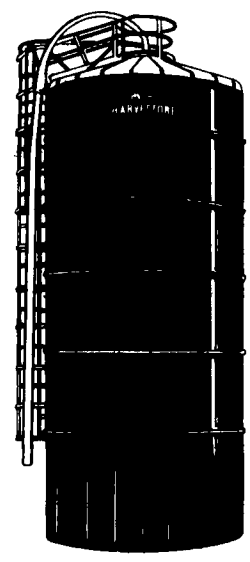
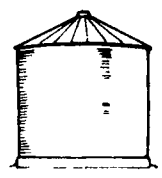
HIGH MOISTURE GRAIN



or

DRY GRAIN?



Does it make sense for you to invest in high moisture grain storage? Some factors you should consider are:

- The cost of artificially drying your grain.
- The time it takes to artificially dry your grain.
- Potential loss of crop yield and quality if harvest is delayed and grain is field dried.
- The feed conversion differences between dry and high moisture grain.
- Costs of aeration throughout storage time.

ADD UP ALL THE DIFFERENCES AND YOU'LL SEE HOW OPERATING COSTS REALLY COMPARE.

Join PDPPS For 40-Year Anniversary Bash

LOU ANN GOOD

CLARION (Clarion Co.) — Over-the-hill birthday parties are in vogue for people who turn 40. But it will not be a time to mourn the passing of better years when the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc. celebrates its 40th anniversary on Sept. 21.

Instead, the upcoming celebration, slated for the Sheraton Inn-East in Harrisburg, will show how much the program has changed for the better and how much it has accomplished since its inception.

From its small beginnings in 1956 when the Miss Milk Maid contest was initiated by the Pennsylvania Association of Milk Dealers until the present with 31 county dairy princesses, the purpose of the program is to sell more milk products.

This grass-roots organization concentrates on the personal touch by using county dairy princesses, alternates, ambassadors, and dairy darlings to hand out samples, recipes, and information to individuals at fairs and special events.

According to Jan Harding, director of PPDPS, these dairy spokespeople contacted 953,418 people last year. It's no easy feat for Harding to keep track of so many spokespeople for the industry, but keeping detailed records is a must for each person involved in the program.

After the individual numbers were tallied, the totals for the past year showed that 1,369 school presentations had been held, 533 promotional newspaper articles had been written and published, 652 television and radio appearances made, 709 store and mall promotions held, 372 non-farm presentations made, 247 farm meetings attended, and 498 special events held.

At the milk punch reception and banquet on Sept. 21, all the former state dairy princesses are invited to participate. The former royalty, starting with Susan Coskery Taylor, who reigned as the state milk maid in 1956, to the current Pa. Dairy Princess Rhonda Joy Kieklak, will wear their banners and crowns and introduce themselves and tell what they are now doing.

During its earliest years, from one to 14 counties were covered by each milk maid who then competed for the state title, followed by competition for the national crown. The national competition was discontinued in 1972.

Because of changes in sponsorship of the program, no contest was held in 1967. But the following year, the Pennsylvania Holstein Association assumed sponsorship and each county was encouraged to have a dairy princess, who later competed for the state title at the pageant held in Harrisburg.

To increase promotional activities at the county level, district coordinators were appointed in 1975. Three years later, incentive awards were initiated to encourage county dairy princesses to participate in a wider variety of promotional activities. The incentive program offers monetary awards to those who successfully complete a required number of activities.

Sponsorship changed again in 1979. For five years, Atlantic Dairy Association served as coordinator of the princess program by working with six district coordinators and the county promotional committees. To provide a more uniform program, the district coordinators established the present PPDPS, and hired Jan Harding as program director.

Harding continues in this capacity. This year, Arlene Wilbur of Bradford County was named assistant program director.

The dairy princess program is supported and funded by Pennsylvania dairy farmers through the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc., Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association, American Dairy Association & Dairy Council, Mid East/ Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, Allied Milk Producers, and independent contributors.

"Much more is expected of the girls than in the program's earlier years," said Charlene Rohrer Ranck, PDPPS secretary.

Ranck, herself, was a state dairy princess in 1981. For her and many other dairy princesses, dairy promotion does not cease when the crown is relinquished.

Since then, Ranck has tirelessly promoted milk with the Chester County committee and, in addition to being secretary of the PPDPS board, is the southeast district coordinator.

She said, "Over the past years, the dairy princess program has gained strength, and solidly stands as the only dairy promotion organization that covers the entire state. By giving support and direction to the county committees, the effects of a grass roots promotion is well established."

Although the 40th anniversary will celebrate the past, the highlight of the occasion will be the pageant, where 31 county dairy princesses will compete for the state title.

Those who attend the pageant will see all county dairy princesses on stage. From these, seven will be named as finalists after being selected from two days of rigorous judging from individual interviews, presentations, speeches, scrapbooks, and informal meetings. The top two speeches and presentations will be given before the banquet audience. In addition, each of the finalists will be required to answer an impromptu question.

In addition to the coronation of a state dairy princess, two state alternates will be selected and the Miss Congeniality Award given.

To support the dairy princess program, Winross trucks with the PDPPS logo will be available for purchase at the banquet.

Tickets are $20 for the milk punch and cheese reception that begins at 5:30 p.m. followed by dinner at 6:30 p.m. and the pageant.

Reservations should be made by Sept. 18, by sending a check or money order to Pa. Dairy Princess & Promotion Services, Inc. 214 S. St., Box 640, Clarion, PA 16214.

Tickets will be held for pick up at the banquet.

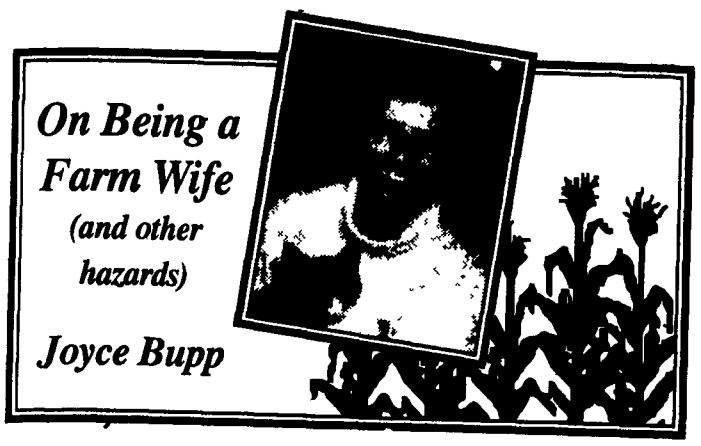
Homestead Notes



Uh huh.

So who're you gonna' believe?

Reports are that the almanacs for next year (which I haven't yet read) are foretelling of another upcoming Arctic-reminiscent winter. Long. Cold. Snowy. Blustery.

Good for skiing and snowboarding. Good for hot chocolate and marshmallows in front of a fireplace full of crackling logs. Good for snuggling down with an afghan, a good book, and the cat curled up in your lap.

Good for stocking up extra bread in the freezer and stashing away a few quarts of long-shelf-life milk in your pantry.

Wait.

Before you dig out the heavy comforters for the bed . . . before you go stock up on bags of melting salt and an extra snowscraper . . . before you stuff the cellar with potatoes, consider this.

Have you checked out the Wooly Bears?

You know, Wooly Bears. The fuzzy, fall-appearing, Teddy-bear-like caterpillars endowed with mystical, magical weather-forecasting abilities. Wooly Bears, according to our Golden Nature Guide of Insects, is the larvae of the Isabella Moth, a common species of moth we probably all have around but few of us think about.

If I recall my Wooly Bear lore correctly, the intenseness of winter will be in correspondence with the amount of black on the caterpillar's furry hide.

All all-black Wooly Bear portends a winter of "I remember whens . . . ." Like, "I remember the year we had a snow that dumped 32 inches in one storm and gave us a whole week off from school." (1960, I think.) Or, "I remember the year we all climbed up on the barn roof to shovel off snow because we were worried about all the long-span barn roofs that were caving in." (1996)

A more normal winter — whatever that is — would have a caterpillar of about half black and half the toasty brown shade. Stripes would indicate periods of "bad" with periods of a more pleasant kind of cold weather. The kind of winter that lets you round bale corn fodder on New Year's Day and then shovel snow to get to the Farm Show.

So consider this, friends: I've seen four Wooly Bears thus far this fall. Two of them were a light brown color with small bands of black at either end. Two of them had NO black on their coats at all. An indicator of a very mild winter.

Who're you gonna' believe?

A dairy farm friend from Iowa further complicates the weather prognostication with more "facts." He says that you can predict the winter by the husks of sweet corn. If the husks on those wonderful, delicious treats are tightly wrapped, Nature's providing a snug cocoon in which those baby seeds could hibernate — if you, the deer, the raccoons and the groundhogs didn't get them first. If they're more loose, and the ends quick to protrude, look for a more pleasant stretch.

Every sweet corn ear I've husked this year was wrapped as thick and tight as if a professional gift wrapper had personally prepared them. I don't recall a single ear tip protruding through the heavy husk layer.

So, who're you gonna' believe?

Perhaps it's best to play safe against the odds.

Get your salt. Get your extra snow shovel. Make sure your tires are well-treaded and the stack of firewood plentiful and dry.

I've always have had a special affection for those cute, furry Wooly Bears.

So don't bury your shorts and sneakers too far away in the back of the closet.

Penn Yan FFA Makes Its Mark At The State Fair

Marcy Quackenbush
Penn Yan FFA Reporter

The Penn Yan Chapter of FFA was well represented at the Great New York State Fair, Aug. 22 - Sept. 2 in Syracuse.

Penn Yan FFA members competed in three difficult and challenging career development event contests.

On the opening day of the 150th Great New York State Fair, Aaron Vaughn (PY FFA sentinel) of Marcus Whitman participated in the state FFA tractor operators contest, senior division. The contest consisted of a quiz based on the Federal Hazardous Occupations Order Training Program, tractor operation, and the identification of tractor parts. Aaron also had to maneuver a two-wheeled and four-wheeled wagon to complete the contest. Aaron, out of the many participants, placed 11th in the state.

On Tuesday, Aug. 27, three Penn Yan FFA members competed in the state FFA dairy cattle judging contest. The members included Natalie Jensen (PY FFA treasurer), Marcy Quackenbush (PY FFA reporter), and Aaron Vaughan (PY FFA sentinel). The contest consisted of a dairy management quiz, pedigree selection, sire selection, linear evaluation, and the judging of six classes of cattle. Oral reasons were given for two classes. Approximately 19 teams from all over the state participated in this contest. The Penn Yan Chapter of FFA placed sixth overall in the state. In the individual placings, Natalie Jensen placed third out of approximately 50 participants.

On Saturday, Aug. 31, Scott Fisher and Matt Fritz (PY FFA vice president) participated in the welding contest. The contest consisted of a written test, welding three plates together, making two fillet welds and two lap welds, using two different electrodes, piercing a plat for a ½ -inch bolt, and making a one-inch square pad one pass. The team placed third out of five teams. In the individual standings Matt Fritz took fifth, and Scott Fisher took eighth.

Helping prepare the teams for the contest were Mike Lilyea; Jennifer Jensen; and Penn Yan FFA adviser, John Kriese.

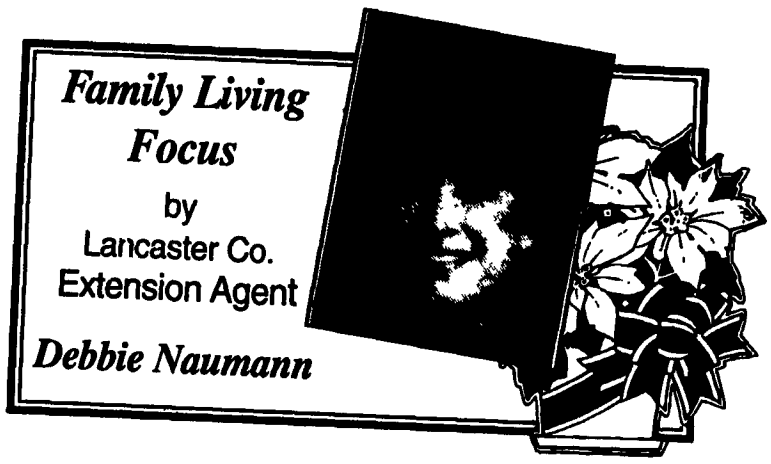
Children Need Order



COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — Children need to learn the security provided by order according to Montgomery County Cooperative Extension. One area in which they can feel order is in terms of when they eat, when they sleep and other routine elements of their lives. This should be flexible enough to allow for special occasions, but a regular meal time and a regular bedtime are important in teaching a child order.

As children get older and attend school they add this type of order to their routine list — when you go to school, a recess time, a lunch period and many more specific things which may be individualized by teachers in each classroom. Having this form of guidance gives children a sense of security. When there has been sufficient routine or order present to build security the child can learn to accept change and be flexible.

Another form of order that can be taught is "a place for everything and everything in its place." This also provides a sense of security and there are other benefits. Materials last longer because they are properly cared for. Things are easier to find because you know where to look for a desired object and it is not covered by other items. Toys displayed on shelves teach order much better than do drawers or toy boxes.

As an adult, would you like to have to dump out a large box filled with needles, pins, scissors, cloth, patterns, egg beaters, 25 spools of thread, buttons, etc., whenever you wanted to mend a small tear in a piece of clothing? Most people prefer to have things organized so that you can find the spool of thread in the color needed, one needle, and maybe a pair of scissors without having to go through all the sewing material you own. Children are much the same way, but we often fail to acknowledge this when we plan storage for their supplies.

Some toys may need to be stored in boxes or drawers or basements. However, the toys can be rotated so that only a few at a time are on display for the child's use. The toys that are out can be separated according to kind — books on one shelf, blocks in one area, dolls and accessories in another, etcetera. If toys are displayed on shelves, children enjoy their toys more because they can see the choices available to them and all pieces of each toy are together.

Children can learn to keep order in their playroom because they can learn to replace one article before getting out another one. This is impossible if you must empty a whole box to find the pieces of one toy.

These principles can also apply to clothes. If there are separate drawers (or parts of a drawer partitioned off) designated to hold stockings, underwear, etc., the child can find what is needed to get dressed and can learn to put clothing away. Closet rods can be lowered for small children in at least two ways: (1) by placing multiple brackets on the walls of the closet so the rod can be placed at the lower position and then raised as the child gets older and taller; (2) by attaching two ropes or chains to the existing rod and suspending another rod to the bottom of the ropes or chains. This, too, can be raised as the child grows by shortening the length of the ropes or chains.

JUGGLING BUSY FAMILY SCHEDULES

Today's multi-scheduled families often find themselves "passing at the door" as family members juggle the demands of shift work, busy school activities, multiple jobs, and church and community activities. In fact, it's no longer uncommon for parents to work two jobs or for children to participate in year-round extracurricular activities. With all of the demands placed on families these days, it's no wonder stress levels are running high and family members are losing touch with one another.

While making major lifestyle changes to cut down on the demands of daily life may not be an option for your family, it's certainly not too late for family members to begin to take small steps toward making family life more manageable and family time together more enjoyable. Here are some tips for restoring order to your busy home and for improving the quality of time that family members have together.

1. Keep a Family Calendar — First and foremost, a family calendar is a great way to keep all family members informed of each other's activities. It helps each person in the family to remember important events and alerts all family members to time conflicts and transportation needs. Place your family calendar in a place where everyone can see it, writing in each family member's activities, including important appointments, birthdays, sporting events and work schedules. Fewer events will be forgotten and family members will gain a sense of security in knowing where others are throughout the week.

2. Share Mealtime Planning — Meal planning for busy households can become a real challenge, but some quick meal planning strategies can help. Develop a basic repertoire of seven or eight quick and easy menus that everyone will eat. Do double-batch cooking and freeze half for later use. Take shortcuts such as buying cut-up vegetables from salad bars or frozen stir fry ingredients. Assign all family members certain tasks such as food preparation, setting and clearing the table, and cleaning up. Keep a paper and pencil on the refrigerator for jotting down items as you run out. Finally, keep in mind that the most important part of the meal isn't what's on the table, but who's sitting around it. Make it a point to enjoy pleasant conversation with family members during mealtime, to discuss family activities, and to compliment each other.

3. Delegate Household Chores — Research finds that women are still responsible for, and doing most of the housework even though more and more are employed full time or doing volunteer work outside of the home. Never before has delegation of household responsibilities become so important. Families can start by developing a "Family To-Do" list of all of the jobs that need to be done in the house and who will do them. Agree on a schedule and standards, and continue to communicate about and reassign jobs as needed. A family "clean-the-attic" or "clean-the-garage" party is a great way to get needed work done while enjoying family time together.

4. Beat Stress Before is Beats You — Stress that results from busy lifestyles can take its toll on family members and make time together less than enjoyable. Laughter, whether it's sharing a joke at the dinner table or laughing about a lousy day at work, can do wonders for family members to relieve stress. Other great ways for family members to beat stress include enjoying a hobby, exercising, taking a bath, reading, or writing in a journal. Encourage all family members to balance their day with hard and easy tasks; things they must do and things they like to do, things they do for others and things they do for themself.

Make Time for Each Other — Many family members are often so caught up in their own activities outside of the home that they neglect to spend time with other family members. This happens when spouses find themselves drifting apart amidst hectic jobs and child care responsibilities, or when parents and children fail to spend needed time together. On the family calendar, amidst the rush of dozens of appointments, set aside time for each other. Make a "date" with your spouse or child to go out to lunch or to enjoy a special event. Remember the special "little touches" that mean a lot, like kind favors, hugs, and notes of appreciation.

Finally, keep in mind what's important. A rainbow or a sunset may not be there later. Children grow up. And few things that can be purchased with dollars will compensate for lost family life if parents and spouses never get to enjoy their families.

Fall Gardening Series

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension in Chester County will be holding fall gardening classes. Taught by Penn State Master Gardeners, you may attend one or all three. On Wednesday, September 25 from 7:00-9:30 p.m. putting up your harvest and native plants will be taught.

Whether your garden is blooming with berries or basil, the Master Gardeners will provide techniques for preserves, vinegars, and relishes. Canning, pickling, freezing and drying are de-mystified. Both flowers and small shrubs will be the focus of native plants.

On Saturday, September 28, from 9:00-11:30 a.m. Master Gardeners will be discussing putting your garden to bed, and winter interest in the garden. Come visit the Master Gardener demonstration garden and see how the Master Gardeners put it to bed. Bulbs and forcing will also be discussed. Please bring a pot to take home a bulb to force.

On Wednesday, October 2 from 7:00-9:30 p.m. the Master Gardeners will be teaching perennials. Learn about flowers that come back year after year. They will also be teaching about roses and winter care.

The cost is $5 for each seminar or $15 for all three. The seminars will be held in room 149, Chester County Government Service Center, 601 Westtown Road, West Chester. For further information or to register, contact the Extension Office at (610) 696-3500.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

With summer almost over, we spent a few days at our camper with our oldest daughter and her five-year-old son. He calls Jack's Mountain in Snyder County "Grandpa's Mountain."

He was really looking forward to fishing and I'm afraid he was disappointed the first time that we took the boat out on Lake Walker. You see, we sat for almost two hours and got no nibbles and no fish.

In the afternoon we drove around in nearby forested areas and saw two deer. An ice cream cone topped off the trip. That evening we tried fishing again — this time from the shore. And, we caught a lot of pan fish. In fact, Daniel caught two at one time and his mother quickly took his picture as he proudly held up the fish. We only kept a few of the bigger ones.

The next day we drove to Bald Eagle State Park where my husband could use his gas engine instead of the electric one. Here I got two small fish while our grandson got a large fish and he was so pleased. They took it home to New Jersey to show his father and brother.

My husband has two very large elderberry bushes and he has been quite busy harvesting the berries. He tried adding them to cooked apples and it made an attractive dish. Some have been frozen to use this winter. Last year I made jelly from them as they are very colorful.

Now that our freezers are full, I shall have to can all of the fruit. We have many small fruit trees behind our house but we buy more peaches, pears and plums. It takes a lot of time to spray the trees so that the fruit is perfect.

Make It With Rice

The key to stretching food dollars is learning a few simple techniques. Many of the foods that are especially good for us are also the least expensive. Rice, for instance, is only four cents a serving and provides valuable complex carbohydrates, protein, iron, thiamine, and niacin. It is also free of fat, sodium, and cholesterol.

Combine rice with other food bargains such as dried beans and lentils, fresh vegetables, fruits in season, dairy products, and much more.

The USA Rice Council offers shopping tips combined with health and nutrition information and delicious, low-cost meal ideas. For a free brochure, send a self-addressed, stamped, business-size envelope to the USA Rice Council, Dept. Budget, P.O. Box 740121, Houston, TX 77274.

Also, did you know that more than 100,000 people are unable to eat foods from grains such as wheat, barley, rye, and oats? Others may also react to millet and buckwheat. This condition is known as Celiac Sprue Disease and is basically a problem of malabsorption. The primary treatment calls for omission of any product that contains certain proteins, namely gluten.

Rice, a non-allergenic food, is ideal for the gluten-free diet, and is suitable for most allergy diets. An added bonus is that it's also fat-, sodium-, and cholesterol-free. Rice comes in many forms including white and brown rice, flours, rice bran, and rice oil.

For recipes that are wheat-free and gluten-free, as well as suggestions for ingredient substitutes for those avoiding milk and eggs, send a self-addressed, stamped evelope to the USA Rice Council, Dept. Allergy, P.O. Box 740121, Houston, Texas 77274.

TURKEY WALDORF SALAD

2 cups cooked rice (cooked in chicken broth) cooled
2 cups cooked turkey breast strips
1½ cups diced unpeeled apple
1 cup sliced celery
¼ cup chopped walnuts, toasted
⅓ cup bottled poppy seed salad dressing
Lettuce leaves

Combine rice, turkey, apple, celery, walnuts, and salad dressing in medium bowl; toss. Serve on lettuce leaves. Makes 4 servings.

FLAVORED RICE

2 cups water
1 tablespoon butter
1 cup long grain rice
2 teaspoons instant chicken or beef bouillon
1 teaspoon parsley flakes
¼ teaspoon salt

In 3-quart saucepan, bring water and butter to a boil. Stir in rice, bouillon, parsley, and salt. Cover. Simmer 20 minutes.

For variations on basic recipe, blend 1 cup shredded American cheese in the chicken flavored rice. Or add 1 cup cooked chopped beef or ham to beef flavored rice.

BROCCOLI CASSEROLE

½ cup diced onion
½ cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons salad oil
1 package frozen chopped broccoli, thawed
1 can cream of celery soup
½ soup can milk
1 soup can water
1 cup minute rice, uncooked
1 small jar Cheez Whiz
1 can sliced water chestnuts
Parsley flakes

Saute onions and celery in salad oil. Add thawed broccoli, cook 10 minutes on low heat. Add soup, milk, water, rice, and Cheez Whiz; bring to boil. Remove from stove; add water chestnuts. Pour into greased 2-quart casserole dish; top with parsley flakes. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

BEEF CAESAR RICE SALAD

¼ cup parmesan cheese
3 tablespoons butter, softened
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1½ teaspoons anchovy paste
1 clove garlic, minced
¼ teaspoon hot pepper sauce
3 cups hot cooked rice
1 pound sirloin steak, grilled and sliced
1 cup finely chopped spinach
½ cup walnuts
½ cup sliced black olives
Spinach leaves or Romaine lettuce

Combine cheese, butter, lemon juice, mustard, lemon peel, anchovy paste, garlic and hot pepper sauce in large bowl. Add rice, steak, spinach, walnuts and olives to cheese mixture. Serve over spinach leaves or Romaine lettuce. Makes 6 servings.

Turkey Waldorf Salad uses rice as a basic ingredient for this hearty dish.

WESTERN BEANS AND RICE

1 medium onion, chopped
1 cup sliced celery
1 tablespoon butter
2 16-ounce cans pinto beans, drained and rinsed
½ teaspoon salt
8-ounce can tomato sauce
¼ teaspoon hot pepper sauce
½ cup water
3 cups hot cooked rice

Cook onion and celery in butter in large skillet until tender. Stir in beans, salt, tomato sauce, pepper sauce, and water; heat thoroughly. Serve over hot rice. Makes 6 servings.

Rice Facts

* There are three main types of rice — long grain, medium grain and short grain. Long grain is the most versatile for general use; short and medium are good for desserts, molds and Oriental dishes.

* Rice also is classified by processing — regular-milled white rice, brown rice, parboiled and precooked.

* One cup uncooked rice yields about 3 cups cooked; 1 cup parboiled rice yields about 3 to 4 cups.

* For extra flavor, cook rice in broth, juice or other liquids, or with spices and herbs.

* For best results, always follow package directions. When directions are not available, use this easy method:

Combine 1 cup rice, liquid, 1 teaspoon salt (optional) in 2 to 3-quart saucepan. Heat to boiling; stir once or twice. Lower heat to simmer; cover with tight-fitting lid. Cook according to time specified on chart. If rice is not quite tender or liquid is not absorbed, replace lid and cook 2 to 4 minutes longer. Fluff with fork.

WHITE BEANS AND RICE

1 tablespoon olive oil
¾ pound boneless, skinless chicken breasts, cut into ¼ -inch thick strips
1 medium onion, chopped
3 cloves garlic, minced
½ pound fresh spinach leaves, washed, stems removed, torn 14½ -ounce diced tomatoes, drained
6 cups cooked rice
2 15-ounce cans navy beans or Great Northern beans, drained and rinsed
2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
2 teaspoons Italian seasoning
½ teaspoon ground black pepper
¾ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Heat oil in skillet over medium-high heat until hot. Add chicken, onion, and garlic; cook and stir 7 to 10 minutes or until chicken is slightly brown and onion is tender. Add spinach and tomatoes. Cook 3 to 4 minutes or until spinach is wilted and tomatoes are simmering. Add rice, beans, vinegar, Italian seasoning, and pepper. Cook and stir 3 to 4 minutes more until throughly heated. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Makes 6 servings.

ORANGE MUSTARD PORK

1 pound lean boneless pork
½ cup unsweetened orange juice
2 tablespoons Dijon mustard
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1½ teaspoons cornstarch
2 cups (about 8 ounces) sliced fresh mushrooms
½ cup sliced green onions
2 teaspoons vegetable oil
3 cups cooked brown rice
11-ounce can mandarin orange segments in juice, drained
2 tablespoons slivered almonds, toasted

Thinly slice pork diagonally across the grain. Combine juice, mustard, sugar, and cornstarch; set aside. Cook mushrooms and onions in oil in large skillet over medium-high heat. Remove from skillet. Add pork; cook until browned. Stir in mushroom mixture, rice, and reserved juice mixture. Cook, stirring frequently, until thoroughly heated. Add oranges; toss lightly until heated. Transfer to serving dish and sprinkle with almonds. Makes 4 servings.

Cooking With Rice

* Regular-milled white rice will keep almost indefinitely on the pantry shelf. Be sure to store it in an air-tight container. Brown rice has a shelf life of 6 months; refrigerate or freezer storage is recommended.

* Refrigerated cooked rice will keep up to 7 days. Cover tightly so the grains will not dry out.

* To reheat rice, add 2 tablespoons water or other liquid per cup of cooked rice and heat in a saucepan on range top 5 minutes. Stir occasionally and fluff with a fork. Or reheat in the microwave on high power 1 minute per cup of cooked rice.

* Cooked rice also may be frozen and reheated.

* To reheat frozen rice in the microwave, cover and microwave on high power 2 minutes per cup of rice. If reheating more than 2 cups at a time, stir and redistribute rice midway through cooking.

spread about 2 feet. Siam Queen Basil is relatively disease and pest free in gardens.

Gypsy Gypsophila muralis is the first baby's breath to earn the AAS Flower Award. As an annual, Gypsy flowers abundantly the first year. Gypsy has a light, airy plant habit similar to the perennial baby's breath but scaled down in size to a plant 10 to 14 inches tall. The smaller size is in perfect scale with smaller gardens. Gypsy plants are also the right size for container plantings. Gypsy rewards the great and small gardener with finely textured foliage and small ¼ inch stellar-like pink blooms. The casual plant habit blends perfectly with the popular "cottage" style of gardening. Gypsy will perform best in a sunny garden location featured in the front of a bed.

Prestige Scarlet Celosia cristata offers a new type of flowering habit. This Celosia is "Multiflora" meaning many more and smaller flowers. Prestige Scarlet has many deep scarlet, velvety cockscomb blooms. These "Multiflora" cockscomb flowers are about 3½ inches. Cut them fresh or use as everlastings when dried. Prestige Scarlet has desirable medium height of 15 to 20 inches. No staking is needed. Prestige Scarlet provided an uninterrupted show of color all season, in spite of excessive heat and periods of drought or flooding.

1997 AAS Selections Like Small Gardens

All-American Selections recently announced six AAS Winners for 1997. The AAS Award means the variety was thoroughly field tested and proved to have superior home garden qualities. The winners included a white zinnia, a cabbage hybrid, an okra hybrid, Thai basil, a pink baby's breath and a scarlet celosia.

Crystal White "Zinnia angustifolia" provides 10" high pure white, daisy-like blooms that bloom nonstop through the season. An early bloomer, crystal white blooms even in severe heat. Each plant spreads about 10 inches. Crystal White is exceptional when grown in containers. No pinching or pruning is required. And best of all, Crystal White, like other Zinnia angustifolia's is highly tolerant of Powdery Mildew and other common diseases that affect Zinnia elegans.

A cabbage F1 hybrid named Dynamo produces a small head, perfect for one meal without leftovers. Bred for the smaller size family, Dynamo's blue-green cabbage heads weigh only 2 to 2½ pounds. Plants will mature in about 70 days from transplanting. In spite of severe heat, Dynamo, still produces a dense cabbage head with less waste. The heads proved to have good holding qualities in the garden with less splitting. With a mild cabbage flavor and good hybrid vigor, Dynamo can be grown in the spring or fall for fresh cabbage.

Cajun Delight okra F1 hybrid offers tender immature pods that can be harvested earlier and over a longer time. Cajun Delight grows very quickly under warm temperatures even in our PA gardens. This annual plant has deeply lobed leaves and is an attractive background plant in any garden reaching about 4 feet tall and 2 feet wide upon maturity. The dark green pods are ready for harvest about 50 to 55 days after transplanting into warm garden soil. It is recommended to pick Cajun Delight pods when they reach 3 to 5 inches in length and harvest at least twice a week. Cajun Delight pods have a distinct okra flavor and texture. When pods are added to soup it magically becomes gumbo.

Siam Queen thai basil is an improved tropical herb grown for its larger leaves, thicker stems and later flowering. This high yielding herb has highly aromatic leaves. When lightly crushed, the leaves burst with an intense licorice basil aroma. Thai basil leaves are a popular ingredient in Thai and Vietnamese dishes. It is recommended to harvest young shoots about 45 to 50 days after transplanting.

Or, Siam Queen is a handsome annual herb with a symmetrical branching habit and square red-purple stems. The compact inflorescence contains purple calyx and pink-violet corolla contrasting with the bright green foliage. Siam Queen grows rapidly from seed or bedding plants when provided with warm soil and air temperatures. The mature plant can reach about 2 to 3 feet and

Is Lawn Care Service Right For You?

YORK (York Co.) — Of the many types of questions I receive about lawn care, a good number are for the purpose of getting an objective opinion about purchasing lawn care service.

Some typical questions are: "Can people have a really nice lawn and do it without a lawn service?" Or "My lawn really needs some help but I'm not sure about all those chemicals they use." Following are some thoughts that I think are important for deciding if a lawn care service is right for you.

The first thing you need to ask yourself is: What can the service provide for me that I cannot do for myself? Time is usually one factor; not having the time to do it yourself or preferring to spend the time doing other things. Physical ability may be a limiting factor for some people. Technical knowledge may be needed that a lawn care service can provide for identifying problems and coming up with solutions. Technology or products may be available from the company that the homeowner may not have access to. For example, some weed problems such as wild violets or speedwells require herbicides that are available in commercial products but not available in consumer-size products typically found in garden centers. It's not that they are necessarily more powerful or more toxic, they are usually specialty products for special situations. Along the same line, some weeds are more effectively controlled with spray applications than with dry weed and feed products. Aeration and renovation may be too expensive for the homeonwer to justify owning equipment but may want to rent or have a lawn service provide.

Cost is a major consideration especially for large properties. Many lawn care services have different packages to offer for different levels of affordability. Perhaps you can pay them to do applications that involve pesticides and do fertilizer-only applications yourself.

Timing of visits for applications is important. It is possible that if the volume of business the lawn service has occasionally results in things being done too early or too late in the season for a particular treatment, particularly pest control, the results may be less than satisfactory.

What about dry versus liquid applications? Some people believe that the fertilizers and pest control products that are mixed together and applied in liquid form are more "chemical" than the same fertilizer or pest control products that are combined together in a dry granular formulation. The active ingredient in these products can be the same in most cases. Liquid applications can actually be easier to direct onto the lawn area. It is more difficult to keep granular products applied with a spin type spreader away from areas such as ornamental plantings, sidewalks and driveways where they are not wanted.

The decision of whether to utilize a lawn care service or do it yourself, is an individual one. Time, cost, expectation level, the knowledge and skills and technology needed for the specific needs on a given property are factors that should be considered. Lawns with improved, pest resistant, grass varieties require less maintenance than older types of grass that are prone to weed invasion and decline due to lack of disease resistance.

Some very basic questions that can be asked when considering a lawn service are:

- Are all service people certified or registered technicians for pesticide applications?
- Are soil tests done? Maybe more important to ask is: Is the soil test information actually being used for fertilizing and liming decisions?
- What rate of nitrogen fertilizer will be applied at each time, how much total for the season?
- Are all treatments justified on need or are they being done to fit the company's routine or to keep the crew busy at certain times of the year?
- Has the company provided a service plan for your property based on the type of grass, site conditions, and existence or potential for key pest problems?
- Ask for references and ask other customers about their experience with the service.

ANSWER — Trudy Ashelman, Orangeville, wanted a recipe for Ho Ho cake. Thanks to Laura Horst, Lebanon; a Quarryville reader; Levina Fisher, Mifflin, and others for sending recipes.

Ho-Ho Cake

1 chocolate cake (baked in jelly roll pan)

Topping:

5 tablespoons flour
1¼ cups milk
1 cup shortening
½ cup butter
1 cup granulated sugar

Frosting:

½ cup butter
2½ tablespoons hot water
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1¼ -1½ cups confectioners' sugar
3 tablespoons cocoa

Topping:

Mix flour and milk in a saucepan. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Cool. Cream shortening, butter, and sugar; add flour mixture. Beat well. Spread over cake.

Note: this makes a lot of topping and could be cut in half, making plenty for one cake.

Frosting: Melt butter and cool. Beat egg, vanilla, and water. Add sugar and cocoa. Add butter and mix well. Pour over topping and refrigerate.

Ho Ho Cake

½ cup vegetable oil
2 eggs
2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 cup milk
1 cup hot water
½ cup cocoa
2 cups flour

Beat together ingredients and pour into large loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 50 minutes. Cool.

White topping:

2½ tablespoons flour
⅔ cup milk

Cook together flour and milk until thick. Chill and then beat with the following ingredients:

⅓ cup shortening
¼ cup butter
½ cup sugar

Spread topping over cake and chill or freeze. Top with the following frosting:

½ cup butter
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon water
1½ cups confectioners' sugar
3 tablespoons cocoa

Melt butter, cool to room temperature. Beat in remaining ingredients. Spread quickly over white topping.

ANSWER — For Marlene Hursh, Morrisville, Vt., who wanted a recipe for deep fried ice cream, here is one from Patricia Gowen of Amherst, Va.

Fried Ice Cream Puffs

½ cup butter
1 cup hot water
1 cup plain flour
½ teaspoon salt
4 eggs
3⅓ cups vanilla ice cream
Vegetable oil
Raspberry sauce

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. In saucepan, combine butter and water. Bring to boil. Add flour and salt. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture leaves sides of pan and forms a stiff ball. Remove from heat. Blend in eggs, one at a time, beating vigorously after each. Drop by one-third cupfuls onto ungreased baking sheet. Bake 30-35 minutes. Cool puffs on wire racks.

Cut off tops, pull out soft dough. Fill bottom half with ice cream, cover with top half. Wrap in aluminum foil and freeze.

Fry ice cream puffs in 350-degree oil for 30-40 seconds or until golden brown.

Raspberry Sauce:

10-ounce package frozen raspberries
2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1-2 tablespoons Grand Marnier

Thaw raspberries, saving syrup. Mix sugar and cornstarch in saucepan. Add syrup and stir until free of lumps. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add liquer and raspberries. Chill. Serve over ice cream puffs.

WHITE BREAD

2 cups rice flour, divided
½ teaspoon xanthan gum
½ teaspoon salt
1 package gluten-free quick rise yeast
½ cup low fat cottage cheese
½ cup water
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 tablespoons honey
1 egg

Combine 1¼ cup flour, xanthan gum, salt, and yeast in large bowl. Heat cottage cheese, water, oil, and honey in small saucepan until very warm. Pour into flour mixture; add egg. Stir until well blended. Stir in remaining ¼ cup flour; knead dough in bowl until smooth and all flour is incorporated (dough will be somewhat sticky). Cover bowl; let rest 10 minutes. Shape into loaf; place in lightly greased loaf pan. cover; let rise in warm place 30 minutes. Bake in 400 degree oven for 30 minutes, or until golden brown. Remove from pan; cool on wire rack.

CRUNCHY TUNA RICE SALAD

3 cups cooked rice, cooled
12-ounce can water-packed tuna, drained and flaked
2 medium carrots, shredded
1 medium-size green or red bell pepper, chopped
1 cup chopped water chestnuts
¾ cup thinly sliced green onions
1½ cups nonfat plain yogurt
1 teaspoon lemon pepper
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
3 whole pita bread rounds, halved
Shredded lettuce

Combine rice, tuna, carrots, bell pepper, water chestnuts, and onion in large bowl. Add yogurt, lemon pepper, salt and pepper. Toss to combine ingredients. Chill at least one hour. Serve in pita bread with lettuce. Makes 6 servings.

HAWAIIAN PORK

15¼ -ounce pineapple tidbits, drained, reserve juice
¼ cup cider vinegar
¼ cup honey
2 tablespoons low-sodium soy sauce
1 tablespoon cornstarch
½ teaspoon ground ginger
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 pound boneless pork chops, cut into ¼ -inch strips
2 cups chopped celery
1 medium onion, chopped
1 medium-size red bell pepper, chopped
½ cup unsalted cashews
6 cups hot cooked rice

Combine reserved pinapple juice, vinegar, honey, soy sauce, cornstarch, and ginger in small bowl; set aside. Heat oil in large skillet or wok over medium-high heat until hot. Add pork; cook 5 to 7 minutes, stirring until brown. Add celery, onion, and bell pepper; cook 3 to 5 minutes more or until vegetables are crisp-tender. Add reserved pineapple juice mixture and pineapple. Cook, stirring until sauce thickens, about one minute. Remove from heat, stir in cashews. Serve over hot rice. Makes 6 servings.

ANSWER — Audrey Minns, Geneva, N.Y., wanted a recipe for sauerkraut that is fermented then canned in quart jars. Thanks to Norma Imes for sending a recipe.

Homemade Sauerkraut

You will need roughly 5 pounds cabbage for every gallon of your crock. For instance, a 10-gallon crock would need about 50 pounds of cabbage.

Quarter cabbage and shred finely. Place 5 pounds shredded cabbage and 3½ tablespoons pickling salt in large pan. Mix well with hands. Pack gently in large crock, using a potato masher to press it down. Repeat above procedure until crock is filled to within 5-inches from top.

Press cabbage down firmly with potato masher to extract enough juice to cover. Cover with clean cloth. Place a plate on top and weight it down with a jar filled with water.

Keep crock at 65 degrees to ferment. Check kraut daily. Remove scum as it forms. Wash and scald cloth often to keep it free from scum and mold. Fermentation will be complete in 10 to 12 days. (If no bubbles rise, fermentation has ended).

Pack in hot, sterilized jars to within 1-inch from top. Add enough juice to cover. If you need more juice, make a weak brine by combining 2 tablespoons salt and 1 quart water. Cover; screw band tight. Process in boiling water bath 15 minutes. Fifty pounds of sauerkraut makes about 15 quarts.

Apple Dumpling Fest

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — During autumn in the 1700s Pennsylvania German friends and neighbors gathered to share in the work and rewards of a bountiful harvest. Today the tradition continues at the historic Ephrata Cloister's annual Apple Dumpling Festival, October 12. The first of the fresh hot homemade dumplings come out of the oven at 10:00 a.m. and the gathering continues until the last dumpling is sold.

Proceeds from the Apple Dumpling Festival support the "Back to the Cloister Fund," an endowment used to purchased original 18th century artifacts created at the German religious community.

Right now the historic site has the opportunity to acquire a manuscript music hymnal created in the mid-1700s. A wonderfully-illustrated book in pristine condition, the manuscript is one of the few remaining in private ownership. Limited edition prints of two illustrations from the book will be available for contributions to the "Back to the Cloister Fund" of $18 for one print or $32 for the pair.

Ephrata Cloister, founded in 1732, is one of America's earliest communal societies. Gathered in unique medievel style Germanic buildings the community consisted of celibate Brothers and Sisters, and a married congregation of families. At the zenith of the community in the 1740s and 1750s, about 300 members worked and worshiped at the Cloister. The lifestyle of celibate members was characterized by severe discipline and self-denial of comfort. They became known for their music, calligraphy and printing. Following the death of the last celibate member in 1814 the married congregation formed the German Seventh-Day Baptist Church. Members continued to live at worship at the Cloister until 1934. In 1941 the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania acquired the historic site and began a program of restoration and interpretation. Today, with the assistance of the Ephrata Cloister Associates, a nonprofit support group, the nine original buildings are part of a 25-acre complex open for visitors each day.

Ephrata Cloister is located in the borough of Ephrata, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania on Route 322 at the intersection with Route 272. The historic site is open Monday through Saturday from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Sunday from noon to 5:00. Guided tours present three of the historic buildings to visitors with additional structures open for self-guided visits. A new family admission rate allows all members of a household to visit the site for one low price. For more information about Ephrata Cloister and the Apple Dumpling Festival call (717) 733-6600.

ANSWER — A reader wanted a recipe for cucumber relish. Thanks to Laura Horst, Lebanon; Jean Bryant, Mt. Airy, Md., and others for sending recipes.

Cucumber Relish

1 peck large cucumbers
6 large onions
6 colored peppers, if desired
3 cups sugar
⅓ cup salt
1 tablespoon celery seed
2 tablespoons mustard seed
3 cups vinegar

Pare and grind vegetables. Sprinkle salt over mixture and let stand one hour. Drain. Combine sugar, spices, and vinegar. Pour over vegetables. Cook slowly for 25 minutes. Pour into jars and seal.

ANSWER — Mary Ann Lutz, Bethel, wanted a funnel cake recipe. Thanks to Joyce Thompson, Coatesville, for sending a recipe that she got at the Cowtown Rodeo in New Jersey.

Funnel Cake Batter

4 cups flour
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking soda
3 eggs
2⅔ cups milk

Mix together all ingredients with wire whip. Pour through a funnel into hot oil until edges brown, then turn over until browned. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar. Makes approximately 10 to 12 funnel cakes.

Four-Legged Stars Of Children's Books Spring To Life

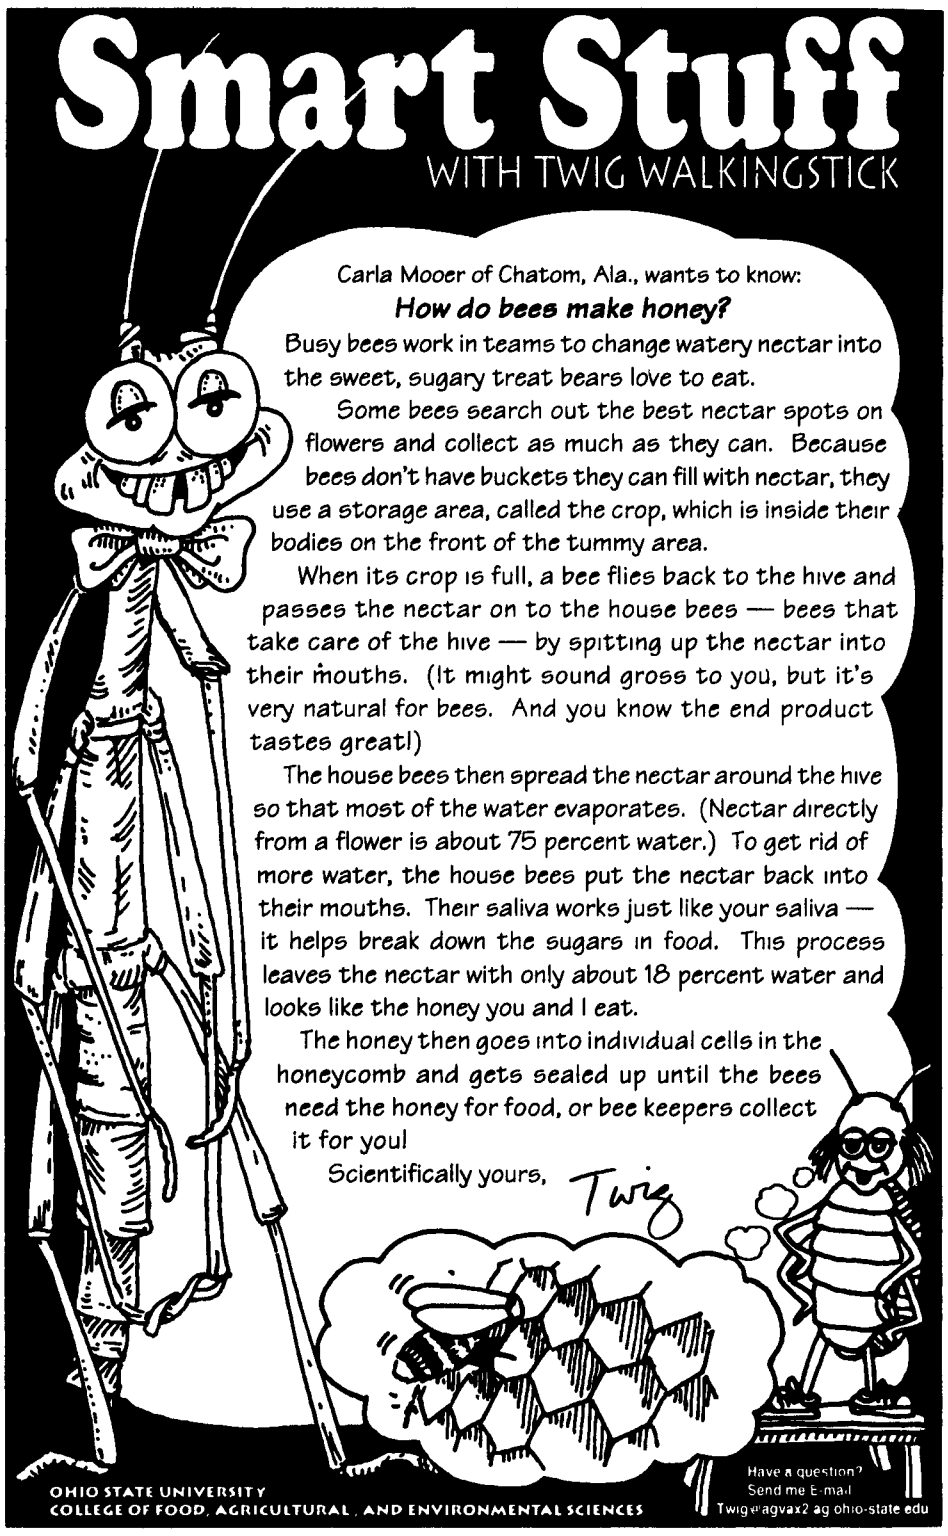
HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Children and adults who grew up loving the stories of Black Beauty and Misty of Chincoteague will have the rare opportunity to meet the real-life incarnations of the famous and beloved equines at the Pennsylania National Horse Show at the State Farm Show Arena in Harrisburg.

Black Beauty, the American Quarter Horse who starred in the children's movie, will perform at the Pennsylvania National Horse Show nightly from Wednesday, October 16 through Saturday, October 20. Black Beauty will perform "at liberty" — without a rider or tack — responding only to trainer Rex Peteron's hand and voice signals. The horse rears, bows, sits up, lays down, rolls over, and nods his head on cue, among other tricks. He will also be available at times to meet fans in the stabling area on the lower level of the Farm Show Arena. Black Beauty's trainer, Rex Peterson, who trains this horse and others for television and the movies, and his family will be on hand to answer questions and sign autographs.

On Family Night, Friday, October 18, Misty II, a granddaughter of the original Misty of Chincoteague made famous by author Marguerite Henry, will be stabled next to Black Beauty and available to meet young horse lovers. Misty II is a Chincoteague pony, a breed of wild ponies found on Assateague Island, Va. Each July, the wild ponies are rounded up and swum through the Chincoteague Inlet to Chincoteague, Va., where the foals are auctioned to keep the herd a managable size. Henry's classic children's book, "Misty of Chincoteague," is the story of one of the foals, born on the island in the 1940s and raised by the Beebe family. Misty II is the only descendent of her famous granddam to inherit the distinctive silhouette of the United States Misty carried on her flank. Misty II, who now lives in Manheim, Lancaster County, between appearances at national equestrian events, will shake hands with and give "hoofgraphs" to spectators.

One childe is admitted free with each paying adult on Family Night, Friday, October 18. In addition to seeing Black Beauty perform and meeting Misty II, children can enjoy free pony rides. The evening's program features competition for jumpers, saddlebreds, roadsters and sidesaddle riders and terrier races, a fast-paced event in which tiny Jack Russell terriers race over fences and into a simulated fox's lair.

General admission tickets for the Pennsylvania National Horse Show, which runs October 10 to 19, are $6 for adults, $4 for children ages 12 and under. On Family Night, Friday, October 18, one child is admitted free with each paying adult. On Saturday night, October 19, all tickets are $6. Reserved seating is available. For more information, or to reserve tickets, phone (717) 975-3677.



Smart Stuff
WITH TWIG WALKINGSTICK
Carla Mooer of Chatom, Ala., wants to know:
How do bees make honey?
Busy bees work in teams to change watery nectar into the sweet, sugary treat bears love to eat.
Some bees search out the best nectar spots on flowers and collect as much as they can. Because bees don't have buckets they can fill with nectar, they use a storage area, called the crop, which is inside their bodies on the front of the tummy area.
When its crop is full, a bee flies back to the hive and passes the nectar on to the house bees — bees that take care of the hive — by spitting up the nectar into their mouths. (It might sound gross to you, but it's very natural for bees. And you know the end product tastes great!)
The house bees then spread the nectar around the hive so that most of the water evaporates. (Nectar directly from a flower is about 75 percent water.) To get rid of more water, the house bees put the nectar back into their mouths. Their saliva works just like your saliva — it helps break down the sugars in food. This process leaves the nectar with only about 18 percent water and looks like the honey you and I eat.
The honey then goes into individual cells in the honeycomb and gets sealed up until the bees need the honey for food, or bee keepers collect it for you!
Scientifically yours, Twig

Who's Who At Cambria Fair

LORETTA GOLDEN
Cambria Co. Correspondent

EBENSBURG (Cambria Co.) — The 105th Cambria County Fair opened Sunday, September 1, and ran through September 7. Opening day temperature was in the 80s and weather was "picture-perfect" for the variety of available activities.

As usual, the fair offered "something for everyone." Amusement rides operated on the midway and a variety of entertainment was available each evening at the grandstand. These included country music shows, an auto thrill show, and the ever-popular demolition derby. Local food vendors look forward to this week and cater to a variety of palates. The exhibit buildings were full of business displays and just by strolling through the aisles one can learn a good bit about the businesses and services available to area residents.

The agriculture buildings held a variety of home-canned goods, baked goods, fresh vegetables and other farm products, flowers and horticulture displays, photography and arts and crafts displays, handcrafted clothing, afghans, etc. These items were entered by young and old, county and non-county residents, all in hopes of winning that special blue ribbon.

No fair would be complete without the animal barns — probably one of the most popular places at the fairgrounds. It is here that some city dwellers have their first experience with live animals.

4-H'ers and others were busy all week cleaning stalls and pens, and grooming their animals in preparation for the competitions and sales held during this week.

Another highlight of the week was the 4-H "Hay-Stacking Contest." This was a timed team event designed as a "fun" activity for the entire family. The purpose of this contest is to provide a fun activity which attempts to keep alive the tradition of handling small square bales.

Susan Allerton traveled all the way from Glenshaw, near Pittsburgh, with a variety of entries sewn and crafted by herself and other family members. She has entered competitions at various fairs since she was 12 yeas old and explained that it is "in her blood." She thoroughly enjoys the summer "fair circuit" and besides being a fun activity for her family, over the years it has provided the children with the opportunity to learn some valuable skills.

Seventy-six-year-old, Doris Schermerhorn, of Seward RD, Indiana County, was a part of the fair as a 4-H'er during her teen-age years. Here she is showing off a jar of whole tomatoes and a jar of her special baby kosher dills. Last year she entered approximately 20 items and won 18 ribbons.

Nancy Cruley, her daughter, Christie Greene, and granddaughter, Alexandra, of Ebensburg display Nancy's entry of her "angel" afghan. Nancy explained that the afghan took approximately three months to complete and that she always tries to enter unique items.

Poland No Longer Considered Foreign Country By 4-H Exchange Team

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — A different culture did not prevent close bonding of friendships between four county 4-H'ers and their Polish peers.

This summer, four county 4-H members and three 4-H leaders spent three weeks in Poland as part of an exchange of ideas at the first Polish International 4-H Camp held in Swornegacie.

"The first night 4-H members from Poland, Hungary, Latvia, and the U.S. each huddled in their own little groups, but by the second day, the groups were so interspersed that you couldn't tell who came from where," said Connie Rutt, who led the Polish exchange trip.

It was Rutt's fourth trip to Poland. For her, it was exciting to see the growth of the 4-H program that she helped established in the previously Communist-controlled country. But, for the four county 4-H members, this visit was their first visit outside the states, although 11 Polish youth did spend a few weeks here last summer.

"I was a bit leary," said 17-year-old Gerald Boyd, son of Kerry and Deb Boyd of Ephrata. "But it turned out much better than I expected."

Gerald was particularly impressed by the family relationships in Poland.

"Families are much more important in Poland than here," he said. "Most families have only two children, but their grandparents live in the same house and everyone gets along."

Each 4-H member stayed with a different Polish family. Neil Wenger, the 17-year-old son of Nelson and Alma Wenger from Manheim, stayed on a farm and pitched in with the farm chores. Because Neil lives on a dairy farm he couldn't help but compare the differences in agricultural practices.

One of the most glaring differences is the way milk is handled. In Poland, the milk sat without refrigeration in the barn for two days. Some was then bought in, boiled, cooled down, and the family members drank it hot or warm. The leftover milk was set at the end of the lane — again without refrigeration — and later picked up (supposedly) by a milk processor.

Needless to say, the Americans did not desire to drink milk, but they did find much of the food to their liking.

"We ate constantly," said Amanda Dagen, daughter of Ed and Tina Dagen.

Mandy, as she prefers to be called, said that sauerkraut and potatoes in addition to other foods were served every day in the home in which she stayed. Unlike the other members, Mandy was offered Coco Puffs and cornflakes, which she declined in favor of a typical Polish breakfast that included cheese, bread, cucumbers, and tomatoes. She was constantly offered warm Coke, hot tea, and some type of fruit drink.

But the most glaring difference between the teens, Mandy said, was their lack of fashion consciousness.

"They didn't seem to be concerned with wearing plaids, flowered shirts or whatever together. And it was common for them to wear the same clothes several days in a row," Mandy said.

She suspects that the lack of money in Poland accounts for the lackadaisical attitude about clothing.

Feeling guilty about the many clothes packed into her suitcase, Mandy didn't wear all that she had packed. But when one of the Polish teens saw Mandy's packed suitcase, she kept exclaiming, "So many clothes . . . so many clothes . . . ."

"When I left, I gave my jeans shirt to the girl that I stayed with and she seemed really proud of it," Mandy said.

The team did examine the prices for clothing in Polish stores and discovered that a pair of Levi jeans cost about $100 in American money — a prohibitive amount for the Polish economy.

The county teens were also impressed with how much the Polish teens knew about American government.

"They knew more than we did," she said.

"The pride in being Polish impressed me," Neil said. "The people really hold on to their history. Everything is rebuilt like it was before it was destroyed by the Communists."

Since Connie's first visit to Poland, she said that there has been lots of rebuilding. She is impressed that 33 out of 49 provinces have established a 4-H program. At this point, the 4-H program is government-run. Rutt said her message to them is that they must get volunteers to help with the program. But volunteerism is greeted with skepticism. Because of the previous Communist control, Polish people are very skeptical of ulterior motives and can't fathom why people would volunteer unless they have a hidden agenda.

The smallness of Polish cars caused a problem for Gerald, who had a difficult time fitting his 6-foot 2-inch frame into the cars, but it was the speed that terrified Mandy.

While most Polish drive fast and erradically, it seemed Mandy's host drove the fastest at an average of 85 mph.

She wanted to wear a seat belt but her host family insisted she not wear one because it wasn't required while riding in the back seat. Nonetheless, Mandy tried to dig one out from where it was hidden in the crevices but couldn't.

Amy Strickler, daughter of Sam and Dottie Strickler of Quarryville, celebrated her 16th birthday while in Poland. She was surprised and delighted with a Polish birthday cake made with Jell-O, peach-

with an attitude
New Models 615, 616 and 617

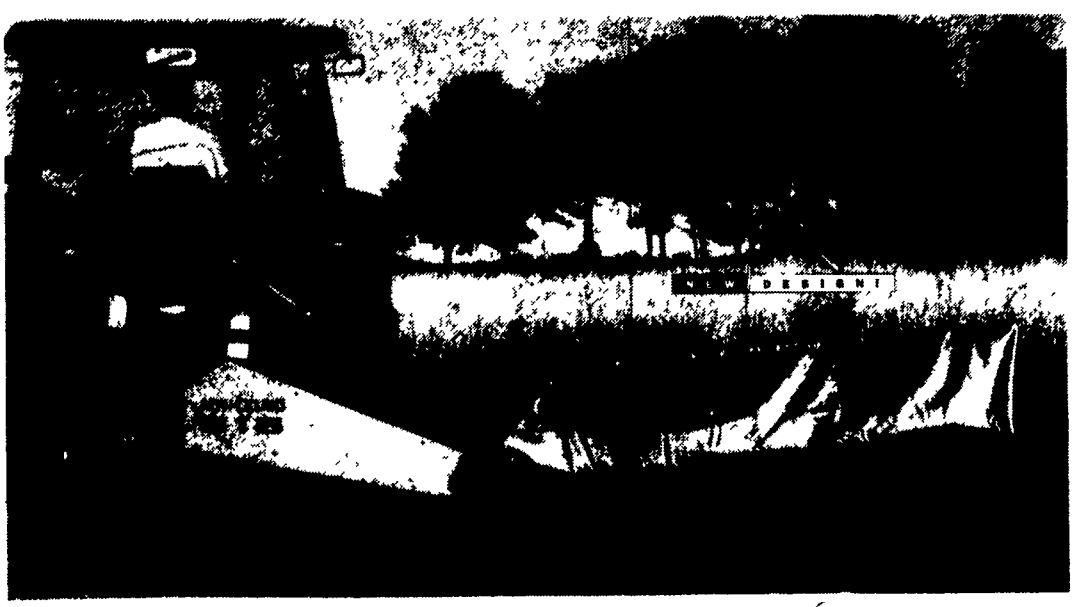
When difficult crop conditions are the name of the game, New Holland disc mowers are designed to play tough. Forget about fire ant hills, gopher mounds and thick, wet grasses – they're no match for the New Holland design.

Travel as fast as ground conditions will allow with the new five-six and seven-disc modular cutter-bars. They breeze through the toughest conditions with non-stop, trouble-free cutting for clean, even cut in less time.

Tough-with a quiet side. New Holland disc mowers are redesigned for quieter operation. They're tough on crops, but easy on you.

Strength of design

The New Holland design uses small-diameter, steep-profile discs that act as a "natural lifter" for your crop. Their special shape improves crop flow, reduces streaking, and leaves you with a fluffier swath for improved drying. Smoother profile discs provide better wear and long life. Unlike competitive design, New Holland discs don't have a ribbed surface to wear out. Discs are 3/16" thick and heat-treated for added strength and impact resistance.



What's Happening At Maryland State Fair?

LOIS SZYMANSKI
Maryland Correspondent

TIMONIUM, Md. — Some came to the Maryland State Fairgrounds in Timonium to work. Others came for fun! But everyone who came to the fair found that it was the place to be from August 24 to September 2!

5. Some parts of the fair had a lot of bull! This 2,300-pound one, Dutchland Fancy Chap came with his owner Carl Holland from Dutchland Acres in Clarksburg, Maryland to the Maryland State Fair, where they won Grand Champion Shorthorn Bull!

In the rabbit barn, Larry Thompson shows a young visitor, Jennifer Mather, the proper way to pose a pair of Californian Rabbits for show. Jennifer had already found the face painting booth!

The Department of Parks and Natural Resources display was a big attraction. With plants, and snakes, birds and other wildlife, and even a rescue horse to meet, kids came in droves to see.

Michael Mejza brought his daughter Caolinn to the fair to see a cow. Here, she meets a Holstein close up.

The fair wasn't all fun and games. It was a lot of hard work, but here we see that there were fun and games, too!

es, currants, and covered with a fruit glaze. Her birthday bash included the Polish youth singing Happy Birthday in English and a dance.

Amy was impressed by the pretty woodwork in the generally modestly built homes and by the unwasted space. Homes, she said, are much smaller in Poland than here.

Two years ago, 4-H leaders Vonnie and Ralph McLaughlin kept a Polish teen in their home. This time, the couple stayed in her home.

"The country was much more beautiful than I expected. There were beautiful wildflowers," Vonnie said. But it was the hospitality of the Polish people that made their visit special. So special, in fact, that her husband would like to move there permanently.

"It's a slower pace," he said of the most attractive drawing card for him. As an American, McLaughlin would not be allowed to purchase a Polish farm unless he had only 49 percent interest in it.

McLaughlin was happy to meet beekeepers since he keeps bees also. He found they have similar practices although their hives are kept in a row instead of stacked. They aslo have the same problems with mites as here.

Unlike some of Rutt's previous visits, this one was for an exchange of ideas rather than teaching.

"We went to add to, not to run the program," Rutt said of their presence at the international 4-H camp.

One evening, each of the four different countries represented at the 4-H camp were required to have a 45-minute program that portrayed their country.

The Americans taught the other youth the Hokey Pokey and Country Line dancing.

Neil, who shared some of his country music collection with the teen with whom he stayed, said that the Polish teen told him, "That music is for people with no brains."

Although classical music has more appreciation in Poland, most of the youth enjoyed country music and wanted to copy tapes. Although Polish youth taking piano lessons are taught classical music, they also enjoy what they call disco music or what Americans call pop rock.

Drugs and violence do not seem to be a problem among the youth.

According to the countians, Polish teens don't have money to buy drugs, but they do smoke because cigarettes are cheap there.

Vonnie, who is a school teacher, visited some of the schools although they were not in session.

"The foundations of education seem strong but there are no frills and no extracurricular activities," she said.

The concensus of the group was that Polish students take their education much more seriously than American students. They need to decide their vocational study by the age of 15 at least, and if they have a change of interest later, it is extremely difficult and rare to switch courses of studies.

All the county participants who traveled to Poland were responsible to raise their own funds for the trip. They worked together to hold garage sales and food sales. One member even collected scrap metal to resell. Some contacted area businesses who contributed some money for the exchange.

The group visited many Polish towns. The wrapped up their stay by visiting Auschwitz, a German concentration camp.

"In school we studied about the war and it was sad, but we'd forgotten it. After visiting the site and hearing the facts — it's something we will never forget," Neil said.

It was a somber ending for an otherwise happy visit, but one that the youth think everyone should have.

"We were very quiet on the way home — thinking . . . ." Neil said.

Now, the county 4-H'ers no longer view Poland as a foreign country. To them — they are friends.

"We'll remember it forever," Gerald said.

Book Turns Novices Into Home Repair Pros

MAPLEWOOD, N.J. — Leaking faucets, broken window panes, and cracked walls are just a few of the common problems that try the patience and pocketbooks of homeowners and renters. Most of these problems are too small to justify calling a contractor. So they remain undone and a constant source of inconvenience and irritation.

However, a new book by a nonprofit consumer group, shows that most of these repairs are easier than they appear to be and within the ability of almost anyone. The book presumes the reader has no knowledge at all about doing home repairs. It provides simple step-by-step, clear, precise directions, with hundreds of illustrations that can make a person who considers himself "all thumbs" into a competent do-it-yourselfer. It is the next best thing to having an in-person expert going through the repair with you.

For those who are novices, the book starts with pictures of a tool, nail, and screw necessary and an explanation of how and when they are used.

What to look for in diagnosing a repair problem, the tools and particular materials you'll need to fix it and how to go about it all are simply stated with easy-to-understand drawings.

This book will definitely save you money on repair bills. In fact, many of these jobs can be done in less time than it requires to locate a competent repairman willing to do the work.

Small Home Repairs Made Easy" can be obtained by sending $5.95 plus $1.50 for postage and handling to Consumer Education, 1980 Springfield Ave. Maplewood, N.J. 07040.

You ask You answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know whom to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

There's no need to send a SASE. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

QUESTION — L. Horning, Lebanon, would like to know where she can purchase two-piece lids, smaller than regular size, 2¼ -inches wide, that Ball used to make.

QUESTION — Joe Bohnert, Morris, needs a drive unit for an IH Electrall generator or at least he needs to talk with someone who has one. Call (717) 324-2431 during the day or (717) 353-7982 in the evening.

QUESTION — David King, Paradise, would like to purchase a butter mold. Call him at (717) 442-5272.

QUESTION — J.R. Peppler, Glen Mills, would like to find a source for ram horns. He wants to make shepherd's crooks from them as they do in England. The horn is softened and bent into the top end.

QUESTION — Jack Gaul, Pipersville, would like to know where to get information on a Standard Monarch garden tractor.

QUESTION — Louise Graybeal, Renick, W.Va., would like to purchase an electric milker for one milch cow.

ANSWER — Mrs. Shirk, Narvon, wanted a set of hard-covered "Uncle Arthur's Bedtime Stories." Thanks to the reader who provided the set.

ANSWER — Richard Roesing, Beach Lake, wanted to know where to find clip clothes pins, which are spring type clothespins with metal clips. Thanks to Mrs. A.D. MacCallum, New Hartford, N.Y., who writes that the manufacturer's name for the ones (called Penley Klose-Klips) she puchased is Penley Brothers, West Paris, Maine, 04289.

ANSWER — Roman Peters, Port Trevorton, wanted to know where to purchase miniature horseshoes that are approximately 1½ -2-inch in width, measured from the outer edges. Thanks to Janet MacCallum, West Paris, Maine, who suggests he write to Empire State Miniature Horse Assoc., 8885 Gallagher Rd., Hammondsport, N.Y. 14840 or call (607) 868-3938.

ANSWER — Evan Weidman, Westfield, writes that he has a cast iron sink with enamel inside. It is 13 inches deep, 15 inches wide, and 19 inches long. He would like to know if these sinks are made today and if American Standard or Radiator Standard of Baltimore are still in business. Doyle Freeman of Lebanon writes that American Standard is still in business and its products can be purchaed through wholesale plumbing supply houses and some hardware stores.

ANSWER — Gregg Wayson, 1421 Governor Bridge Rd., Davidsonville, Md. 21035, wanted to find an owner's and a repair manual for a NH 380 2-row forage cutter. Doyle Freeman, Lebanon, writes that he should contact the main office at the New Holland plant, (717) 355-1121.

ANSWER — Mabel Shank, Swanton, Md., wanted to know where you can buy a mattress and springs for a three-quarter bed, which is an antique. Edward Martin, New Holland, writes that his company makes custom size mattress foundations. Contact him at Southside Woodcraft (717) 733-8948.

Someone from Line Creek, Route 2, Box 115, Mt. Pleasant Mills, Pa. 17853, writes that they can order any size new mattress and springs. Give exact measurements of the bed. State whether you want a firm or soft mattress, a top quality or a good one that is less expensive. Standard sizes are in stock.

Charles Sprig, Gettysburg, writes that he has a set although it isn't a matched set. The spring is new with the plastic covering on it. The mattress is in good used condition. Call (717) 334-5309.

ANSWER — Charlie Collins, Pine City, N.Y., has a large flock of specialized birds for which he needs a source for buying economically priced Sevin Dust to control poultry lice and mites. Edward Martin, New Holland, writes that it is available in bulk amounts from Martin's Ag, New Holland, (717) 445-7561.

ANSWER — Lucas William, Warfordsburg, wanted the name of a product to keep the table of a planer from rusting and not form a buildup or need removing to use the planer. Thanks to Edward Martin, New Holland, who writes that Boston Paste Wax will not build up nor affect the wod when staining. He did not specify where it can be purchased.

ANSWER — A New York reader wanted instructions for making non-edible gingerbread men ornaments that look like gingerbread men cookies not like those made from cinnamon and applesauce. Thanks to Agnes Kerr for sending two different recipes for the non-edible dough.

Baked Ornaments

2 cups flour
½ cup salt
¾ cup water

Mix together flour and salt, add water slowly, mixing as you pour. Knead dough 5-7 minutes. Roll out dough on lightly floured surface, ¼ -inch thick. Cut with cookie cutter or handmade patterns with a sharp knife. Put a hole in top of each for hanging before baking. Bake at 300-325 degrees until hard, but not brown (about 12 minutes). Paint or brush with paste using glitter.

Christmas Ornaments

2 cups baking soda
1 cup cornstarch
1¼ cups cold water

Mix dry ingredients in a saucepan and add water. Stir constantly while cooking over medium heat. When the mixture is the consistency of wet mashed potatoes, turn out on a plate and cover with a damp cloth.

When the clay is cool, knead like dough until smooth. Seal unused portions in a plastic bag and keep in the refrigerator.

Use cookie cutters or hands to shape dough. Insert wire in the soft clay for hanging. Let harden overnight. Drying time can be shortened by heating in preheated 250 degree oven 15 minutes. If not fully dry, continue to heat in 5 minute increments.

If desired, paint pieces after they have hardened with water colors, poster paints, nail polish or colored felt tip pens. Coat painted pieces with clear varnish or clear nail polish so they'll last for years.

MICHAEL P. WEAVER AUCTIONEER

THE PETER RENZETTI COLLECTION
OF ARCHITECTURAL & FURNITURE HARDWARE & ANTIQUES TO BE SOLD AT PUBLIC AUCTION ON
FRI. & SAT, SEPT. 27 & 28
AT 4 PM & 9 AM RESPECTIVELY

For over 25 years Pete Renzetti scoured the Pennsylvania country side searching for auctions, flea markets, and yard sales for early hand wrought iron and brass hardware, forming one of the finest study collections in private hands The focus of Pete's creative interest has shifted from the repair and recreation of 18th century metalwork to the design and construction of custom ironwork in the tradition of the famous Samuel Yellin. This work has consumed Pete's energy and shop space at the 18th c Arden Forge buildings which house his business & collection.

This offering of over 10,000 items will be sold by the piece & by the lot It is an unparalleled opportunity for anyone restoring an early building, dealers in early iron & hardware, or an individual who simply wants decorative wall hangings. Early mantle, paneling, 7 chimney cupboards, 30 to 40 early doors, pr. 7' iron gates, W.T Allen & Co , London, other iron gates, horse weathervane, sections of early cast iron pump handles, other CI & wood architectural antiques will also be sold Other architectural antiques will also be sold. A typed listing will be available by early September A limited number of photographs of certain items will also be available by mail Items may be viewed on Friday, September 17th from 8 a.m.

OVER 60 9' 19TH C. CI PHILADELPHIA STREET LAMPS WILL ALSO BE OFFERED.

MANURE ODORS: THEIR NATURE

As swine operations continue to grow larger, so do the frequency of complaints associated with odor.

We are making steady progress in solving odor problems. Also, producers are taking the complaints more seriously and interacting with the community to a greater extent than they have in the past.

This article will focus on the nature of odor. Next week I'll address odor control methods.

The Process Of Smell

Every odorant has a threshold concentration above which sensory cells in the nose (olfactory) are stimulated.

For livestock odors, the situation is complicated by the presence of many compounds.

So far, no single compound has been found to be a good predictor of odor quality.

The Perception Of Smell

In a report from the North Carolina State University Swine Odor Task Force, the following conditions seem to control our perception of odor:

- Control. We can cope with an objectionable odor more effectively if we believe can do something about it. When facilities are erected without resident's consent, it tends to make the odors more offensive.
- Understanding. People can often tolerate the odor problem more easily if they understand how a swine operation functions.
- Context. Some people may prefer the odors from horses or cows because they associate pigs with filthy conditions. Also, attempting to mask the odor may amplify the perception that odor exists.
- Exposure. Long-term exposure to an odor may decrease our awareness of it. This may explain why swine producers have difficulty understanding why neighbors are upset about odor.

Compounds Present In Manure Odor

Sixty organic compounds have been identified in swine house air by gas chromatography and mass spectrometry (Hammond et al., 1974).

Hammond et al. (1979) quantified 19 volatile compounds in the dust from swine buildings and suggested that those responsible for the characteristic smell included acetic, propionic, butyric, phenylacetic, and 3-phenyl acetic acids, as well as methyl phenol and ethyl phenol.

In recent studies at Penn State, the most common compounds we have found in hog house air include organic acids (acetic, propanoic, and butanoic), alcohols (ethanol, propanol, and isopropanol), aromatic-ring compounds (methyl phenol and ethyl phenol), and sulfur compounds (dimethyl sulfide and dimethyl disulfide).

Measurement Of Odor Intensity

Because of the ease of measurement, ammonia and hydrogen sulfide have been widely used as indicators of odor. Unfortunately these two compounds provide an incomplete assessment.

Ammonia, while providing a distinct odor, is not necessarily objectionable, especially at low concentrations. Hydrogen sulfide, or rotten egg gas, is objectionable and even lethal at high concentrations. However, the concentration is typically low unless the manure is agitated (Patni and Clarke, 1990).

Measurement of odor is possible by subjective methods (such as trained panels) or by objective analytical technology. The most common subjective method uses swatches of cotton cloth to capture and store odors from the field. The fabric pieces can then be sealed in plastic bags and transported to a clean room for evaluation by odor panelists. The panelists can use the swatches to identify or match odors, and they can also compare swatches for odor intensity (Miner, 1982).

A slightly different subjective method developed by Dwaine Bundy from Iowa State University pumps clean air to panelists, while gradually increasing the concentration of odorous air. When the panel detects the odor, the threshold has been reached.

To measure odors objectively, we often use an instrument called the gas chromatograph. For this system, air in the field is pumped through glass tubes that contain an adsorbent. The odorous compounds remain trapped on the adsorbent until the tube is returned to the lab and desorbed by a solvent or heating. The compounds released from the tube are then separated by pumping them through a chromatography column. Each compound will emerge from the column, generally at a unique time, which provides a means for identification.

A more precise identification method after separation by chromatography is to pass the compounds through a mass spectrometer for identification. This is the system used at Penn State in our odor research.

Factors Affecting Odor Production

The actual sources of odor include the livestock facility, the manure storage area, and the application of manure.

The application of manure is considered the most intense odor generator, but this activity is intermittent. The manure storage area and facility generate odor continuously and can lead to heated complaints when facilities are large.

Odorous compounds are generated by the decomposition of manure. The wastes are in an anaerobic state when excreted and remain anaerobic unless oxygen is introduced into the system.

Manure normally has a pH of 6.5-7.0 (Donham et al., 1985). At pH's of 4 to 5, amino acid decarboxylation occurs, leading to the release of odorous amines and sulfur compounds (Taiganides, 1992). At high pH's, hydrogen sulfide release is minimized, but the release of ammonia and organic acids is enhanced. The generation of most odor components also is increased at higher temperatures.

Odorous gases are transported by the wind. The worst climatic condition for odor is low wind speed and a temperature inversion. This allows the odorous compounds to travel in a laminar flow pattern in concentrations that may not change over significant distances. High wind speeds and low humidity increase turbulence which help to dilute odorous compounds with clean air.

Summary

Manure odors are generated by the anaerobic decomposition of wastes. The odors are carried as aerosols and on dust particles downwind from the livestock enterprise.

People have less tolerance for odors when they have little control or understanding of the odor. The most common odor quantification method involves a trained panel, however progress is being made with analytical systems.

Next week, we'll look at promising odor control methods.

Dauphin 4-H Fair Displays Project Year

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The 16th Annual Dauphin County 4-H Fair was held Aug. 7-10 here at the Farm Show Complex.

This annual event is the culmination of the project year for the nearly 2,200 members enrolled in 4-H in Dauphin County. At the 4-H Fair, each member has a chance to display what he or she learned and have their display evaluated. Awards are given to the members according to the quality of their exhibit.

This year about 350 members exhibited such diverse projects as model horses, needlework, livestock, and hamsters.

Following is a list of show placings.

Lehigh Valley Horse Holds Meeting

The Lehigh Valley Horse Council will hold a regular meeting and lecture on Monday, Sept. 30.

The topic for the evening is Tennessee walking horses presented by the Klein family.

The meeting will be held at Back Acres At Sandy Mount in New Tripoli at 7:30 p.m. The public is welcome to this free lecture and meeting.

The Lehigh Valley Horse Council was formed in 1980 as an aid to the horse owners of the Lehigh Valley and surrounding areas.

Producers Need Innovation, Animal Drug Availability Act

INDIANAPOLIS (Ind.) — Competing on the global playing field of producing animal protein requires innovation. That's the message shared by Dr. Brendan Fox, President of Elanco Animal Health, as he addressed cattle veterinarians and nutritionists at recent Elanco Technical Seminars in Amarillo, Texas, and Denver, Colo.

"Globalization and instant communication mean ideas flow quickly. The competition for animal agriculture becomes the best producers in the world, not just those next door. With the world's best as the yardstick, efficiency and innovation are necessary," Fox said.

However, today's regulatory environment has made it difficult for companies to bring innovative products to the market ot help U.S. producers best utilize their resources for animal production. "It has become harder and harder for companies to bring forward products and continue to invest in research and development dollars due to the current cumbersome approval process," Fox said.

Yet, he notes, complaining about the problem does not help improve the situation. "At Elanco, our attitude is that we want to get involved with fixing the system because we are committed to the future of developing new products," Fox said. Elanco has been very involved in forwarding the Animal Drug Availability Act (S.773, H.R.2508), which can bring tangible improvement to the drug approval process.

"The Animal Drug Availability Act that we hope will be going through Congress in September is crucial to the future of animal health companies being able to bring producers the products they need to compete globally," Fox said.

It is not too late to lend your support to this bill which will streamline the drug approval process while ensuring the U.S. provides the world's safest food supply. Contacting your representatives in both the House and Senate can help drive home the importance of having new tools for animal agriculture. For more information on the bill or its impact on animal health, call Elanco's Washington office at (202) 434-1036.

NAAEC Finalizes Speaker Program

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The table is set for the North American Agricultural Equipment Conference (NAAEC), and attendees will find a complete menu of speakers at the second annual conference.

The two-day event will be held Nov. 2-3 in Georgia at the Atlanta Marriott Marquis Hotel.

The conference, which brings the equipment industry together under one roof, will kickoff Saturday, Nov. 2, with a keynote address from former White House chief of staff, John Sununu. The former governor of New Hampshire is now one of the co-hosts of "Crossfire," a popular news program on CNN. He'll offer commentary on what to expect from Washington.

Saturday's luncheon address will feature Edward L. McMillan. The former CEO of Purina Mills is a 1995 winner of the prestigious Agri-Marketer of the Year Award from the National Agri-Marketing Association. His remarks will center on what's ahead for North America's grain growers.

Sunday, Nov. 3. will open with Jean-Pierre Rosso. As president and chief executive officer of Case Corporation, Rosso is the leader of a team that's breathed life into the equipment manufacturer. Business Week magazine says that he's one of North America's top executives.

The final conference speaker will be Dr. Bill Metcalf. He'll take the NAAEC participants on a high-tech walk through today's most talked about communications tool — the Internet. His presentation will include a live video conference from Atlanta to Washington, D.C. over the Net.

The NAAEC will also feature a line up of concurrent sessions to give conference-goers a chance to network with one another and gain valuable information about a variety of topics.

The sessions, scheduled for 2 p.m.-5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 2, will include presentations about manufacturer and dealer liability, effective use of technology in a business, learning about the tools of precision agriculture, the ins and outs of environmental management standards, and an analysis of competing globally.

For information, call AIMRA, Frank Bistrom,at (913)262-0317; EMI, Emmett Barker, at (312)321-1470; FEMA, Chris Schulte, (314)878-2304 or NAEDA, Beverly Reed, at (314)821-7220.

WARNING, ALL SILO OWNERS
WARNING! DETERIORATING CONCRETE FROM CORN JUICE!
It's important that you know your silo needs maintenance. Your silo will not fail when it's empty. Please check your silo for damage or check your insurance policy.
Think twice before filling with wet corn silage. Remember, this crop was grown with all kinds of rain, no two years are the same. Don't let the feed man tell you to put corn silage in the silo with higher moisture than normal. If you do, it will cost you more twisted stomach, health problems or damage to your silo.

B.U.C.S. OWNER'S REPORT #65

The Word Is Out!

The Jamesway Big Jim® B.U.C.S.™ (BOTTOM UNLOADING CONVERSION SYSTEM) is making big news!

Reports are coming in from B.U.C.S. owners everywhere. And they're reporting that their systems are delivering increased storage capacity, higher quality feed, faster unloading and reduced maintenance versus their old systems. Even in silos that had been retired! But don't take our word for it. Here's what your neighbor has to say about their B.U.C.S. System!

OWNER'S REPORT #65

"I saved money replacing my worn out bottom unloader with a Big Jim B.U.C.S. I like the trouble-free operation, auto fill, auto unload. The machine's distribution capacity and unloading volume is more than satisfactory."

Allen Reichley, Reichley Bros., Winfield, PA
Replaced Bottom Unloader in 20' x 60' Concrete Stave Silo.

See your Jamesway® Silo Unloader Expert now. Find out how you can breathe new life into your silos with a Big Jim B.U.C.S. System from Jamesway!

THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING YOUR FEED STORAGE!!

"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

"HOW WILL YOU BE STORING YOUR VALUABLE FORAGES AND GRAINS IN THE 21st CENTURY?"

It's not too early to begin planning your storage and feeding systems for the year 2000 and beyond.

As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency; this can have as great an influence on PROFIT as milk price changes.

Protect your valuable feeds from the elements... increase the efficiency of your feeds, your animals, and your labor.

You Rise Up Early When You Live On A Farm.
The Chores are all waiting as you enter the barn.
Soon you will leave and go into the house, your breakfast is waiting, made by your spouse.
Now before you go out, I have something to say.
I was cleaning upstairs, the other day. Some won't go up, others just fall down, you can feel the cold air blowing all around. Look at these windows, how easy to clean, a house full of these would fulfill my dream. Why don't we call them, they look so nice there is no charge for giving a price.

That's Right, Call Sensenig Today.

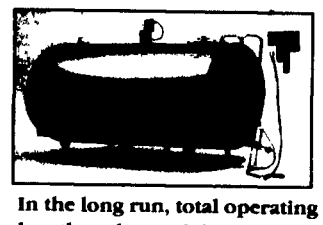
MUELLER DAIRY FARM EQUIPMENT

Scroll-Compressor Technology
New in 1994



You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!

Equipment costs not the only cost of cooling milk

In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31,000	$28,000
Cost of electricity @ .08 kW for 12,000 lbs milk ea for 10 years	$17,550	$22,850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48,550	$50,850
Savings	$ 2,300

LLAMAS LLAMAS LLAMAS
If you've been considering starting in llamas, or having a llama for a pet, why not stop in to see our herd.
Our young males start at $500, our weanling females at $2,500, our pregnant females at $3,500. A deposit will hold any of our crias (baby llamas) for you.
We prefer selling off the farm, rather than subjecting our animals to the stress of auctions.
All of our llamas are registered with the International Llama Registry. Some of the finest wool and blood lines can be found in our herd, including Otter Creek Harold.
All llamas can be halter led, and are gently trained by teenagers.

When Choosing a Hoof Trimmer consider the following:

Experience: A "cowman" with a lifetime of experience ranging from commercial set ups to All-American type cattle

Knowledge: of today's hoof care problems as well as corrective measures.

Dependability: a professional on time approach

Realistic: I can't trim 100 head a day, but I can do 20-25 a day correctly at competitive prices

I would like to help you improve your herd.

EBY BUILDS IT

M.H. Eby custom-builds aluminum truck bodies for the agri-transportation market. Nobody offers more sizes and options in:

- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths.
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24', landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'.
- LANDSCAPE BODIES - Lengths to 12', We'll build to your specs!

Let EBY custom build one for you.

For greater payload capacity, Eby's aluminum design is equal in strength to steel and up to 40% lighter. Our corrosion-resistant components never need painting. That means minimum maintenance, improved appearance and higher resale value.

Eby products have superior standard features. And we offer customer options for virtually any application. Agriculture is your business - building bodies to haul it is ours.

Case Introduces Next Generation Magnums

DENVER, Colo. — In Denver meetings attended by more than 3,000 Case IH customers and dealership personnel, Case Corporation unveiled its new 8900 Series Magnum® tractors, which feature increased horsepower, tighter turning, greater visibility, and exclusive end-of-row hitch functions.

"We've taken the line of tractors that's already beating the competition in showdown after showdown across North America, and we've set the benchmark even higher," said Roger Lewno, Case marketing specialist, tractors. "The 8900 Series continues to do what Magnum tractors have done since they were introduced in 1987 — set new standards for the industry by providing farmers unsurpassed performance and comfort."

The five new models — the 8910, 8920, 8930, 8940, and 8950 — are rated at 135, 155, 180, 205, and 225 PTO horsepower, respectively.

Power increases by up to 10 horsepower on the new models to give farmers more productivity to meet seasonal planting and tillage needs, leading to less time spent in the field and more time available for planning and other tasks.

The latest generation of Magnum® tractors — the 8900 Series — features increased horsepower, tighter turning, improved visibility, and exclusive hitch functions. The 8900 Series includes the 8910, 8920, 8930, 8940 and 8950, which are rated at 135, 155, 180, 205 and 225 PTO horsepower, respectively.

The additon of a wastegate turbocharger on every model provides more efficient power over a wider rpm range for up to 37 percent more boost compared with previous Magnum tractors.

To accommodate the increased horsepower, major improvements have been made to keep the 8.3-liter diesel engines running cool, Lewno said. A new grille screen — creating 106 percent more screen area — features vertical self-cleaning pleats for better air flow and less maintenance. Radiator capacity has been increased for better cooling and to enhance reliability, engine life and resale value.

A redesign of the Magnum engine with a new viscous fan helps maintain optimum air flow for improved cooling and fuel efficiency.

Additionally, the engine cover is now sand cast instead of sheet metal, providing increased rigidity and even greater reliability.

Power to the remote couplers has also increased with a 23-percent rise in hydraulic flow, which allows an operator to run a greater variety of hydraulic-powered attachments, such as Case IH Cyclo-Air® modules and Concord® air seeders, plus additional hydraulic orbit motors.

Northrup King Sponsors Ethanol-Powered Airplane

WACO, Texas — Northrup King Co. has joined forces with ethanol-proponent Max Shauck, director of Baylor University's Renewable Aviation Fuels Development Center, the launch a three-year international public education program on the environmental and economic benefits of renewable aviation fuel.

Ethanol, which is distilled primarily from corn, is America's only domestically produced, clean-burning renewable fuel. The Northrup King sponsorship enabled a complete renovation of the ethanol-powered plane piloted by Shauck and will sponsor his appearance at a number of agricultural events to demonstrate the advantages of ethanol-powered airplanes.

"For more than 16 years, 'Mad Max' has wowed crowds with his aeronautical acrobatics, all the while promoting clean-burning ethanol fuel," said Don Jacoby, Northrup King vice president of sales and marketing. "At Northrup King, we're excited to be joining Shauck's ethanol education team.

"Ethanol production opens new markets for America's farmers, provides jobs for thousands of Americans, contributes to cleaner air, lessens our dependence on foreign oil, and decreases foreign trade deficits," Jacoby adds.

Shauck and his ethanol-powered plane are tentatively scheduled to appear at 12 public air shows and events in 1996, including participating in the 1996 International Alternative Fuels Conference and Exhibition, Milwaukee, Wis.; Air National Guard Air Show, Sioux Falls, S.D.; and the Experimental Aircraft Association Fly-In Air Show, Oshkosh, Wis.

USDA Research Program Seeks Hardiest Winter Oat Varieties

RALEIGH, N.C. — As harrowing as the past winter was, it served one useful purpose: It provided an ideal time for finding out how winter crops like oats stand up to Nature's bone-chilling worst.

So far, two oat hybrids from a Texas breeder and a line developed in Pennsylvania have shown unusual mettle in the face of wintry blasts. But these plants still must demonstrate that they can produce an acceptable yield, said David P. Livingston, a plant physiologist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Since the 1930s, growers and breeders — some from as far away as Scotland, Syria, and Czechoslovakia — have sent oat and barley hybrids to USDA's Agricultural Research Service to an annual "Olympics" of winter endurance. Livingston, based at the ARS Plant Science Department Center in Raleigh, coordinates this winter hardiness survey.

Each year, participating breeders provide promising plant samples to the survey which forwards them to other participants in different environments worldwide for fall planting and evaluation of winter hardiness.

"It's like when you were a kid and your teachers ask you to switch papers for grading after a test," said Livingston. "There are all kinds of freezes — dry and cold, wet and cold — and it's rare for the same location to get the same kind of freeze two years in a row."

By testing in multiple locations, a breeder can get the equivalent of several years' data in one growing season. The last of the field evaluations, from overseas, are due this month.

This year's 40 participants will get more data than usual. The reports will be complemented with data from freeze chamber analysis by ARS to test the hyrdrib's hardiness under controlled conditions.

Oats, a cool-season crop, are typically harvested from late May to mid-June. Cold-resistant oats that could be planted in the fall would offer the advantage of bypassing the typical summer droughts that threaten spring-sown oats typically planted in March and April. But to make this scenario a reality, the oats must be able to survive the winter.

Oats that show promise for cold-hardiness in field tests are then compared for quality and yields against commercial cultivars and hardy experimental hybrids.

"Our next job is to find out why certain plants did well," said Livingston. "For example, was it genetic or environmental? If a plant stood up to last year's cold while producing a good yield, we'll be giving it a lot of attention."

Dekalb Granted Product Patent

DEKALB, Ill. — Dekalb Genetics Corporation said recently that it has been granted a product patent (#5,550,318) from the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office directed to transgenic corn plants containing a bar or pat gene.

The presence of the bar or pat gene in corn confers resistance to the herbicide glufosinate. The bar or pat genes are also extensively used in corn transformation as selectable markers.

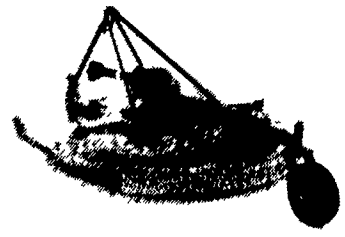
The patent issued is directed to the corn product itself and is not limited to any particular transformation method. Many transgenic corn products on the market or scheduled for commercial release contain the bar or pat gene either as a selectable marker (including several Bt products currently in the market) or to confer glufosinate resistance. This patent is related to an earlier Dekalb process patent (U.S. Patent #5,489,520), which is directed to methods for producing transgenic corn with the bar or pat gene, as well as the production and breeding of progeny of these plants.

Bruce P. Bickner, Dekalb's chairman and chief executive officer, said, "The patent strengthens Dekalb's ability to license or exchange technology with other companies planning to market products containing either a bar or pat gene whether as a selectable marker or as a source of glufosinate resistance."

Glufosinate is a broad-spectrum, environmentally friendly herbicide that can be applied following emergence of the corn crop. Dekalb began marketing tests quantities of a corn hybrid resistant to glufosinate this past spring. Both the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and the USDA have completed their reviews of Dekalb's glufosinate-resistant corn, and the product now has all approvals required for commercial release in the U.S.

Land Pride Introduces Cutters

SALINA, Kan. — Land Pride has designed a medium duty rotary cutter with a robotically welded deck that offers a rugged structure and a rounded back to efficiently handle cut material. The unit is designed to withstand tough cutting conditions with a 10-gauge deck thickness, ¼ -inch side panels, and a heavy duty, oval stump jumper.



Land Pride has designed a medium duty rotary cutter with a robotically welded deck that offers a rugged structure and a rounded back to efficiently handle cut material.

Three-point models are designed with a floating top link and the 84-inch pull-type model features a double spring shock absorber.

The 25 Series rotary cutter is designed for maintaining pastures, mowing grass, and cutting stalks and material up to 2 inches in diameter. The unit is available in 60-inch, 72-inch, and 84-inch widths in a three-point design, as well as an 84-inch pull-type model.

Hatfield Warms Up To Freezer System

HATFIELD (Montgomery Co.) — Hatfield employees can now come in from the cold ever since the company installed a new freezer with an automated storage and retrieval system.

The new system eliminates the need for employees to transport and track product while inside the freezer.

After loading a pallet on to a conveyor, product is automatically carried into the 350,000-cubic foot freezer. A bar code on each case of product feeds information to a PC which tracks and maintains inventory by date, prompting the system to automatically retrieve the most current date first.

The system aides in inventory control, providing operators with the amount and location of product in storage. "With this system, we have a 97 percent inventory accuracy rate which allows us to provide customers with superior service," said Dale Nice, manager of warehousing for Hatfield Quality Meats.

Employee safety also benefits because the system automatically selects the product from the freezer, while video cameras allow operators to view activity on the crane and conveyor. "Any product damage or human errors that could result in accidents are significantly reduced with this system," said Nice, "which is a benefit to our employees, as well as our customers."

GROWING SMALL GRAINS FOR GRAZING

Mena Hautau and Clyde Myers
Penn State Extension Agents
Berks County

Graziers looking for additional forage to compliment their cool season pastures could consider adding small grains to their grazing program.

August plantings will allow pasturing of animals into late fall and again the following spring. When small grains are managed intensively, up to three rotations can be grazed in the fall and four to six rotations can be grazed in the spring, depending on the crop rotation.

Small grains can extend pastures in the fall when grass growth is unable to provide adequate feed due to drought, as well as to provide flexibility to a grazing system.

In 1995, we conducted an on-farm demonstration at the Nevin and Audrey Mast Farm, Oley, Berks County. Using several kinds of small grains and manures, palatability and plant growth were observed and measured. Some of our observations are discussed below.

Species Selection And Production

Small grain crops that work for grazing include barley, oats, rye, spelt, triticale, or wheat. When selecting what kind of seed to use, consider using seed that you already have available to you on the farm or whatever specie works best in your rotation.

For example, oats may winterkill when planted for fall grazing, but you may be able to graze winter wheat the next spring. Mixing species in the pasture worked well on this farm demonstration.

Plant the small grains 3-4 weeks ahead of your normal planting date for grain at a three bushel per acre planting rate. Nevin Mast normally plants his small grains for fall grazing in early August, but due to drought, the planting date was delayed until late August. Each paddock yielded three rotations, with the last rotation coming off snow cover.

Some grazing operations incorporate annual crop rotations with their permanent pastures. In southern Pennsylvania, graziers who plan to harvest a grain crop from small grains could use the following rotation. Plant the small grain in early to mid August. Graze from mid September to December. In spring, discontinue grazing small grains before plants start to joint and grow erect. Animals will eat the growing points. Harvest the grain crop when appropriate. Short season corn (June), a brassica (July), or another small grain (August) could be planted. If grain production or a silage crop is a goal, care should be exercised to avoid grazing plants too heavily in the fall.

For graziers who want to maximize grazing opportunities, the following rotation could be used. Plant the small grain in early to mid August to graze from September to early winter. Begin grazing in the early spring to sometime in May or June. Graze to the ground the last grazing. Then plant a summer annual such as sorghum sudangrass, sudax or corn. Grazing the sorghum sudangrass or sudax can start in six to eight weeks when plant height is 18 to 30 inches tall. Corn will be just prior to tassle. Another planting of small grains can be made in August.

Recognize that all these rotations involve grass plants, which require fertility, especially nitrogen. The recommended rate is 40 pounds of nitrogen per acre. Nevin Mast used his own dairy manure and imported swine manure. These different rotations allow for the use of manure at different times of the growing season.

Grazing Management

Animals should be placed into the paddocks when the small grains reach about eight inches in height. Depending on its size, start grazing earlier at one end of the field, unless the field was planted at different dates. This will "stage" the small grains for proper height for rotational grazing.

Do not provide more area than what your animals can consume in an eight to 12 hour period. Moving the break fence two or three times each day will waste less forage and encourage more consumption. Back fencing is essential to allow for regrowth and keep animals from over grazing. Remove animals when forages are about three to four inches in height.

Yields And Nutritive Value

Production and nutrient value from small grains is excellent. Establishment costs are reasonable. The range in yields from our on-farm demonstration of small grains was 2,400-4,000 pounds of dry matter per acre, when measured with a forage plate meter.

We did not observe any differences in the palatability of small grains by animals. Cattle and swine manure, applied at different rates prior to seeding for fall grazing, did not influence acceptance.

Forage samples were taken and analyzed for nutritonal value, using NIR testing through Penn State University (Table 1). Moisture tests measured via a microwave oven showed small grains averaging 84 percent moisture content.

Summary

Annuals, such as small grains, help to compliment and extend permanent pasture systems. Costs are low, forage production is high, and nutrient content is very high. More feedback would be appreciated from graziers that have experimented with incorporating small grains and summer annuals into different rotations.

Leasing

- No down payment. Keep your money working for you where you need it!
- Tax deductible. Your lease payment is generally 100% tax deductible
- Lower payments. Since payments are based on use during the lease, not the equipment's whole life, payments are usually lower
- Flexible terms. Your lease terms are custom fit to your situation
  Length of lease – use the equipment during its prime Payment frequency –your payments match your cash flow.

BEFORE YOU BUY YOUR NEXT NEW TRACTOR, ASK AN OWNER.

There are more than 50,000 Case IH MAGNUM™ tractors working fields and farms around the world. And with over 65 million hours of rugged fieldwork behind them, they've proven what a difference durability, reliability and performance can make.

You'll feel that difference in the 7200 Series MAGNUM tractors, ranging from 130 to 215 PTO hp. At the heart of every MAGNUM is its 8.3 L diesel engine — the definition of pure agricultural power. Not to mention the standard 18-speed full-powershift transmission that gives you complete control of 18 forward and four reverse speeds, as well as an optional creeper transmission that adds six forward and two reverse speeds.

Yet with all that performance, there is no shortage of comfort. The MAGNUM tractor cab means highly efficient luxury. From the ergonomically designed seat to the smart layout of the controls, you're surrounded with features that make it easy to put in a full day's work.

If you're looking for a proven tractor with all the assets you need to maximize productivity, be sure to test drive a MAGNUM tractor. But don't just take our word for it.

ASK AN OWNER.

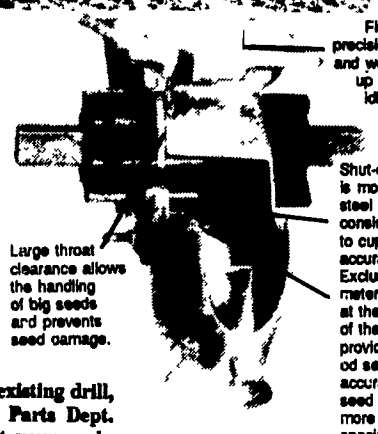
A Special Feature For All Case IH Grain Drills

Fluted Roll Feed Cup Assemblies Save Seed and Save Time

A Known Fact That Case IH Die-Cast Zinc Alloy Feed Cups Are Superior To Other Competitive Brands Long Life Comes From Oil-Impregnated, Molded Sintered Metal Inserts Acts As A Positive Bearing Surface To Surround And Support The Fluted Roll



Flutes roll is precision-molded and won't freeze up during the idle periods.

Large throat clearance allows the handling of big seeds and prevents seed damage.

Shut-off block is molded of steel and delivers consistent cup to cup seeding accuracy. Exclusive tapered metered edge at the bottom of the feed cup provides unexcelled seeding accuracy, even seed flow, and more uniform spacing

For replacement parts for your existing drill, buy Case IH quality from our Parts Dept. Now! Precision equipment to fit your grain drill exactly!

Why settle for inferior look-alikes when you can have genuine Case IH fluted roll feed cup assemblies — reowned for accuracy, smooth operation and long life.

HOOBER is YOUR HEADQUARTERS for

THE TARGET OTHERS SHOOT AT ... BUT CAN'T HIT!

It doesn't matter how you define AXIAL FLOW PRODUCTIVITY:

1) How many ACRES you harvest per day?
2) How many BUSHELS you harvest per hour?
3) How Many HOURS per year to harvest all your crops?

A 2100 SERIES AXIAL FLOW COMBINE PUTS MORE QUALITY GRAIN IN THE BIN AND LEAVES LESS IN THE FIELD per HOUR, per DAY, or per YEAR than ANY COMPETITORS COMBINE!

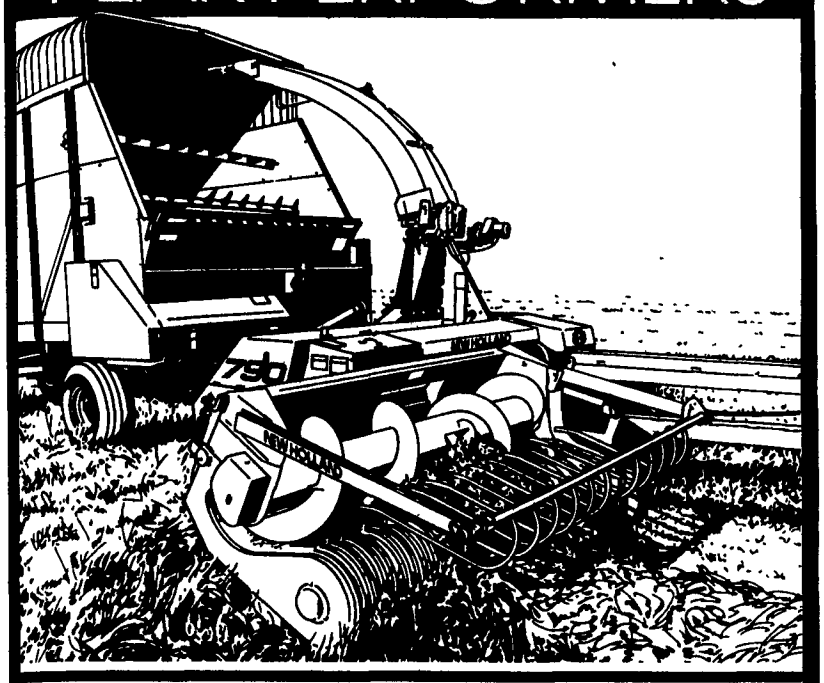
PEAK PERFORMERS



READY WHEN YOU ARE

Durable. Dependable. Powerful. New Holland forage harvesters will be there when you need them, so you can harvest your crop on time, season after season.

Four power-driven feedrolls carry materials into the cutterhead for an even, controlled cut, and the rugged 12-knife cutterhead delivers a fine uniform chop.

New Holland forage harvesters. Ready when you are.

SAVE TIME

WHIRL-A-FEED® SPINNING ACTION

The New Holland Model 40 forage blower saves you time at the silo. This 1000-rpm blower features a 48-inch diameter hopper that center-fills silos 80 feet and higher. The Whirl-a-Feed® rotary table spins crops into the blower housing, and material gets off to a fast start up the blower pipe. Spinning action breaks up heavy clumps, and virtually eliminates plugging. There's less drag on the fan, and more efficient use of the tractor's horsepower.

Find out how to save time with the Model 40 from New Holland.

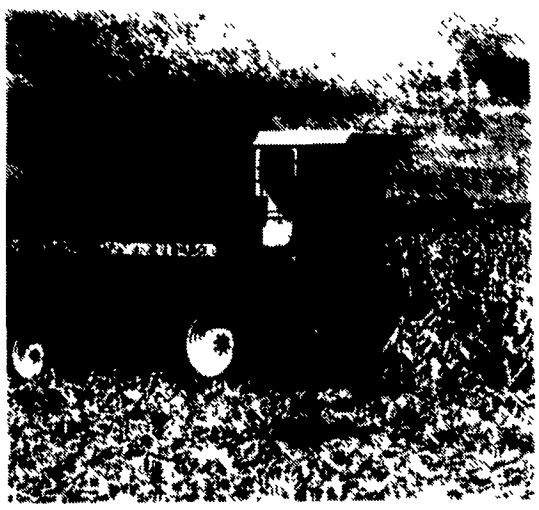
CLAAS
The Harvesting Specialist

Corn heads that get the ears the other heads leave behind.



Hook up of Quick Attach heads is made easier with reliable, heavy duty PTO style drive shafts

MF 800 Series corn heads.

These Quick-Attach heads are designed and built to save more crop when the going gets tough.

■ Reduced snapping angle.
Long snouts with low hinge points, and 23 degree angle of snapping units lifts low hanging ears and slides under down tangled crops to get lodged ears that other heads just can t

■ Hinged dividers.
Center and outer dividers are hinged for quick, easy access to the snapping rolls, plates, gather chains, vine knives and grass shields

■ Quick-Adjust snapping plates.
All left-hand snapping plates can be quickly adjusted from one convenient location to match crop and conditions

■ Cross auger.
Rugged 14 in (310 mm) auger with 4 in (100 mm) flighting moves crops smoothly and evenly into the feeder elevator Choose standard auger flight extension or optional spike tooth center section for weedy conditions

■ Choice of sizes
MF 800 Series corn heads are available for four six and eight rows and spacings from 28 in (710 mm) to 38 in (965 mm) depending on model

Kubota Parts In Stock
UPS We Ship Daily

Introducing Kubota's new Grand L-Series diesel tractors. Four compact models with 25 to 37 PTO HP. Designed to take on any job that demands power and mobility.

Available in 2WD and 4WD, the Grand L-Series features Kubota's new ETVCS diesel engines that run quiet with cleaner emissions. Operator friendly with power steering, tilt wheel and enclosed muffler for greater visibility. The roomy flat operator's deck is ISO mounted to greatly reduce vibration.

The Grand L-Series has a choice of transmissions, the new fully synchronized main transmission with Synchro-Shuttle allowing shifting-on-the-go through the 4 main gears or the new GST (Glide Shift Transmission) which allows shifting-on-the-go through all 8 speeds, both run smoothly and efficiently with the new larger diameter, larger capacity clutch.

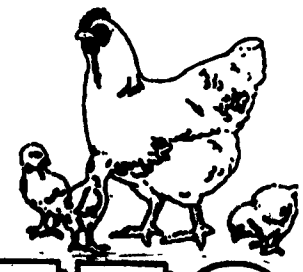
POULTRY NOTES



Ambassador Motivates Consumers To Eat More Chicken, Turkey, Eggs

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEFFSVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — The new poultry ambassador doesn't gather eggs, feed chickens, or raise turkeys.

"But we do eat lots of chicken, turkey, and eggs," said 17-year-old Sherri Kreider of her family, which includes parents Renee and David and a 14-year-old brother Shawn.

Sherri's job as the poultry ambassador for both the county and the state is to entice people to eat more poultry and eggs. Through handing out recipes, preparing omelets, riding in parades, and teaching Ag in the Classroom sessions, Sherri will have lots of opportunities to tell others that eating poultry is good for you and that eggs are much better for you than they are cracked up to be.

As poultry ambassador, Sherri will receive a $1,000 scholarship.

Although Sherri lives in the suburbs of Neffsville, she has hands-on experience with an ag-related business. The Kreider's home borders her grandparents' farm. For the past 11 years, Sherri has helped operate a strawberry business on 3½ acres.

"I think strawberries all summer," she said. "A lot of people think strawberries only last a month. But all summer, I weed and cultivate the plants."

The Kreiders' strawberry patch is a combination of pick-your-own and a commercial business. During the picking season, Sherri sees that customers have carriers, sorts berries, and serves customers at the roadside stand.

She also picks red raspberries for selling.

Sherri is in charge also of weeding and picking produce from the family's garden where they grow parsley, green beans, corn, peas, and lima beans. She helps her mother with canning and freezing the produce.

This summer, Sherri spent a week in Georgia with her church youth group helping to repair houses destroyed by floods.

"The experience opened my eyes to a whole new section of the U.S. that I had been sheltered from," Sherri said. "It's incredible to see the way these people live. I feel like I learned more from them than they did from me."

The experience has caused Sherri to reevaluate life. She said, "I take so many things for granted. Now I'm more thankful. The experience has caused our youth group to want to do more service projects."

Sherri also expresses gratefulness for her parents and two sets of grandparents (Lester and Mildred Kreider and Amos and Edna Huber).

She said, "My grandparents have had a big influence on me. I

Poultry Ambassador Sherri Kreider serves one of her family's favorite dishes, Creamed Chicken And Ham Over Puff Pastry. Although most of Sherri's promotional duties will be in Lancaster County, she will also serves as poultry ambassador across the state.

Free Lunch For Producers

Northeast Poultry Show Hosts Producers Day

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — "Producer Day" will be a new aspect of the annual Northeast Poultry Show, scheduled at the Holiday Inn Lancaster Host Sept. 18-19.

The Producer Day includes a free box lunch and beverage on Thursday, Sept. 19, from noon-2 p.m. in the exhibit hall, open free to producers. The exhibit hall is open free to producers on Wednesday and Thursday from 11 a.m.-5 p.m.

The show begins Tuesday, Sept. 17 with a golf lunch and tournament at noon. The Poultry and Egg Golf tournament begins with an outdoor barbecue at noon on the Paradise Terrace. The tournament begins at 1 p.m. with a shotgun start. Prizes will be distributed at the Tuesday evening welcoming reception. The tournament is limited to 144 players. (Hole-In-One Prize is a 1996 Dodge Van).

The tournament provides funding for the Northeast Egg Promotion Coalition through hole sponsorships which will be recognized in the October Poultry Post.

On Tuesday, a welcoming reception is scheduled in the Vistas Room with hot and cold hors d'oeuvres, sliced turkey, roast beef, punch, and a cash bar. Everyone is welcome.

On Wednesday, Sept. 18, a buffet breakfast is scheduled from 7 a.m.-9 a.m.. Tickets are required. The conference begins at 9 a.m. with two concurrent segments, one for broiler and turkey producers and the other for egg producers.

The Wednesday broiler/turkey segment includes 10-minute presentations on poultry health and management issues. Topics include avian influenza, leg prob-

Turkey Producers Feel Holidays Growing Nearer

The curtain-sided pole-barn house, all passive ventilated, uses ground corn cobs and loose shavings for bedding. A commercial turkey corn-soy feed is used with minerals and protein. Here, Bob Esbenshade checks the feeders.

PARADISE (Lancaster Co.) — Newspaper reporters have their deadline pressures. So do turkey producers.

Walk into any daily morning newspaper office after 11 p.m. and chances are you'll see staffers busily compiling breaking news for the next edition. On a day midweek in early August this year, you could have seen Bob Esbenshade up and off in his truck for a rendezvous with day-old poults at a pickup location at 1:30 a.m. in York.

Esbenshade is preparing for another busy holiday season, which grows closer every day.

There are times to make hay, and often those days aren't the most convenient. The same could be said about finishing turkeys — when it's time to pick up the poults, it's time.

Bob Esbenshade, owner and manager of Esbenshade Turkey Farm in Paradise, finishes about 12,000 birds a year for the retail dressed turkey market. Two houses are used (there are three total on the farm). One measures about 54 feet by 380 feet and houses about 6,000 poults by itself. Another measures about 30 feet by 500 feet.

According to Esbenshade, most of the turkeys grown and processed at the farm are used as employee gifts during the Thanksgiving and Christmas holiday season.

Esbenshade picks up the day-old chicks, the Nicholson White Holland breed, which he obtains from Zealand, Mich. On that hot day last August, Esbenshade was traveling in the wee hours of the morning to pick up 1,800 of the birds to put into one of the houses.

"We use that breed because of the white breast, which provides lots of meat," he said. Years ago, according to Esbenshade, the industry used a browner, darker meated bird. The white bird, which Esbenshade has been using for nearly 30 years, is easier to dress and clean.

Bob was born at the 60-acre farm of which he manages the poults and supervises the dressing operation. His great grandfather, Isaac Esbenshade, purchased the farm in 1858. Abe, Bob's grandfather, continued the turkey operation, of which Bob's father, Ellis, continued. Ellis Esbenshade continued to operate the turkey farm until the 1930s after he had broken his back.

But Bob remembers his dad taking even live birds to the Farm Show in the '30s. Taking frozen turkeys up for judging at Farm Show is a tradition that continues Bob even admits they have continued to win first placings at the show.

This year he intends to take a turkey to the show weighing 39.28 pounds.

Esbenshade purchased the farm in 1963. The same year construction was finished on one of the largest houses, measuring 20,520 square feet. The curtain-sided pole-barn house, all passive ventilated, uses ground corn cobs and loose shavings for bedding. Fed is a commercial turkey corn-soy feed with minerals and protein.

Turkeys are dressed from 12-35 pounds after they are killed at 14 weeks. Processing continues for another 14-24 weeks for the holiday season. One week before Thanksgiving, processing is every Monday through Saturday, 10 hours a day, up to Christmas.

Bob Esbenshade remembers his dad taking even live birds to the Farm Show in the '30s. Taking frozen turkeys up for judging at Farm Show is a tradition that continues. Bob even admits they have continued to win first placings at the show. This year he intends to take this turkey to the show, weighing 39.28 pounds.

To help with the processing, Esbenshade employs three full-time and another 20-30 people part-time, mostly Plain folk.

Esbenshade is very dependent on the tradition of giving gift turkeys for the holiday season.

"Most of these are gift turkeys which we dress to freeze," he said. "A lot of employers realize the gift turkey is nice for the whole family." Despite the pressure to finish the turkeys in time for the holiday, Esbenshade continues to enjoy the benefits of industry.

"It's all I ever knew," he said.

Only trouble he experiences is that "we can't dress the turkeys fast enough for the holidays." Esbenshade has help from his wife, Gladys, and son Jim, who helps manage the orders. Bob's son-in-law David Zerbe also helps, along with Esbenshade's daughter Barbara.

PRODUCT MICROBIAL TESTING WON'T ASSURE LOWER PATHOGEN LEVEL

Professor Of Food Science
Penn State

The following is from an IFT news release:

A requirement of end-product microbial testing for meat and poultry will not assure consumers of reduced levels of pathogens. This was the confirmation of statements made by many individuals, only this time it had the support of the Institute of Food Technologists (IFT) in a release to federal officials.

IFT is a nonprofit scientific society with 28,000 members working in food science, technology, and related professions in industry, academia and government.

"There is no question that we need to move to a science-based system for inspecting meat and poultry," IFT President Roy G. Arnold said. "That doesn't mean, however, that randomly testing raw meat and poultry for pathogens is the best way to reduce bacterial contamination.

"Rather than implementing a national microbiological standard for pathogens, we should refocus our attention on implementing a comprehensive science-based approach to reducing the overall level of pathogens in the meat and poultry supply," he said. "Microbiological testing would be but one component of such a system."

IFT recommended to the United States Department of Agriculture's Food Safety and Inspection Service that the current meat and poultry inspection system be replaced with mandatory Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Points (HACCP) systems, and that HACCP should focus only on food safety.

IFT supported other agency proposal aspects, including maintaining sanitation-standard operating procedures, and the time and temperature requirements for chilling and storage of raw meat and poultry to control foodborne pathogens, plus three other highlights:

- Use of proven meat and poultry carcass treatments.
- Continuation of national microbiological baseline studies.
- Opposition to label claims about safety.

This was all developed by an IFT member working group with expertise in meat and poultry processing, food microbiology, food safety, and HACCP.

For Both Large and Small Birds

- Gives twice the water to more mature birds, who trigger the drinker vertically.
- Gives just the right amount of water to day-old birds, who typically trigger the drinker side-to-side.
- Offers both flow rates at low pressure levels, preventing water from spraying and saturating your litter.
- Improves bird weight.
- Improves your profitability.

Pennsylvanian Wins Chicken Cooking Contest

Vaccination Reduces SE In Eggs

When hens were vaccinated against Salmonella enteritidis (SE), significantly fewer eggs from the experimentally infected hens were SE positive. In addition, when egg pools from vaccinated hens were inoculated with SE, initial growth in these pools was significantly less (10,000 fold) then in egg pools from non-vaccinated hens. These results suggest that eggs from SE vaccinated hens may provide an additional safety margin by delaying SE growth in positive eggs. Southern Poultry Science Assoc. Meeting, January 22-23, 1996, Abstract S61 p. 121.

Contaminated Litter Source Of Salmonella

A study in an integrated turkey operation to determine the source of Salmonella found at processing suggested that litter contamination at the time poults were placed was the primary source. This finding contrasts with earlier studies in broilers where the primary source appeared to be of hatchery origin — Southern Poultry Science Assoc. Meeting, January 22-23, 1996, Abstract S-7, p. 103.

Nipples Vs. Open-Bell Water Systems Tested

Water consumption and growth comparisons were made in male and female turkeys on four watering systems — three nipples and one open bell. A high volume nipple and the open bell types gave similar water consumption and weight gains. A low volume nipple system had unacceptable growth performance. Southern Poultry Science Assoc. Meeting, January 22-23, 1996, Abstract #311, p. 78.

Refrigeration Makes SE Easier To Kill

Holding eggs at 4°C (40°F) to 8°C (46°F) reduced the heat resistance of SE. This suggests that not only does refrigeration reduce the growth of SE in any egg but it lowers the temperature at which the SE will be killed during cooking. This provides further justification to refrigerate eggs. Journal Applied Microbiology, Vol. 69 p. 493.

Property Rights To Be Protected

Both Congress and the Pennsylvania General Assembly are considering legislation to mandate respect and legal rights for private property. The primary focus of such legislation is to give certain rights to private property owners and compensate them when the government restricts the use of their land. Congress is considering S605 in these matters and the Pennsylvania General Assembly is re-working S805.

appreciate the religious aspects and the morals and values that they have passed on to me."

Of her relationship with her grandparents and parents, Sherri said, "It's sad that so many kids don't have the opportunity that I have to have such good role models."

A senior at Manheim Township High School, Sherri has her sights set on college although she's uncertain exactly where or what she will select as a major.

"Probably it will be elementary education, psychology, or guidance counseling," she said.

In her spare time, she enjoys sketching people, baking, vacationing at the family's cabin in Potter County, and going to the beach.

CREAMED CHICKEN AND HAM

¼ cup butter
¼ cup chopped onion
1¼ cups milk
3 ounces canned sliced mushrooms, drained
1 cup cooked chicken or turkey, cubed
1 cup cubed cooked ham
¼ cup sliced ripe olives
¼ cup flour
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1 cup chicken broth

Melt butter in large saucepan. Add onion and cook until tender. Blend in flour, mustard, salt, and pepper. Add milk and chicken broth. Bring to boil and cook 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Stir in mushrooms, chicken, or turkey, ham, and olives. Heat. Serve on toast, biscuits or puff pastry.

Makes 6 servings.

In the beginning the Brubakers contracted with Miller and Bushong, which was sold to the Horn family, who later changed the name to Pennfield.

Through these transitions, Brubaker said that he has nothing but praise for the broiler division of Pennfield. While some farmers lament the passing era of independent farming, Brubaker said there are a lot of positive benefits to have a solid contract.

"A contract allows us to do our job and depend on a regular paycheck regardless of the cost of feed or the flunctuating prices on the market," he said.

He knows the horror of not have a guaranteed price for a farmer-produced product. In 1994, Brubaker and his wife Luann pioneered raising bull calves for the Certified Tend-R-Leen U.S. patented program. Because the Brubakers financed the project, they believed those responsible for marketing it didn't persevere when they faced unplanned expenses such as higher corn prices.

"When a company invests their own money they will do everything to make it work," Brubaker said. From now on, he vows, he will only produce under a contract agreement.

While Brubaker has been satisfied with his contract for broilers, he is alarmed that some layer producers are having the terms of their contracts altered.

He said, "Layer intergraters come up with new ways not to pay farmers for eggs. Farmers are constantly told they must do a better job, but you can only do so good. The layer industry is really taking a beating with low egg prices and high grain costs."

As a fellow-producer, Brubaker empathizes. "We can't forget about the farmer. We all want to profit. We must work together. The farmers shouldn't bear all the risk."

All poultry producers should become members of the Lancaster County Poultry Association, Brubaker believes. It is through this organization that farmers and industry work together to alleviate problems. Together they can join forces to strenghten communication with the nonfarming community.

"We can't survive if the non-farming community is not happy. We need to educate them about why we do the things we do such as spreading manure. Fly control is another problem that needs to be addressed."

Brubaker makes it a practice to inform neighbors in advance whenever he is spreading manure.

"We need to respect each other's property rights," Brubaker said. To get along with the non-farming community, we must respect their Saturday afternoon picnics and holidays. Most people are reasonable if we are reasonable with them. Farmers shouldn't wait until relationships are so badly strained that a phone call will not help. They should start working on relationships early enough so that misunderstandings can be prevented," he said.

Brubaker Offers Producer's Perspective To Industry

Brubaker has presented his concerns by testifing at a manure management hearing.

"We (farmers) must do our part in being good stewards of the land, but it isn't right that we aren't allowed to spread manure within 100 feet of a well-head yet fertilizer can be spread around every well. Every homeowner can make their yard the greenest lawn in the county by spreading more nitrogen and nothing can stop him. It isn't right that any person can build a house and dig a well right next to a farmer's field and force him to change his farming methods to comply with no spreading manure within 100 feet of the well," Brubaker said.

"It's ridiculous! We need to stick together as farmers even if legislation doesn't effect us personally, but does another farmer. Ag has so many entities that it's hard to see eye to eye sometimes. We can be as powerful lobbying group as any other one."

Brubaker is grateful that he is surrounded by understanding neighbors, although he knows quite well the results of an influx of people moving into the area from cities and other states.

Across the road from him, his mother operates Beaver Creek Farm Cabins. Many tourists who vacation at the cabins talk about moving into the area. Visitors often drop in at the farm and the Brubakers welcome them. But they are appalled at tourists' misconceptions about farming.

Recently two children 10 and 11 years of age were playing around the chicken houses when they panicked because they got some manure on them. They were crying because they were certain they were going to get Salmonella poisoning from it.

"The media is constantly hammering the poultry industry about Salmonella. The media's influence over people and children is so wrong. We have the cheapest, healthiest food system in the world — but people complain. If the American consumer eats right, he doesn't need to worry."

Brubaker terms eating right as a balanced diet of a little bit of everything that is properly prepared and handled.

"We must continue to educate the public. The Poultry Association has spend a lot of time in the past two years educating consumers and in becoming more involved in government legislation.

"The association has switched to that emphasis because we realize the importance of the public's perception of the poultry industry," Brubaker said.

Believing in the importance of educating children at an early age, Brubaker himself goes into the Lampeter Strasburg School district for Ag in the Classroom instruction.

The Poultry Association has contributed $1,000 to the Hands On House to erect a room that shows a current poultry operation. This portrayal is considered one way to educate parents and children about not only the operation of a poultry house but the need to spread manure and the farmer's dedication to raising a safe food product.

For the past five years, Brubaker has spent many hours with a committee preparing an annual float used in local parades.

He also puts in hours working at the association's food stand at the Ephrata Fair. That food stand is instrumental in raising funding for the association and enables annual membership fees to remain at $25.

"We need more volunteers to help at the food stand. Not only does it raise money for the association but also it encourages people to eat poultry," Brubaker said.

Served at the poultry stand are chicken corn soup, chicken breast sandwiches, and red beet eggs, which have gained a reputation for tastiness. The stand is a positive influence on people's eating choices.

"It's frustrating that a farmer can tie a couple of ears of Indian corn together and get $3, but he can't get that for corn sold for food," Brubaker said.

This past year, Brubaker and his wife built a roadside stand where in addition to selling produce, they sell the beef and poultry that they raise. The meat they raised is butchered, packaged, and frozen. Boneless, skinless, chicken breasts are packaged individually for sale. A wide variety of beef cuts are available individually or sold by the quarter or half of beef.

For the stand's produce, the Brubakers have grown everything from cucumbers to watermelons. Across the road, Brubaker's mother has an orchard from which in-season fruits are sold at the stand.

(Turn to Page 15)

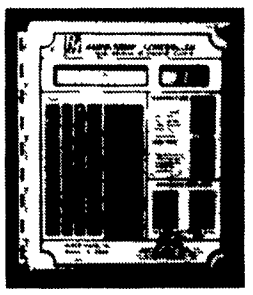
AUTO TEMP

HIRED-HAND®

12-Stage Automatic Environment Control

This versatile programmable controller lets you design your own system.



Auto Temp's on-screen program guides you through your options and makes building set-up a breeze

Unique Face Pad design gives a complete picture of the 12-stage set-up and displays whether or not each stage is running

Features

- Temperature reduction by day (ramping)
- Timer Fan Control with outside temperature reduction
- Heat/Cool protection (keeps heaters and fans from fighting each other)
- Most used functions are one touch control
- Independently controls from one to six heaters
- Capable of 7 inputs and 14 outputs
- Any stage can be programmed for heat or cool
- Displays temperature in fahrenheit or celsius
- Up to 6 light cycles
- Daily flock information
- Up to 4 timed feed cycles

POWER CURTAIN

HIRED-HAND

8-Stage Curtain & Ventilation Control

This versatile controller with programmable table makes house set-up as easy as A-B-C! Just follow the menu.

COORDINATION & MANAGEMENT
The System 2000 8-Stage Controller will coordinate all functions of your operation It manages your heaters fans, foggers and curtains (or doors) This system can carry you from negative ventilation (fans and heaters) to natural ventilation (curtains open) to tunnel ventilation automatically

INTEGRATED OPERATION
All operations are integrated into one control system You choose your type of ventilation – tunnel conventional or positive pressure and the System 2000 will do the rest.

Features

- 8 Programmable Stages
- Temperature reduction by day (Ramping)
- 4 Independent Sensors
- Dual Fan Timer Control
- Light Control for Pullets
- Handles two Power Units independently
- House Lighting Control
- Constantly displays house conditions!
- Optimum Curtain Adjustment (determined by difference between inside and outside temperature)
- User Selectable Temperature-dependent Timer

PowerTrak

HIRED-HAND

Automatic System for Curtains, Vents and Doors

A new standard in Power Units is set with the introduction of PowerTrak™ the second generation of super-strength power pulley systems from Hired-Hand.

Completely redesigned with service in mind PowerTrak boasts many new performance and durability enhancing features while maintaining the strong points of its popular predecessors Power Curtain and Power Vent.

Features

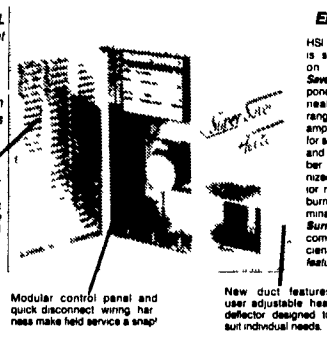
- Modular construction for ease of service
- 5000 lb Capacity
- Built-in Head Bracket with needle-bearing pulleys
- Channel Lock Trak-Drive system captures load block
- 15 percent increase in load block support surface for greater life
- New easy-adjust springcam limit switch system
- New convenient hinged springlock door that is easily removed
- Greater protection from the elements

SUPER SAVER XL

HIRED-HAND®

Agricultural Inside Mount Heater for Poultry and Livestock Confinement Buildings

The Super Saver XL is a highly efficient direct-fired gas circulating heater designed for suspension mounting in houses of all ages and classes of poultry and livestock



New side swinging door design gives easy access to internal cabinet with the new Service Saver control unit and powerful blower motor

Electronic HSI Ignition

HSI ignition is standard on Super Saver Components are neatly arranged with ample room for servicing and cleaning The heating chamber is made of high temp aluminized steel which provides superior rust prevention The cast iron burner is enamel dipped to eliminate dust adhesion and rust. Surround air intake increases combustion and heat chamber efficiency Look for this important feature in other heaters of this type

Features

- Easy-access electrical control unit
- Duct with user adjustable heat deflector
- Quick-disconnect wiring harness for easy service gold plated contacts prevent corrosion
- High Temp aluminized burn chamber and blower housing
- Diagnostic light for troubleshooting ease
- Remote thermostat with piggyback cord set for easy installation
- Electronic hot surface instant on ignition
- 1/3 HP totally enclosed thermally protected motor with sealed ball bearings
- 225 000 BTU LP or natural gas
- Manual reset high temp limit switch
- Available in Stainless Steel or Galva Zinc finish
- Backup safety rail switch

Take A Close Look At Your Buildings

Robert E. Graves
Penn State Agricultural Engineering Extension

Take A Close Look (at your farm buildings)

This year we experienced a hard winter! Snow, high, winds, heavy rain, cold temperatures and flooding have all taken their toll on buildings and farmsteads.

Many buildings may be damaged, but still look OK from the outside.

An important fall activity will be to inspect all buildings, including silos, for hidden damage. Roof rafters may have cracked from heavy snow or wind, but may not be obvious from the outside.

Foundations or poles may have been undercut by flood waters or overflowing roof gutters, but be covered with other debris. Major parts of buildings such as an "L" or lean-to may have been shifted from the force of high winds.

You can tell a lot by performing your own thorough inspection or retain a qualified engineer or builder. Expect to pay for an inspection. Beware of casual people stopping by from out of the area trying to rush you into repairs or replacements. Don't be afraid to get a second or third opinion. If the problem can't be explained so you understand, look elsewhere for better help.

To do a good inspection you need a high-powered light (large bright flashlight, portable vehicle search light or high-intensity work light). Be careful of fire when using high-powered lights around hay or in dusty locations; these lights get very hot! You can also get severe burns from touching the reflector housing.

A ladder is needed to get into attic spaces and to get closer to support beam connections. A pair of binoculars will help you look at high areas. A long screwdriver or ice pick is handy for poking at suspect areas, and a hammer can be used to detect cracked beams and joists.

Look for anything that is abnormal:

- Cracked or broken rafters, beams, poles or support walls.
- Movement of joints such as truss plates and where trusses or rafters rest on walls or beams.
- Shifting or sliding of walls on foundations.
- Gaps around the base of poles between the ground and the pole.
- Bends and bows in rafters or beams.
- Poles, posts or trusses that are out of plumb.
- Loose roof sheets, shingles or sidewall panels.

Take the time and money to inspect and repair your buildings while the ravages of this year are fresh in your mind.

It's cheaper to do it now than wait for the building to fall down during a thunderstorm or under next winter's heavy snows. The value of a couple of cows, pieces of machinery, or especially a human life is not worth taking a chance!

Here's what could happen to your poultry facility — a result of the past year's harsh winter. Inspect your buildings now!

BIOSECURITY: IT PAYS!

Barrett S. Cowen, M.S., Ph.D.
Wiley Laboratory
Dept. of Veterinary Science
Penn State

Periodically, poultry producers need to be reminded of the importance of biosecurity in the successful rearing of commercial poultry.

Briefly, biosecurity refers to management practices which reduce the risk of infectious diseases being carried onto a farm by animals, people and equipment, and the spread of those diseases once introduced.

It seems appropriate to remind the poultry producers of Pennsylvania of the need for good biosecurity practices because of the planned marked expansion of production in Pennsylvania and the constant threat of virulent forms of avian influenza virus (AIV) and Newcastle disease virus (NDV) arising from auction and live-bird markets and the ornamental bird industry.

Barrett Cowen

An additional state and regional poultry health risk which requires awareness is infectious laryngotracheitis. The decision to expand poultry production is frequently made with insufficient consideration being given to disease control and biosecurity.

It is well known that increasing poultry populations (and thus increased density) are accompanied by increasing disease problems. Some of the greatest risks incurred in poultry production are associated with infectious disease outbreaks.

The continuing identification of AIV (e.g., H7N2) in auction and live-bird markets located in metropolitan areas within or adjacent to Pennsylvania and the potential of viscerotropic velogenic Newcastle disease (VVND) being introduced from ornamental birds should reinforce the importance of practicing disease prevention on a routine basis.

Persons exercising farm management decisions (for example, caretakers, owners, flock supervisors, or corporate heads) have the authority/responsibility to reduce losses through disease prevention and control management. They must continually be made aware of their responsibility and encouraged to develop a disease prevention mentality.

Why is it a characteristic of human nature to become apathetic when not threatened or confronted with a problem? In many regions of the world, disease prevention/control plays a much more important role in poultry health mainte-

WHAT'S NEW IN WINTER TIME VENTILATION FOR BROILERS?

William D. Weaver, Jr.
Prof. & Head
Department of Poultry Science

Possibly the most changed part of the broiler production system this winter will not be upgrades in the design and operation of houses and equipment but rather the genetic change that continue with the birds.

The introduction of high-yield broilers and the trends toward higher weights continue to reduce the bird's ability to cope with its environment.

Producers and growers must realize that as geneticists reduce the age broilers require to reach a specific body weight — approximately one day each year to reach the same weight — they generally sacrifice fitness traits. These traits allow birds to better cope with insults presented by the environment; insults such as high levels of ammonia, temperatures above and below the thermoneutral zone, overcrowding, disease challenges, etc.

In order to minimize these external stresses on the birds, producers must continue to improve their environmental systems. While ventilation of the poultry house has always been critical during the colder times of the year, in light of the above discussion, producers must be even more mindful of ventilation concepts and technology available today than in the past.

Systems today that use sidewall curtains as air inlets in combination with negative pressure ventilation are simply not adequate. It is more critical than in the past that incoming air during the colder months enter the house at the proper speed and in the proper direction to ensure adequate mixing before it reaches bird level. More specifically, air should enter the house at approximately 600 to 1,000 feet per minute (static pressure of .06 to .10 inches water column) and be directed in a way that will allow it to travel across the ceiling or high in the room.

It is also important for the air jet to reach the center of the house before it begins to dissipate. Generally, an inlet opening of about two inches is required to accomplish adequate air "throw" into the house during the colder months.

After describing the above required characteristics of the incoming air it isn't difficult to see why sidewall curtains make poor air inlets. Intermittently spaced air inlets located at the eaves on both sidewalls have become the design of choice today in many broiler houses. These inlets are normally four feet long and four to six inches wide, and use a polystyrene (1½ -inches thick) baffle. Further, they are hinged in a way that will direct the air across the ceiling or high into the room. Generally they are spaced 16 feet or possibly 20 feet on center (which is based on inlet capacity requirements) and are located at the eave, either in the ceiling or the sidewall.

Finally, it is a must that all inlets on both sidewalls be connected to a motorized, manometer (static pressure gauge) activated winch. Without such a controller, inlets will not adjust and consequently will not provide proper inlet velocity when various numbers of fans are operating.

As broilers become less tolerant of environmental insults, producers must (among other things) continue to fine-tune their cold weather ventilation systems. The installation of intermittent air inlets that direct air across the ceiling, allowing it to mix with the warmer inside air before reaching the birds, helps reduce environmental stress and thus creating better conditions for today's broilers to survive and grow efficiently.

Biosecurity: It Pays!

nance than in the U.S., primarily because of geography, government policy, and international economics. Such practices are recognized to be essential to the survival of their industry and therefore are religiously followed with few complaints or excuses. There are many countries less fortunate than ours; their poultry industries live with the constant threat of exotic Newcastle disease, fowl typhoid, and highly pathogenic infectious bursal disease, as these diseases are endemic.

Discipline, carefully planned/designed production facilities, and the implementation of good vaccination programs have resulted in several years of disease-free poultry production in these countries. There is much to be said for discipline — in this instance, the faithful following of basic principles of your profession, whether you're in a laboratory (such as asceptic technique) or on the farm (for example, disease prevention/control management).

Biosecurity is basic to poultry health maintenance and should be a routine, ongoing program adhered to in good times as well as bad. It is a must from the point of view of preventing catastrophic losses resulting from highly lethal diseases such as VVND and highly pathogenic A.I., but it also makes good sense to control the introduction of less virulent and subclinical diseases.

In an industry which frequently experiences small profit margins, even the control of subclinical diseases (infectious bursal disease, avian leukosis, reoviruses, etc.) and their resultant losses (eggs, growth rate, and feed conversion) is important because they significantly impact on the bottom line of the balance sheet.

Decisions pertaining to biosecurity practices should be based on a realistic and structured evaluation of their costs and benefits. Accompanying changes in the rearing of commercial poultry (such as increased rearing density) in Pennsylvania and other regions of the U.S. will bring the need to develop appropriate plans for enhanced biosecurity and maintenance of growth and profitability in a competitive global environment.

A QUESTION OF AIR CAPACITY

Eileen Fabian Wheeler
Assistant Professor Agricultural And Biological Engineering

There are several reasons why a poultry house might be undervéntilated.

Inadequate fan capacity, high static pressure, or improperly adjusted inlets are possibilities.

In the following case study, a caged layer poultry farm ventilation system was evaluated to determine whether the 10 variable-speed, 36-inch fans were delivering their expected cfm (cubic feet per minute) capacity and whether they could maintain adequate performance against higher operating static pressures.

The facility housed 120,000 laying hens in a turbo ventilated 40-foot by 420-foot building. Fans were positioned under light trap hoods. Three 36-inch fans and one 48-inch fan at the site were evaluated using a vane anemometer and inclined manometer (see resource 3 for instrument information).

Although air flow capacity of the 36-inch fans was in question, one 48-inch fan was evaluated to determine how the whole ventilation system was performing. One 36-inch fan cfm capacity was evaluated at several static pressure levels to determine a characteristic fan curve.

The poultry house was operating under normal spring conditions of 0.05-inch static pressure with four of the seven stages of fans operating (all ten 36-inch fans and 12 of the twenty-four 48-inch fans). A vane anemometer was positioned at nine locations around the discharge side of each fan face to find an average air velocity. Four readings were taken at the blade tips, one was taken near the fan hub, and four readings were taken at midpoints of the fan radius.

Fan velocities varied widely around the face of the fan as would be expected with the obstruction of a light trap hood. For the three 36-inch fans, air flow velocity averaged 1,070, 1,110, and 1,080 feet/minute and for the 48-inch fan, 1,400 feet/minute.

Fan air movement in cubic feet per minute (cfm) is the product of air speed in feet per minute and fan wall opening cross sectional area in square feet. Based on the average air velocity measurements, each 36-inch fan provided 7,565 to 7,848 cfm while the 48-inch fan provided 17,640 cfm.

These capacities were compared to the fan manufacturer rated data used to design this ventilation system. The poultry house static pressure of 0.05-inch represents the static pressure change across the inlet only. There are additional resistances to air flow as air exits the building through the fan. We estimated the total air movement resistance the fan must operate against to be about 0.10-inch. This consists of 0.05-inch through inlets plus 0.01-inch for interior ring guard plus 0.04-inch for a relatively clean, mechanized shutter installed on the discharge side of the fan. The 48-inch fan's rated capacity at 0.10-inch static pressure is 18,2000 cfm which is 3 percent more than our measured air flow.

The 36-inch fan has a rated output of 9,440 cfm at 0.10-inch, which is 17 to 20 percent greater than our measured air flow. Design ventilation rates for this layer house were 5 cfm per bird under summer conditions. With the large decrease in air flow from the 36-inch fans, the house would be under ventilated.

Points Of Discussion

A. The 48-inch fan performance decrease of 3 percent is acceptable as rated fan tests can tolerate a 6 percent variation between fan.

B. The 20 percent decrease in the 36-inch fan performance is cause for concern. The 36-inch fans were operating with mechanized shutters on the outside and a guard on the inside. External shutter, especially, will greatly decrease air flow. The manufacturer's rated data does not mention shutters so there were probably none installed on the test fan. It would be more appropriate to compare the poultry house fans with data from a similarly operated test fan, that is, one with guard and external shutters. These accessories are probably enough to account for the difference between the measured air flow values and the manufacturer air flow values of a bare fan. Shutters typically reduce air flow and efficiencies of fans by 10 to 25 percent. Guards can reduce air flow up to 5 percent. (1) More information about rated fans and accessories can be found in resource (4).

C. Fan performance comparisons need to be evaluated at static pressures against which the fan is expected to work. Higher static pressure measurements were taken on one 36-inch fan but showed only a 6 to 8 percent decrease in volumetric flow. This is within the performance range of the manufacturer data. It is desirable to have a relatively flat performance curve like this so that changes in operating static pressue do not significantly change air flow volume. Blade speed remained remarkably steady around 822 rpm despite the large changes in static pressures. The steady blade speed and relatively flat performance curve showed that the fan was capable of delivering uniform air flow even at higher static pressures.

D. The measuring technique of taking nine air velocity readings across the discharge side of a fan face is a crude field technique for determining an average velocity for air volume measurements. It should provide a good estimate, while over- and underestimating fan performance by perhaps as much as 20 percent. We took several sets of measurements across three different 36-inch fans and received similar results. This boosts our confidence in the evaluation to within perhaps less than 10 percent error.

Conclusion And Recommendations

Analysis indicated that the 36-inch fans were performing 20 percent below their rated cfm capacity at typical static pressue levels. It turned out that their "rated" capacity was based on fan performance data of a bare fan whereas the installed fans had a guard on the inside and shutters on the outside.

These tow pieces of equipment were enough to potentially decrease the fan performance 20 percent. There are a couple of ways to improve performance of the 36-inch fans. One is to move the shutters from the outside to the inside for a 10-15 percent air flow improvement.

A better option is to remove the shutters entirely for a 15 to 20 percent air flow increase. The 36-inch fans are stage-one, continuously operating fans with continuously open shutters. Fan shutters are only useful when the fan is off. They close the opening so it does not act as an inlet to the ventilation system. A guard will be necessary on the outside of the fan housing when the shutters are moved or removed. Future ventilation system designs should use rated fan data that includes the accessories the fan will use during installation.

Summary

Ventilation system designs should use data from fans tested in the condition and with the accessories, such as guards and shutters, under which they will be operated.

The specification for this case study ventilation system used two manufacturers' fans. The 48-inch fans were chosen based on performance data which included the accessories with which the fans would ultimately be installed.

By contrast, the 36-inch fans were evaluated in an unrealistic condition without shutters and guard. This resulted in inadequate air exchange conditions in the poultry house.

Fan selection is important yet remember that ventilation is a system where the fan is but one component. Proper selection and operation of fans will ensure adequate air exchange while inlet design will have a tremendous effect on air distribution.

Clinton Announces New Food Safety Rules

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Bill Clinton recently announced sweeping reform of federal food safety rules for meat and poultry.

The rules replace a system based on sight and smell with more scientific methods and will, for the first time, require plants that slaughter and process meat and poultry to target and reduce harmful bacteria on their products.

The four major elements of the new rules are:

• Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Points (HACCP) — Every plant must adopt and carry out its own HACCP plan that systematically addresses all the significant hazards associated with its products. The effectiveness will be continually verified by inspectors from USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service.

• Mandatory E.coli testing in slaughter plants — Every slaughter plant must regularly test carcasses for generic E. coli to verify the effectiveness of the plant's procedures for preventing and reducing fecal contamination, which is the major source of contamination with harmful bacteria.

• Pathogen Reduction Performance Standards for Salmonella — All slaughter plants and plants producing raw ground products must ensure that their Salmonella contamination rate is below the current national baseline incidence.

• Sanitation Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs) — As the foundation for HACCP, every plant must adopt and carry out a written plan for meeting its sanitation responsibilities. Effective sanitation in slaughter and processing plants is essential to preventing direct adulteration of meat and poultry products.

The new system was phased in this summer under USDA's Salmonella testing program, to be followed early next year by implementation of the sanitation SOP and E. coli testing requirements.

Brubaker Offers Producer's Perspective

Being president of the association is not an easy task for Brubaker who is already heavily inundated with farming responsibilities.

"My arm is still sore," Brubaker lamented in reference to "arm twisting" to have him assume the office.

In keeping with the bylaws, Brubaker needed to move up to president after serving as vice president. "I was up three times for president and kept postponing it because of family responsibilities. Now I'm busier than ever but felt like I couldn't keep saying 'no' despite my personal commitments," he said.

"My being president means more work for my wife," he said. Previously Brubaker and his wife worked side by side in the farm responsibilities. Now, Luann has a newborn baby and a 20-month-old son, but cans jellies, jams, salsa and other products to sell at their roadside stand in addition to waiting on customers.

Brubaker is also a member of the Farm Bureau. At Refton Brethren in Christ Church, he works on the sound staff, is cochairman of Family Ministries, and teaches Pioneer Club.

Luann is president of the women's ministry, choir, and sings solo. The couple also work in the church nursery once a month.

"We don't want to be so busy that we neglect family commitments," Brubaker said. "We really need to hire someone else to help on the farm, but we need the cash flow."

Brubaker does not consider his commitments as more pressing than the others who serve on the board for the Lancaster County Poultry Association. He said, "All 12 people on the board already have too much to do."

Because he believes in the Association's importance to farmers, Brubaker is willing to sacrifice his time to promote the industry.

A good place for farmers to start sticking together, Brubaker said, is to join the Lancaster County Poultry Association. He is pleased that membership has grown and especially wants to see more producers become members.

Brubaker officially becomes president at the association's annual banquet on Oct. 29 this year. New board members will be elected at that time.

Although only 20 months old, Lamar is following in his daddy's footsteps by enjoying work in the poultry house. Lancaster County Poultry Association president Don Brubaker is eager for his sons to work with the family operation.
